ILLINOIS TOLL ROAD FACES LAST TEST; WINDFALL CHARGES MADE

State Supreme Court to Rule on Financing Methods — Question Raised of Conflict of Interest.

By CARL R. BALDWIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 26—The controversial $415,000,000 Illinois toll road program, which opponents charge was engineered behind closed doors to produce a financial windfall for investment bankers at the expense of motorists in the state, will face what is expected to be its last legal obstacle Tuesday when two cases attacking its method of financing will be heard by the Illinois Supreme Court.

Opponents of Gov. William G. Stratton's program—chiefly legislators—think they see violations of the "conflict-of-interest" principle in the activities of two men who counseled the Illinois Toll Road Commission during the planning stages.

Investor and Engineer.

Commission Chairman Evan Howell has conceded that the two men, James P. Jamieson, partner in the Chicago investment firm Glore, Forgan & Co., which organized a syndicate to sell the bonds, and Joseph K. Knoerle, head and sole owner of a Baltimore (Md.) engineering firm, which determined whether the roads were feasible, worked closely with the commission in planning the services their firms later were employed to perform.

Howell acknowledged to a legislative committee which investigated the commission last May that a person hired independently on a fixed salary would be more disinterested than one concerned with the commission's decisions. He added, however, that it was the judgment of the full commission, including Gov. Stratton, that employment of interested persons was warranted in the initial stages of the toll road program.

Gov. Stratton, later answering the same criticism, said: "There's no question of ethics or morals about it. It's strictly a business proposition."

Howell Criticized.

Howell himself has been a chief target of criticism. He has been attacked for alleged mismanagement, having an excessive personal expense account, for unwarranted abuse of individuals opposing toll roads and for his activities in organizing the National Turnpike Association, which solicited fees from firms doing business with toll road commissions.

The chairman, a former Springfield congressman, recently announced he would resign as soon as the bond sale is consummated. He took the $12,000-a-year commission chairmanship in 1953 after quitting a $17,500-a-year lifetime federal judgeship. While working on the commission he has maintained law offices at Springfield, Chicago and Washington.

Jamieson, who admits he was busy lobbying for his company at Springfield while the Toll Road Act of 1953 was being written and pushed through the Legislature, has denied having anything to do with writing the toll road legislation. He acknowledged discussing the bill generally on at least two occasions before passage, once with an attorney who assisted in writing it and again with a Senator who introduced it.

Records of the Illinois commission disclose that Jamieson, who was designated bond manager by the commission in March 1954, even before the

BOND WATCHDOG GROUP IN COUNTY INCREASED TO 27

Six More Members Named by Matthews — 9-Man Executive Committee Set Up.

Appointment of a nine-man executive committee and of six new members of the St. Louis County Citizens Bond Issue Supervisory Committee, or "watchdog committee" to guide spending of the $39,712,000 public improvement bonds voted last Tuesday, was announced yesterday by Supervisor Luman F. Matthews.

The executive committee will set up an organization plan for the whole group, which now has 27 members, the supervisor said.

"The job of this supervisory committee," Matthews said, "is to see that the intent of the citizens who drew up the $39,712,000 program is carried out. In other words, the members are to see that the money is spent for the purpose the people have been told it will be spent.

"This committee will receive for its study and approval all bond issue ordinances before they are presented to the county council. It will be able to make sure that the county gets its money's worth, and it will also be in a position to ensure that all contracts go to the legitimate low bidders.

"The bond issue program was a citizens' program. So will its supervision be. The elected public officials of the county, and the county itself, will be the stronger for having the informed advice and guidance of a group of leading citizens."

Before the election Matthews had announced that members of a similar group named to supervise the smaller 1954 bond expenditure program had been asked to serve also on the 1955 committee.

Those named to the executive committee include two holdovers from the 1954 committee and seven new members. They are:

Donald L. Barnes Sr. of Chesterfield, president of American Investment Co. of Illinois and treasurer and finance chairman of the citizens committee which campaigned for the $39,712,000 bond program.

Edwin M. Clark, 18 Clermont lane, Ladue, president of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and of Civic Progess, Inc., and chairman of the educational committee of the citizens bond committee.

GRAHAM LAWYERS WILL SEEK DELAY IN ARRAIGNMENT

DENVER, Nov. 26 (AP)—A continuance will be sought Monday in the arraignment of John Gilbert Graham on a charge of murder in the dynamiting of a commercial airliner that carried his mother, his attorneys said today.

Their announcement was made after Graham gave them his own written versions of events leading up to the plane crash near Longmont, Colo., Nov. 1 that killed all 44 persons aboard.

John J. Gibbons, one of three attorneys appointed yesterday to defend Graham, said, "We would like two weeks."

Gibbons and the other two court-appointed attorneys, Charles S. Vigil and L. Paul Weadick, conferred with Graham for 22 minutes at the Denver county jail.

The lawyers kept secret the contents of the document written by Graham in pencil. The manuscript numbered 20 pages.

Graham is to be arraigned on a charge of the murder of his mother, Mrs. Daisie King, 54 years old, a passenger aboard the United Air Lines plane.

The FBI said Graham admitted in a signed statement he planted dynamite in a suitcase belonging to his mother before she boarded the plane but Graham has denied the act.

WOMAN MOVES TO $50,000 POINT IN TELEVISION QUIZ

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—A 72-year-old Los Angeles widow sang her way tonight to the $50,000 point on the NBC-TV "Big Surprise" quiz show while a Tennessee Senator played on a violin.

Mrs. Ethel Richardson, who spends six months each year in a trailer at Los Angeles and six months at the White Plains, N.Y., home of her son, Ralph W. Smith, may try next Saturday for the $100,000 jackpot of the show.

Senator Albert E. Gore (Dem.), Tennessee, who learned the violin by ear as a boy, came to New York City from his home in Carthage, Tenn., to take part in the show. Mrs. Richardson used to live at Decherd, Tenn.

Mrs. Richardson, whose subject on the show was folk music, named and sang excerpts from "Buffalo Gals" and the original ballad "Davy Crockett." Both were played by Gore.

ITALIAN BUILDS EXPLOSIVE HOUSE WITH ARMY 'SCRAP'

CAPRILE, Italy, Nov. 26 (AP)—Unable to afford costly bricks, Nicolo Soja used scrap material from a nearby military dump when he built a house back in 1948. His wife and two daughters moved in with him.

Today artillery men evacuated the family and began, very carefully, to tear down the house.

Nicolo had used artillery shells, many of them live.

HOCKER LEAVING CIVIL RIGHTS INQUIRY STAFF

Completes First Phase of Investigation — Will Return Here to Head Risk Firm.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—Lon Hocker, chief counsel of the Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights, is leaving to return to St. Louis to become president of an insurance company.

Langdon West, administrative assistant to Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem.), Missouri, subcommittee chairman, said Hocker plans to leave in midweek after winding up the group's initial series of hearings.

Hocker, a former president of the St. Louis Bar Association, was appointed chief hearings counsel of the subcommittee last July. At the time Hennings said Hocker had agreed "to give up his private practice for a few months to help the committee in the initial phase of its work."

Elected President of Firm.

West said that Hocker had asked to be relieved after his election on Oct. 8 as president of the Missouri Insurance Co., of which he was director and general counsel.

The subcommittee, engaged in an inquiry into whether constitutional rights have been eroded under the impact of the cold war, started its first series of public hearings two weeks ago.

They have dealt in large measure with the Government's employe security program and are scheduled to end in midweek, with the exception of testimony from Attorney General Brownell.

West said that efforts were being made to arrange for Brownell to testify some time next month and that Hocker had agreed to return for that.

No Successor Chosen.

Hocker's departure will leave the subcommittee without a staff head. West said no successor has been selected.

Marshall MacDuffie, New York lawyer and author, originally was appointed chief counsel of the subcommittee, but he announced his resignation Oct. 11 in a statement reflecting a dispute within the staff.

About two months after MacDuffie's appointment, Hocker was named "chief hearings counsel." MacDuffie said this gave the subcommittee "two counsels with equal responsibility" and that he did not find this workable.

MacDuffie also said he did not wish to be associated with questionnaires on religion and free speech sent out by the subcommittee. He said without detailing his objection to them, that they had been prepared by Hocker.

Shortly before MacDuffie's resignation, the subcommittee had canceled public hearings it had scheduled on the religious freedom guaranteed by the Constitution. Religious leaders had differed over whether they should be held.

TIED BY ROBBERS, VICTIM DIALS FOR HELP WITH NOSE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (UP)—A restaurant night manager used his nose today to dial for help when he was held up and tied by robbers.

Pedro Cordero was trussed to a chair by three armed men who made off with $2000 from a safe.

He managed to work the chair over to a desk, removed the telephone from its cradle with his mouth and dropped the instrument on the desk.

Then he dialed "O" for operator with his nose and shouted: "Send police . . . I'm tied up . . . I've been robbed."

Police arrived a few minutes later to free him.

Army Spit and Polish Drive In Capital Has G.I.s in Lather

WASHINBTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Army Chief of Staff has started a spit and polish campaign to spruce up the appearance of officers and men in the Washington area.

Barbers, tailors and cleaners are getting a lot more work as a result.

Although the order was directed specifically to the capital area, officials surmised that the word would rapidly spread to commands throughout the country.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, the Army Chief of Staff, made his desires known in a memorandum. He called on all soldiers to "exemplify the highest standards of appearance, military bearing and alertness."

An immaculate dresser himself, he laid stress on the fitting and press of uniforms, the "placing and polishing of insignia and haircuts.

So military police have been stationed at vantage points such as the entrances to the Pentagon to give soldiers the once-over. One enlisted man reported that he had been told his jacket didn't fit. He had to go back to barracks and wangle a new one.

The campaign already has had its effect in the additional number of haircuts that are being sported around Army offices. Just to be on the safe side, officers are having it cut short and often.

The drive already has produced some humorous results. On entering his office building this week, one soldier was told by the police that his trousers were too long. So he took a hitc in his belt and pulled his pants up.

When he left the office that night another set of police halted him and said his pants were too short. So he eased out his belt and let the pants down again.

BAGHDAD PACT CREATES THREAT, RUSSIA WARNS IRANIAN ENVOY

Soviet Note Rejects Iran's Contention That Treaty Is Instrument of Peace and Security.

MOSCOW, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Soviet Union warned Iran today its membership in the Baghdad pact creates a threat to Russia and it will have to answer for "possible consequences."

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov handed Iranian charge d'affaires Ette Sami a note brusquely rejecting the Iranian contention that the pact is an instrument of peace and security. Sami said he would transmit it to his government.

The Soviet note climaxed a bitter Soviet press campaign against the pact, which links Iran with Britain, Iraq, Turkey and Pakistan in a mutual defense alliance along Russia's southern frontiers.

U.S. Observers Attend.

The prime ministers of the five nations held their first meeting in Baghdad this week and completed a permanent organization with headquarters in Baghdad. United States observers were present.

Soviet press chief Leonid Ilychev announced delivery of the note at a news conference in the Soviet foreign ministry. He said Iran was not living up to its agreement with the Soviet Union. A 1921 treaty between the two countries provides that Russia may move troops into Iran if it feels its frontier is threatened.

Russia first protested the Baghdad pact in a note Oct. 12. An Iranian reply Oct. 17 rejected the Soviet assertion that the pact was aggressive in intent. Today's note was a reply to the Iranian memorandum.

It said Iran's membership in the Baghdad pact has created a situation "fraught with danger to Soviet frontiers, and the Soviet government cannot be indifferent."

Relations Damaged.

It said Iran has inflicted "serious damage to Soviet-Iranian relations" and its membership in the pact is "incompatible with the interests of consolidation of peace and security in the Near and Middle East, and to the treaty obligations of Iran."

The note accused Iran of joining "certain aggressive circles" interested in fostering a continuation of colonialism. Recent articles in the Soviet press have accused the Western powers of attempting to form aggressive military blocs in the Middle East. One article accused the United States of "political blackmail" to win Iran's membership in the pact.

SPACE SATELLITE PROJECT LAGGING, AERO DIGEST SAYS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—Aero Digest magazine said today the United States space satellite program has "degenerated into a celestial boondoggle" which can be corrected only through a costly speed-up.

"Contracts for some basic components and for instruments have been delayed, and others are unsigned," the aviation engineering magazine said.

"All indications are that "Project Vanguard will have to be a highly accelerated crash program, with parallel rocketing in costs, or miss its much-heralded deadline."

President Eisenhower announced last July that the United States would launch a small satellite in the International Geophysical Year—July 1, 1957 Dec. 31, 1958—to orbit around the earth, 200 to 800 miles out in space.

Aero Digest said that many rocket engineers are unconvinced that the job can be tackled successfully.

"Apparently the whole project is up in the air and the magnitude of the task is far greater than anticipated," the magazine said.

NO NUDES ON '57 CALENDARS, INDUSTRY SPOKESMEN SAY

Demeaning to Advertising Profession, They Assert—Household Hints to Substitute.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26 (AP)—No nudes on 1957 calendars. That was the word at a calendar salesmen's meeting here today.

Roger Turner, sales executive for the Kemper-Thomas Co., Cincinnati, said: "All the major firms have turned thumbs down on nudes for the 1957 line. The industry felt it was demeaning to the advertising profession to continue the nudes. Calendars were getting rawer and rawer until they were approaching the pornographic."

Turner said 1957 calendars will be aimed at particular fields. For instance, for the housewife they are full of household hints. For the bowler they have information on this sport. For the young mother they contain rules of child care.

ORDER REINFORCING LAW ON 'CONFLICT OF INTEREST' STUDIED BY EISENHOWER

President Backs George's Plea For Nonpartisan Foreign Policy

Eisenhower Agrees With Democratic Senator That Election Should Not Change Diplomacy.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 26—President Eisenhower today indorsed a statement by a Senate Democratic leader urging a non-partisan United States foreign policy regardless of which party wins the 1956 elections.

From his farm home, Mr. Eisenhower took a stand squarely in agreement with Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

In a telephone interview from his home at Vienna, Ga., yesterday, George said: "We must assure the world that we are capable of having a nonpartisan American foreign policy, and that regardless of who wins or loses in 1956, our foreign program will go on substantially as is. We must show that we are a mature nation."

Assistant White House Press Secretary Murray Snyder said Mr. Eisenhower had read George's statement and that he approved it. Snyder told reporters the President said he had "always held that view."

Since his election, Mr. Eisenhower has several times publicly supported a non-partisan foreign policy, but his remarks today were viewed as significant in view of recent criticism of administration foreign policy by two leading Democrats.

Adlai E. Stevenson, who has announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination, and Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, considered a leading contender, have both attacked Republican conduct of foreign affairs. However, Mr. Eisenhower did not refer to either of these criticisms.

Snyder said the President would not have a formal statement on the George interview. But the press secretary made a short statement of his own,

MOSCOW BLAMED FOR FALLOUT AT MOSCOW (IDAHO)

MOSCOW, Idaho, Nov. 26 (UP)—A radioactivity reading more than 10 times normal here yesterday gave rise to speculation that atomic fallout from Russia's recent nuclear explosion may have traveled from one Moscow to another.

Dr. James V. Jordan, agricultural chemist in charge of Universitiy of Idaho studies in radioactivity in the air, said research technician W. R. Schell obtained a reading of 327 counts of radioactivity per minute yesterday.

Normal reading here is about 30 and the highest reading obtained previously was 180 during United States atomic tests in Nevada, Jordan said. He added, "We have been getting rain from the north Pacific and there is the possibility that the increased radioactivity is due to airborne fallout from the tests reported to have taken place in Russia recently."

TRAIN KILLS BOY ON TRESTLE, TWO OTHERS LEAP ASIDE

OMAHA, Nebr., Nov. 26 (AP)—Three boys were trapped on a railroad trestle with a Union Pacific mail train bearing down on them yesterday.

Robert Baratta, 12 years old, and James Cannon, 12, looked and leaped. They landed safe three feet away on the eastbound tracks of the double span, out of the path of the west bound train.

For some reason, Walter Baratta, 13, brother of Robert, didn't jump. The train killed him.

"We thought he jumped too," sobbed the Cannon boy to his mother. "We don't know why he didn't."

The trestle was a short cut home from big Papio Creek where the three had been playing.

TRUMAN QUIPS HE WON'T TAKE '56 NOMINATION IF OFFERED

Recalls Saying He Would Run When 90, But Found That Was Off Year.

SEATTLE, Nov. 26 (AP)—In his best quipping form, former President Truman told reporters today he would not accept the 1956 presidential nomination if it were offered, and added:

"I once said I'd run for the Presidency again when I'm 90, but I found out that's an off-year when there is no presidential election."

The ex-President will be 72 years old next May.

Just Upholding a Tradition.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 26 (INS)—The Stutz family of Indianapolis are a couple of bearcats when it comes to driving a car. Karl Stutz was stopped and given a warning sticker yesterday when he went 35 miles an hour in a 20 m.p.h. zone. An hour later his wife, Louise, drew a similar warning ticket for the same offense in the same zone.

GRENADE HURLED INTO BALLROOM OF CYPRUS HOTEL

Violence Follows British State of Emergency Edict — Death for Carrying Firearms.

NICOSIA, Cyprus, Nov. 26 (AP)—A state of emergency was clamped on this riot-swept British Mediterranean defense island today. It was answered within hours by a grenade hurled defiantly into a hotel ballroom.

Under the new powers taken by the governor general to meet a rising tide of bloodshed and violence mere possession of an explosive is punishable by death. The grenade thrower was not caught.

The weapon was tossed into the ballroom of the Ledra Palace, the island's swankiest hotel, as 300 Scots and their guests were dancing Highland reels in celebrating St. Andrew's day.

The ballroom was plunged into darkness and there was an explosion. One Briton was injured, not seriously.

Harding Not There.

The grenade was aimed at the table where principal guests sit. Gov. Gen. Sir John Harding sits there at many functions, but he was not present tonight.

The grenade damaged a water pipe, and water flooded the dance hall.

The dancers, with their feet in water, stood at attention and sang "God Save the Queen" before going to the dining room to continue the party while the entire staff of the hotel was being questioned.

The declaration of emergency status gives Gen. Harding far-reaching powers over the island that contains Britain's main Middle East defense bases since the withdrawal began from the Suez Canal Zone.

It imposes the death penalty for carrying firearms, ammunition or other explosives without authority, and life imprisonment for acts of sabotage against communications or public utilities.

Harding said he took the step in view of serious incidents endangering public order and security, and after consultation with Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd in London. He said the state of emergency will continue "as long as the governor thinks necessary."

Killing of Five Soldiers.

This island colony has been ripped by riots and bombings in past months, climaxed by the killing last week of five British soldiers by Cypriots demanding that the island be merged with Greece.

British officials pinned the killings on an underground organization called Eoka which backs the movement for "enosis"—union with Greece.

The state of emergency makes

Owner of $1500 Watch Found After 3 Months; Hadn't Missed It

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 26 (UP) Atlanta detectives W. E. Peabody and J. W. Elliott worked diligently for three months to find the owner of a $1500 watch.

They found the watch in a pawn shop in Atlanta and learned it had been found in a Miami Beach (Fla.) theater. Next Peabody and Elliott wrote the factory where the watch was manufactured and were told it had been sold to James Oaks Jr. of Miami.

The Oakes family was then at a Spring Lake (N.J.) summer home but when the detectives sought to reach them there, the family had gone to Europe.

Elliott and Peacock finally reached Oakes in Paris, France. Oakes expressed his thanks but added he didn't even know the watch was missing.

ACTION WEIGHED AFTER ACTIVITIES OF SOME AIDS ARE DISCLOSED

Would Make Amendment Requiring Financial Statement Apply to Such Advisers as Wenzell.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 26—An executive order reinforcing the "conflict of interests" statute is being considered by President Eisenhower as a result of disclosures of outside activities by some Government officials, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

No final decision has been made on whether to issue the order, but Mr. Eisenhower reportedly has discussed it with some top advisers, including Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr.

The proposed order, under study and preparation by the Department of Justice's anti-trust division, was prompted in part by the Dixon-Yates case and the outside business activities of former Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott.

Another case which has intensified work on the order was that of Chairman Hugh W. Cross of the Interstate Commerce Commission, who resigned yesterday while under investigation by a Senate subcommittee.

Would Clarify Amendment.

The order, if issued, would clarify and put into effect an amendment to the Defense Production Act passed in the closing days of the last Congress.

Under the amendment, business and industrial executives serving as Government advisers without compensation will be required to file statements of their financial interests within 60 days of employment by a federal agency.

A Department of Justice official who asked not to be identified told the Post-Dispatch the anti-trust division is satisfied that the amendment, covers so-called "WOCs," (standing for without compensation) full-time employes paid $1 a year, who came under fire from Democrats in the last session.

However, the department is not sure whether the amendment would affect part-time Government consultants. One such part-time adviser, Adolphe H. Wenzell, was a key figure in the controversial Dixon-Yates contract.

Order Would Cover Them.

For this reason, an executive order is being considered which would require similar financial disclosures from part-time consultants, it was reliably reported.

It was considered likely the order also would strengthen the "conflict of interests" law prohibiting Government employes from outside activities which conflict with their official duties or unduly influence their decisions.

A White House source said Mr. Eisenhower discussed the order with Brownell at a Cabinet meeting last Tuesday at Camp David, the presidential retreat in the Catoctin mountains.

The President was understood to be concerned about recent disclosures involving some top Government officials, including Talbott, Cross and public buildings commissioner Peter A. Strobel.

Preparation of the proposed executive order began in the anti-trust division shortly after passage of the amendment, it was learned. The White House source said the order might be issued next week.

Wenzell's Dual Role.

Wenzell was a senior vice president and director of the First Boston Corp., a New York investment house that was financial adviser and later fiscal agent for the Dixon-Yates group, while at the same time serving as a consultant to the Bureau of the Budget on refinancing the Tennessee Valley Authority.

His work was partly responsible for the Dixon-Yates contract, under which a private utility combine proposed to build a steam generating plant to feed power into TVA lines.

Critics of the contract called it an attempt to "strangle" TVA by making it dependent on a private power source and destroying its characer as a yardstick of low power rates, rather than permitting the authority to build new plants of its own.

After intense Democratic criticism, Mr. Eisenhower ordered the contract canceled, and the Atomic Energy Com-

FEAR OF ATOMIC PEARL HARBOR VOICED AFTER SOVIET H-TEST

Senator Wiley Calls for Congressional Meeting With Joint Chiefs on State of Nation's Defenses.

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP) —The newest test explosion of a Russian H-bomb prompted a demand on Capitol Hill today that the United States look to its defenses lest there be an "atomic Pearl Harbor."

Senator Wiley of Wisconsin, ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said, "The appropriate committees of the Congress should sit down in executive session with members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff as soon as Congress returns in order to determine whether, as of now, we have taken all necessary steps for our own continental protection, so that there will not be an 'atomic Pearl Harbor'."

At Gettysburg, President Eisenhower had no comment on the Russian announcement.

Doubt as to Size.

Meantime there was doubt as to the exact size of the bomb Moscow announced had been exploded. The Soviet statement called it "the most powerful of all explosions carried out until now." The context made it unclear whether this meant that it was the most powerful exploded in the Soviet Union, or the most potent set off anywhere. The fact that a preceding sentence spoke of the achievements of Soviet scientists made it possible that the comparison referred merely to bombs set off in Soviet territory.

Soviet party boss Nikita Khrushchev, according to a translator, compared the blast to 1,000,000 tons of TNT. If he was right, this Russian bomb was 15 to 17 times smaller than one detonated by the United States more than a year and a half ago.

(A United Press report said Russian news men with Khrushchev, now touring India, quoted the Red leader as rating the Soviet bomb at "millions of tons" of TNT.)

The latest Soviet test explosion was first disclosed Wednesday night by the United States Atomic Energy Commission, which said it was "the largest thus far in the U.S.S.R."

Claim Under U. S. Estimate.

TNT is used as the basis for measuring atomic explosive force. Thus, one kiloton equals the force released by the explosion of 1000 tons of TNT; one megaton is the equivalent of 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

The United States exploded, in its first full-scale hydrogen test in 1952, a weapon greater than one megaton. And on March 1, 1954, it blasted off a giant size explosion unofficially reported to have produced a yield between 15 and 17 megatons.

AEC Chairman Strauss, in announcing the new Soviet test this week, placed its power in the range of "megatons"—plural—which would seem to mean more than 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

Out of these developments rose today the question of whether the United States might detonate a bomb surpassing even the power of its 1954 weapon in a new series of tests next spring.

Preparations for new test blasts at the Marshall islands proving ground in the central Pacific obviously are under way.

Senator Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico, chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, said last night that "I think we shall have" a new test, and Representative Van Zandt (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, a committee member, said it "is my understanding that we will have new atomic tests."

Megaton Now Yardstick.

In this new lap of the nuclear weapons race, what might be the force of a still bigger bomb?

The AEC never is specific on such matters in public discussions.

But the Civil Defense Administration, in adjusting its plans to latest developments, now uses as a yardstick a bomb of 20 megatons—20,000,000 tons. Presumably, the Civil Defense Administration gets its guidance from the agency which makes bombs, the AEC. Some scientists speculate that the theoretical, if not practical limitation is well above 20 megatons, perhaps 40 or 50 megatons.

International political considerations, not nuclear physics, could set a ceiling on the size of next spring's test bomb at Bikini.

American weaponeers may be limited by the need for keeping within control the area of radioactive material fallout. In the 1954 explosion, the fallout drifted well beyond the boundaries of the test area, dropping contamination on some Japanese fishermen and producing protests from abroad.

Immense quantities of fission products, far greater proportionately than those released by a standard "atomic" bomb, are dispersed in a thermonuclear explosion.

Russia Says It Has Exploded Its Most Powerful H-Bomb

Detailed Announcement of Explosion Made After Khrushchev Reports It Equaled Million Tons of TNT.

MOSCOW, Nov. 26 (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today it recently exploded its most powerful hydrogen bomb. It was the most detailed and explicit announcement of a nuclear explosion the Soviet Union has made so far.

The announcement, at a press conference in the foreign ministry, followed a statement by Communist party Secretary Nikita Khrushchev at Bangalore, India, that the bomb equalled 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

(Both announcements confirmed a statement by the United States Atomic Energy Commission Wednesday that the Russians recently set off an unusually large nuclear blast. The United States announcement said it equaled millions of tons of TNT. Khrushchev's estimate would place it in a much smaller category than the United States nuclear device set off in the Pacific in 1954, which was reckoned at 15,000,000 to 17,000,000 tons of TNT.)

At Great Height.

The Soviet government announcement did not tell where the latest test was conducted but said it was "at a great height" to safeguard against harmful radioactive influences.

It said the blast was part of a series of tests of new types of atomic and thermonuclear weapons that "fully confirmed the pertinent scientific and technical calculation showing the new and important achievements of Soviet scientists and engineers."

It added, "the latest explosion of the hydrogen bomb was the most powerful of all explosions carried out until now."

(The United Press reported that the official interpreter translating the Khrushchev speech into English quoted him as saying the bomb had the power of "1,000,000 tons" of TNT. Russian newsmen who heard the Communist boss said, however, that his actual words were "millions of tons.")

Today's announcement said due to the "fuss in the foreign press" about Soviet atomic experiments, the official Soviet news agency Tass has been authorized to state:

"In conducting the above mentioned tests in the interest of insuring its security, the Soviet Union will continue to strive, as before, to reach agreement in the United Nations on the prohibition of atomic and hydrogen weapons and on the reduction of all other types of armaments, on the further reduction of international tension, on the establishment of good faith between states, and on the maintenance and strengthening of general peace."

West Blamed.

The Tass statement went on to blame the western powers for not accepting Soviet proposals to bar atomic and hydrogen bombs.

In his speech at Bangalore, India, Khrushchev said the explosion was "of unprecedented might" and that it confirmed Soviet calculations that "we are able to produce with the minimum atomic energy a maximum explosion."

Speaking at a civic reception, Khrushchev told an Indian audience:

"Our engineers and our scientists wanted to see if their calculations were correct. Their calculations were correct. They succeeded with the minimum of atomic energy in making the maximum explosion of 1,000,000 tons of TNT."

Some translators thought he used the words "atomic materials" instead of atomic energy."

Khrushchev said, "we will never be the first to use these weapons and we will be very glad if bombs are never exploded on cities or villages. Let them lie and influence the nerves of those who would start a new war. Because if they start a war they will recive a proper answer."

5 RUSSIANS ARRIVE IN U.S. TO STUDY HYBRID CORN

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—Five Russian farm experts arrived today en route to Iowa to study hybrid corn production methods and machinery, and to buy seed and machinery for use at home.

The group had been invited to this country by Roswell Garst, head of the Pioneer Hybrid Seed Corn Co. of Coon Rapids, Ia., on a visit to Russia last summer.

The visitors will journey to Iowa by train. They include Ilia Emelianov, deputy director of the scientific operations department of the Soviet Ministry of Agriculture; Nicolai Plochchenko, Nicolai Dakhnovski, Nicolai Shmanenkov and Gaifevtdin Galeev.

FEWER MEN GOING 'OVER THE HILL' IN ALL 3 SERVICES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (UP) —Fewer service men are going "over the hill."

The big drop in A.W.O.L.s and desertions was attributed by the armed services today to educational programs, help on the G.I.'s personal and family problems, and stiffer penalties authorized by President Eisenhower.

The Army reported it has cut its monthly A.W.O.L. rate from 15.2 per 1000 enlistened men in 1952 to 5.2 per 1000 this year. In 1952, the Navy had 29,490 "absence" offenses of more than three days, including desertions. Last year the number was cut to 18,542, and in the first eight months of this year only 6841 sailors have gone over the hill for three days or more.

The Air Force, which had a monthly A.W.O.L. rate of 7.6 per 1000 men in 1950 and 5.13 per 1000 in 1952, has cut the number to 1.86 per 1000 this year. The rate of air Force desertions has dropped from .346 per 1000 last year to .225 per 1000 this year.

The Marine Corps said it had 5849 "administrative desertions" in 1952 and cut that to 4882 last year. For the first seven months this year, the number was 1895.

HIMALAYAN CLIMBERS FAIL

KATMANDU, Nepal, Nov. 26 (AP)—An international Himalayan climbing expedition, led by the Swiss- American Prof. Norman Dhyrenfurth, reached here today after an unsuccessful attempt on the 27,890-foot Lohtse peak—the world's highest unconquered mountain.

The early advent of winter conditions forced the team to retreat after they had reached 26,500 feet.

STEVENSON TALK OF 'MODERATION' IRKS WILLIAMS

No Time for 'National Coffee Break,' Says Michigan Governor in Speech.

DENVER, Nov. 26 (UP)—Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan tonight criticized fellow Democrat Adlai Stevenson, who is seeking his party's presidential nomination.

Williams, serving his seventh year as Governor, and mentioned occasionally as a possible presidential candidate himself, said he would be ashamed to go along with those Democrats who "have proposed, in effect that this is the ideal time for a national coffee break."

'Actually Disappointed.'

Speaking before the Colorado Young Democrats convention, he said he was "acutely disappointed by this 'spirit of Chicago,' containing counsels which I find difficult to believe can be seriously considered as Democratic party policy."

Williams, who previously wished Stevenson "good luck" in the latter's bid for the nomination, did not mention Stevenson by name in his address. But he made it obvious that he was referring to the 1952 Democratic nominee and former Illinois Governor when he spoke of "the very worthy gentleman and great Democrat who urged a course of moderation when he addressed the nation on television from Chicago last weekend."

What Stevenson Said.

(As reported by Raymond P. Brandt, chief Washington correspondent, in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch:

("Answering those who advise against rocking the boat of prosperity, he (Stevenson) agreed that it is 'a time for catching our breath' and 'for moderation'.

("But, he added, we must not confuse moderation with mediocrity or settle for half answers to hard problems."

("'A democratic society,' he said, 'can't stand still, and the world won't stand still. Both are living things and the meaning of life is in growth, in working always toward something better, something higher. Moderation, yes. Stagnation, no. As the history of nations reminds us, nothing fails like success.'")

"This is not the time for moderation," said Williams. "It is time," he said, "for getting up off the seat of our pants and doing the job that waits to be done.

"If we followed the counsel of Chicago," he said, "I suspect we would find that we had relaxed ourselves into a position where we would have lost the last shred of our Democratic party's identity as the nation's great and moving force.

Says Many Problems Remain.

"The 'spirit of Chicago'," he added, "could bring us to the point where the American electorate, as it goes to the ballot box next November, could be hard put to distinguishing between the parties—even harder put to find the reason for making the change which must be made if we are not to turn flabby from resting."

He said the Democratic party would be "guilty of the most craven cowardice" to permit the presidential election debate to "degenerate into a spineless and self-defeating formality."

Williams said there still are problems of expanding school construction to eliminate overcrowded conditions, getting 15,000,000 "Americans out of substandard housing," decreasing unemployment and halting what he termed "a constant and progressive drop in farm income."

Truman Says Geneva Talks 'Didn't Amount to a Damn'

Ex-President Accuses Administration of Throwing Foreign Relations Into Political Arena—Rakes Nixon.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 26 (UP)—Former President Harry S. Truman today accused the Eisenhower Administration of throwing "foreign relations into the political arena," and said the Geneva conferences "didn't amount to a damn."

Truman was in a vigorous political mood at a press conference. He also raked Vice President Richard Nixon over the coals and Republicans came in for his typical "give-'em-hell" blasting.

As for Nixon, Truman said: "I don't like him and I don't want to discuss him. He called me a traitor and if I was a traitor, then the country is in a hell of a fix."

A reporter had asked about vice presidential qualifications, and prefaced the question by saying there had been a lot of talk about Nixon in connection with Mr. Eisenhower's illness.

Quotes Harriman on Geneva.

The former President said he agreed with New York Gov. Averell Harriman, a potential Democratic candidate for president, who said here earlier this week "the hope of Geneva had been turned into the hoax of Geneva."

"Mr. Harriman knows what he's talking about. He had to deal with those Russians." (Harriman formerly was ambassador to Russia.)

"President Franklin Roosevelt and I kept foreign relations on a bi-partisan basis, but the Republicans have thrown it into the political arena. It will be a major issue in next year's campaign," Truman said.

The former President refused to get involved in the likely candidates for President next year, saying only: "Any Democrat that gets the nomination will win."

He said foreign policy and the farm program would be key issues in the campaign, adding:

"I told the farmers they should have their heads examined if they voted for a Republican Administration in 1952. Now, I think they know what I was talking about."

Up to President, He Says.

Truman dwelt at considerable length on foreign policy, but he said he could not outline what should be done.

"I have no Central Intelligence Agency now to fill me in on all the details, but also, it would not be proper for me to say," he said. "That is the President's job, and he alone must do it."

Asked if he would stump the nation in the 1956 presidential campaign, as he did in 1952, Truman said he didn't know yet, "but I am ready for any duty the National Democratic Committee might have for me. I don't want to think, or anyone else to think, I am a party boss. I am a party helper."

Truman was quite frank to admit he would like to be a member of the United States Senate again, "but that is impossible," he said. "We have two very fine Senators from Missouri and I don't want to see them replaced."

Discusses Hell's Canyon Dam.

Truman also talked about hydroelectric power, a key issue in the Pacific Northwest. He said a high, federally-financed dam should be built in Hell's Canyon on the Snake river at the Oregon-Idaho border.

"The Republicans haven't started a new dam in this region, and I tried to tell the voters what they were in for three years ago."

The former President is in Seattle to raise funds for the Truman library at Independence, Mo., which will house his presidential papers and writings.

Fund to Fight Disease Sought.

UNITED NATIONS, Nov. 26 (AP)—The United Nations Children's Fund has under consideration a request from 30 countries for $10,000,000 to help rid all Africa of yaws within 10 years. Yaws is a disfiguring tropical disease that infects 50,000,000 people, half of them in Africa. Doctors report complete cure with one shot of penicillin that costs 12 cents.

RIFF REBELS KILL 17 SOLDIERS IN FRENCH CONVOY

Terrorists Ambush Ambulance Unit—Sultan Names Si Bekkai Premier.

RABAT, Morocco, Nov. 26 (UP)—Rebel tribesmen sweeping down from the mountains near the Spanish Morocco frontier killed 17 French soldiers and wounded 10 others, officials disclosed today.

At the same time, Sultan Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef named Si Bekkai premier of Morocco's first representative government in its march toward independence.

Bekkai, an independent nationalist, is a former French army colonel. He had remained loyal to the sultan throughout his two-year exile and had resigned a high government post in protest against his ouster. He is 48 years old.

Reliable sources said the two leading political parties, Istiqlal and Democratic Independence, agreed to Bekkai as the one man likely to be acceptable to rival elements.

More Trouble Possible.

As the result, the Sultan called Bekkai to the palace today and asked him to form a cabinet. The Sultan's decision ended a week of uncertainty, but the possibility of serious trouble remained.

Riff tribesmen swept down from the hills near the Spanish Morocco frontier late yesterday and killed the 17 French soldiers in an ambush as army trucks were convoying an ambulance, containing a wounded soldier. The rebels opened fire with sub-machine guns then scattered into the hills.

Rescuers Ambushed.

A rescue column which set out after nightfall to support the convoy was itself ambushed. Today French mobile soldiers supported by planes stabbed into the Riff hills in search of the rebels.

New terrorism threatened also in the cities. The Black Crescent society issued a pamphlet saying that some Moroccans were traitors to the cause of independence. "They will all get the fate they deserve," the pamphlet of the secret terrorist group said.

In Meknes and Fez, extremists threatened reprisals against any Moroccans who bought French cigarettes or gasoline or who used French-owned business.

SMALL BUSINESS DESERTION WILL HELP BEAT G.O.P., SYMINGTON SAYS

Those With 'Desire for Change' in 1952 Will Go Other Way in 1956, He Asserts in DeSoto, Mo.

By HERBERT A. TRASK
State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DE SOTO, Mo., Nov. 26—The same persons whose "desire for change" led to a Republican victory in 1952 will cast the votes for a Democratic triumph in next year's national elections, United States Senator Stuart Symington said in a talk here tonight.

Symington was the chief speaker at a Jefferson county Democratic dinner which was attended by two prospective candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1956.

Weighing Republican campaign promises in 1952 against the Administration's performance, Symington declared the discrepancy has been great enough to swing "small and medium-size business men and bankers" into the Democratic camp next year along with the farmers and working men.

"The Republican administration will ask the American people to maintain it in power on the basis of its record during the last three years, along with its record during the coming year," the speaker said.

Reading Record Up to Now.

"Based on the record to date, as against the promises made to the American people during the 1952 campaign, it is hard for me to believe the people will agree to this request."

Farm income has dropped 27 per cent since 1952 and the "farmer's position is worsening steadily," despite Republican campaign promises to create conditions providing for farm prosperity and stability, Symington said.

Although the Republicans went on record in favor of 100 per cent parity "for all products in the market place," the parity ratio stood at 82 per cent last month and is going down, he said.

In discussing the rural electrification program, Symington said the Republicans apparently had "forgotten all about" their urgings that this be further developed since the Administration has cut REA electric loan funds 30 per cent and telephone loans 23 per cent.

Budget Not Yet Balanced.

He chided the opposition party for failure to carry out its announced goals of a balanced budget and reduced national debt, saying: "In none of the years under Republican rule has the budget been balanced, and the debt is billions higher."

Small business failures under the Republicans have increased 48 per cent compared with 1952, he said.

Symington told the Jefferson county Democrats that nothing has been done by Republicans to carry out their pledges for amendment of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Symington was introduced to the approximately 300 diners by Magistrate H. Glenn Weber of High Ridge, a former Republican who turned Democrat after heading the Missouri delegation to the Republican national convention of 1952 and serving as a floor manager for President Eisenhower.

Among others who paid $3 a plate for the dinner in the basement of St. Rose de Lima parochial school were Lt. Gov. James T. Blair Jr., who has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor, and Attorney General John M. Dalton of Kennett, who has been seeking party support for the nomination.

Dalton told the Post-Dispatch he was not ready to announce his candidacy. "I'm just taking care of the job I have and it's a mighty big job," he remarked.

Nicholas Blassie of St. Louis, head of the AFL Meatcutters' union, who has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, also was present.

Representative A. S. J. Carnahan of Elsinor was present but State Commissioner of Agriculture L. C. Carpenter, Columbia, who has stated his intention of filing for the party nomination for Governor, failed to appear.

Standouts at Democratic Dinner

SHARP REDUCTION IN NUMBER HELD IN POLICE CELLS

A sharp reduction in the number of persons in the holdover at Police Headquarters was noted yesterday following disclosures by the Post-Dispatch that some prisoners had been held there for long periods before legal formalities permitting their release or transfer to city jail were completed.

From Nov. 13 to last Tuesday, the holdover held each day at least 20 prisoners against whom, police were told, warrants had been issued or would be issued by the circuit attorney's office or the prosecuting attorney's office.

Last Tuesday, however, the number dropped to 15 and remained at that figure Wednesday. On Thanksgiving day, it dropped to six, rose to seven Friday and to 11 yesterday.

Desk sergeants at headquarters said warrants are being issued more rapidly, and the sheriff's office is transferring prisoners more rapidly from the holdover, where there are rules against smoking and shaving, to the jail, where inmates sleep on mattresses and get changes of clothing when necessary.

BUTLER TO HELP OPEN DEMOCRATIC DRIVE HERE DEC. 14

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler will be in St. Louis Dec. 14 for a party fund-raising dinner at $100 a plate, it was announced yesterday by Mark R. Holloran, national committeeman for Missouri.

The dinner will be at the Chase Hotel. Butler will speak, but the principal speaker will be Mayor Robert F. Wagner Jr. of New York City. Missouri's two United States Senators, Thomas C. Hennings Jr. and Stuart Symington, also are expected to attend.

The dinner will be a kick-off for the state campaign, Holloran said, adding: "Not since the depression days of 1932-33 has there been such a surge to the Democratic party in Missouri. If we raise our funds properly, conduct a spirited primary and present good candidates, we may carry every Congressional district."

Delegations are expected from Kansas City, Springfield and Southeast Missouri. Thomas J. Guilfoil, St. Louis attorney, has charge of the dinner arrangements.

OWNER, 11 PATRONS SEIZED IN GAMBLING RAID ON SHOP

Victor Padratzik, operator of a cigar store at 5860 Delmar boulevard, was arrested by members of the police gambling squad yesterday as he hung up the telephone after taking a $15 bet on the Army-Navy game, police said.

Sgt. Robert Matteson, who led the raid, seized the betting tab with the $15 bet on it. About 25 other betting tabs on football games also were seized, Matteson said. Eleven customers in the store were booked suspected of gambling and later released. Padratzik was booked suspected of operating a gambling establishment.

Matteson said Padratzik accepted bets from customers and telephoned them to bookmakers on the East Side. He told police the $15 bet was his own.

TRANSPORTATION LEADERS TO CONVENE WEDNESDAY

The transportation outlook for five midwestern states will be discussed by 400 transportation industry representatives at a conference of the Trans-Missouri-Kansas Shippers Board Wednesday and Thursday at Hotel DeSoto.

Principal speakers will be Harold F. Hammond, executive vice president of the Transportation Association of America, and Eugene W. Coughlin of the Association of American Railroads. Both are from Washington, D.C.

35 OIL STATIONS JOIN IN HOLIDAY PARK-RIDE SERVICE

Thirty-five filling stations in the city and county will begin participation tomorrow in a new Christmas shopping Park-Ride service by providing free parking to Public Service Co. bus riders in outlying areas.

The transit firm said it contacted service station operators along direct Shopper Express and regular bus lines and enlisted their aid in the plan to help ease downtown traffic and parking problems during the shopping season. Participation in the plan, a spokesman said, is on a voluntary basis.

A list of stations is included in a company advertisement on page 15-J of today's Post-Dispatch. Signs will be given to co-operating stations for display, the firm said.

MORE INDICTMENTS EXPECTED THIS WEEK IN TAX INQUIRY

Additional indictments are expected to be returned early this week by the federal grand jury which resumes its inquiry into tax scandals of the Truman Administration tomorrow.

Harry I. Schwimmer, former Kansas City attorney, has been indicted on a perjury charge in connection with his explanation to the jury that a $10,000 payment by Irving Sachs, head of Shu-Stiles, Inc., was a legal fee instead of a fund for bribing public officials. Sachs pleaded guilty of income tax evasion and was fined $40,000 but was spared a prison term for reasons of health.

T. Lamar Caudle, head of the Justice Department's tax division in the Truman Administration, is expected to be called again before the jury this week.

WOMAN BEATEN AND ROBBED OF $790 BY YOUTH IN STREET

Mrs. Louise V. Werner, 5133 Raymond avenue, was beaten and robbed of $790 by a nattily dressed youth shortly after dark yesterday in the 1100 block of Academy avenue, she reported to police.

She was carrying the unusual sum, she explained, because she had planned to pay off charge accounts at several stores and was going home with the money after learning the stores would not be open. Included were Christmas savings and her week's pay as a demonstrator in a store at Grand boulevard and Olive street.

The youth, a Negro, threatened her with a knife, struck her in the head with his fist and, when she continued to cling to her purse after being knocked down, kicked her and dragged her until her purse straps broke. He then ran into an alley, she said.

SCHOOL BONDS WIN ON 4TH VOTE IN VALLEY PARK

The fourth time proved the charm yesterday when Valley Park voters went to the polls in a special election on the city's proposed $130,000 school bond issue. Defeated on three previous occasions this fall, the proposal was adopted yesterday by 50 more votes than the required two-thirds majority.

Complete and official returns showed 708 for the issue and 280 against it. Valley Park Superintendent of Schools George S. Knight said no increase in the present school tax rate of $3.25 for each $100 of assessed real estate valuation would be necessary.

The bonds will permit construction of a four-classroom addition to the Valley Park elementary school and erection of a multiple purpose structure to be used by both the elementary school and Valley Park High School. This building is to include a gymnasium, cafeteria and auditorium.

DRUG STORE OWNER ROBBED OF $240 BY 3 ARMED MEN

Stanley Schneider, proprietor of a drug store at 3359 Clara avenue, was robbed of $240 yesterday by three men who threatened him and a clerk with pistols and emptied the contents of Schneider's billfold, a cash register and a safe in the rear of the store.

Schneider, who lives at 1336 Laurel street, told police one of the men pointed an automatic pistol at him and said, "Come over here, we want your money." A second man threatened the clerk, Ernest Dobkins, 6003 Horton place, while the third ransacked the safe and emptied the cash register.

There were no customers in the store at the time. The robbers got into an automobile after leaving the store and drove away. Besides the money, they took personal papers and an undetermined amount of payroll checks from the safe, Schneider said.

COUNTY POLICE TO LIMIT SERVICE WITH BUDGET CUT

DuBois Says Department Will Not Be Able to Expand or Give Pay Increases.

St. Louis county police can give only "limited" service under the 1956 budget recommended by County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews, Superintendent Albert E. DuBois said yesterday.

Because of severe cuts in the budget, he explained, the department will not be able to increase its size or pay scheduled salary rises. It will have to eliminate a proposed training program and put aside plans for three substations, he pointed out. Also, there will be much less money than DuBois considered necessary for buying new patrol cars and maintaining the ones on hand.

The Board of Police Commissioners submitted a budget of $876,059, and Matthews cut it to $498,970, reducing the total by $377,089.

Final action on the budget by the County Council is expected in January.

Under the county charter, the appropriations for 1956 from the general fund are limited to the amount of revenue actually received in the last preceding completed year, plus any surplus existing at the end of 1955.

The revenue received in 1954, the last complete year, and an estimated surplus for 1955, bring to $4,207,982 the amount available for 1956. Department requests of $5,868,636 were accordingly cut by Matthews to $4,102,483 in order to make provision for an emergency fund of $105,499 as required by law.

DuBois is having difficulty getting council action on a supplemental appropriation for the remainder of this year. He asked for $22,500, including $14,000 for new automobiles and repair of old ones, but Matthews cut the $22,500 to $14,950, leaving only $12,500 for cars, and the councilmen have delayed action on the curtailed request.

All five members of the police board plan to attend the council meeting Wednesday and press for approval of the additional money.

For next year the police commissioners asked for 40 additional patrolmen for outside work, bringing the total to 103. But that expansion was made impossible when Matthews cut the total for salaries from $663,560 to $403,520.

Included in that cut was $4600 for regular salary increases under a schedule adopted by the board.

Another reduction eliminated $27,500 proposed for rental and purchase of supplementary office space, for substations in the northern, western and southern parts of the county, a detention cell for women at Clayton, and two trailers with detention facilities.

Auto Funds Trimmed.

A request for $39,671 to buy new automobiles and accessories was trimmed to $25,000, and a $57,716 total for operating and maintaining a larger fleet of cars was cut back to $26,000.

Also eliminated was a proposal to pay each officer $50 a year as a uniform allowance.

On the reduced supplemental request for $14,950, which Matthews described as the "absolute minimum" to keep the department functioning the remainder of this year, DuBois said he could manage to make out by asking creditors to wait for payment of some accumulating bills.

Fugitive Trapped After 7 Years Tells of Flight, Life in St. Louis

Young Man in Plastering Business Exposed by Fingerprints When Being Inducted for Draft.

Abraham Daugherty Jr., awaiting return to a South Carolina prison farm after seven years of freedom in St. Louis, told a Post-Dispatch reporter in his cell at Police Headquarters yesterday about the prison farm, his escape and his life here.

Daugherty, now 26 years old and a bridegroom of two months, was arrested Friday by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents at the Armed Forces induction station, 3630 Marine avenue, as he waited with a group of other young men for a bus to take them to Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

"The minute they took my fingerprints during the physical exam I knew they'd catch me sooner or later," Daugherty said. He spoke with an air of resignation.

Quit School, Ran Away.

He told of quitting high school in Jacksboro, Tenn., two weeks before he was to graduate, and of running away from home to Spartanburg, S. C.

"I had taken a pistol that belonged to my father and took it into a jewelry store," he related. "I was just trying to sell it, but the man thought I was trying to hold him up and called police."

Daugherty said he pleaded guilty of assault with a dangerous weapon and attempted robbery because "there wasn't any use doing anything else—what could I prove?"

He received concurrent six-year terms and was sent to the Spartanburg county prison farm. This was in May 1948. Thoughts of escape soon were in his mind.

"No man would want to stay there—they treated us like dogs rather than men," he said. Prisoners wore leg shackles at all times and at nights 20 men were chained together in a hut.

Tells of Punishment.

"Our meals consisted mostly of beans, 'fatback' and black coffee," he recalled. "We got no milk and sometimes my stomach felt like it was on fire. If anybody broke the rules he was put in a four-by-four-foot hut, without windows, to sweat it out.

"We worked on roads, cutting back trees, putting in culverts and the like. This went on five months. One day we went into a farmer's barn during a heavy rain and I picked up a hacksaw blade. I broke it in half and hid the pieces in my billfold.

"A few days later, during a rest period in a peach orchard I sawed a rivet loose, then tied the shackle together with a shoestring. An hour later I saw my chance and ran out of sight. I don't think they chased me."

Daugherty said he walked and hitchhiked 200 miles to his home, where he borrowed money from a friend and soon after came to St. Louis—"a big city where you can make your way without being noticed."

Partner in Business.

Also, he had a brother here, with whom he entered partnership in the plastering business in 1951, he said. His family knew about his record, but thought it had been "straightened out."

He met his wife, a part-time waitress, last July and they were married in September. They set up housekeeping in the 3400 block of Wyoming street. Three weeks later he got his notice from the draft board. He did not tell his wife about the prison sentence.

His arrest was on a federal charge of unlawful flight across a state line to avoid prosecution.

"So here I am and I guess I'm on my way back to South Carolina."

Then his face brightened and he added, "The FBI men said that if South Carolina didn't want to spend the money to send for me, I would be released."

MITCHELL IN ILLINOIS RACE FOR GOVERNOR

Ex-Democratic Chairman Attacks Stratton's 'Toll Road Mess.'

DANVILLE, Ill., Nov. 26 (AP)—Stephen A. Mitchell, former Democratic national chairman, jumped into his race for the party's nomination for governor tonight, attacking what he termed "the toll road mess" of Illinois' Republican administration.

A few hours earlier, the 52-year-old Chicago lawyer announced at Paxton, in Ford county, that he would seek the nomination "by every proper means."

Mitchell, the personal choice of Adlai E. Stevenson, former Illinois governor and 1952 Democratic presidential candidate, for the national party chairmanship, served in that post from August 1952 until January of this year.

In his speech at a Vermilion County Democratic dinner, Mitchell tonight charged the administration of Gov. William G. Stratton with "waste and money-politics for the benefit of Republican favorites at public expense" in its policies on toll roads and highways, and in operation of the Division of Public Safety and the state police.

He accused the toll road commission of "low standards, high costs and high-handed disregard of public opinion and the public interests."

"People all over the state," Mitchell said, "are disgusted with Evan Howell's personal extravagances at public expense and his disregard of the rights of individual citizens and the pressing need for economy in road building and financing."

Howell is chairman of the Illinois Toll Road Commission.

Mitchell said "Illinois needs more good roads in the right places much more than the eager toll road syndicate needed high rates. Howell merely spoke vaguely of resigning, but he is still in charge of the toll road mess with the governor's full backing."

Mitchell proposed these programs for Illinois: (1) an aggressive drive to attract new businesses and new industries, particularly in central and southern parts of the state, and (2) reclassification of unfilled low pay jobs in state institutions into half-time jobs to furnish employment to "older people."

Mitchell is the second aspirant to announce for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Earlier this month, Chicago's city treasurer, Morris B. Sachs, said he would seek the nomination "with or without organization support."

PRESIDENT BACKS FOREIGN AFFAIRS PLEA BY GEORGE

which he said he had checked with Mr. Eisenhower.

"Without Partisanship."

The President, Snyder said, "has sought to conduct the nation's foreign policy without partisanship, and he has frequently expressed his appreciation for the statesmanlike cooperation given the Administration by Senator George in foreign affairs."

Asked by the Post-Dispatch if Mr. Eisenhower specifically approved that part of George's remarks referring to non-partisanship no matter which party wins, Snyder replied: "Yes, of course."

The convalescing Chief Executive had a weekend off from official duties in prospect today and tomorrow. No guests were expected at the farm either day, and no official conferences were scheduled, Snyder said.

Mr. Eisenhower transacted a little "routine business" at the farm this morning and dictated for a while to Warrant Officer Helen Weaver, his assistant personal secretary.

Practices Golf Putts.

Later he went out on the new golf green near the house and practiced a few putts, Snyder said.

Mr. and Mrs. Eisenhower do not plan to go to church tomorrow, but the Rev. Dr. Edward L. R. Elson, pastor of National Presbyterian Church in Washington, blessed the farm house yesterday and conducted a short service.

The Rev. Dr. Elson and his wife were luncheon guests at the farm yesterday, together with the Rev. Clyde Raynor Brown, pastor of Gettysburg Presbyterian Church, and his wife.

During the brief service in the living room, Dr. Elson read from the Bible and recited a short poem, "Bless This House," Snyder said. Mr. and Mrs. Eisenhower attend his church when they are in Washington and the Rev. Mr. Brown's church here.

Grandchildren Leave.

The President's son and daughter-in-law, Maj. and Mrs. John S. Eisenhower, and the three young Eisenhower grandchildren returned to their home at Fort Belvoir, Va., late yesterday, ahead of schedule. It had been expected they would stay at the farm until tomorrow.

On Monday, Mr. Eisenhower will begin a heavy work schedule outlined for the next four weeks.

He will confer first with Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell and then will have a frankly political talk with Republican National Committee Chairman Leonard W. Hall. Both conferences were scheduled for Monday morning in Mr. Eisenhower's Gettysburg office.

The Chief Executive will make a short speech to the nation from Gettysburg on Dec. 18, when he pushes a button to light the "Pageant of Peace" Christmas tree in Washington. Announcing plans for the address, Snyder said the message would be broadcast by Mr. Eisenhower in person, not recorded.

ILLINOIS TOLL ROAD FACES TEST IN HIGH COURT

feasibility study had been completed, put forward the idea of financing the three proposed Illinois toll highways in one issue. He said this would make the bonds more attractive to investors.

Legal Device Attacked.

It is this legal device—calling the three roads only one—which is under attack in the Supreme Court on grounds that the Toll Road Act specifies each highway must be financed individually.

Acting for his company, Jamieson managed the giant bond issue, largest single issue ever sold by a United States Government body below the federal level. His firm will share in an $8,000,000 gross profit which will be paid to 565 members of a syndicate organized to sell the bonds to the public.

The bonds, which are tax exempt and are redeemable over a 40-year period from tolls collected on the highways, bear 3.75 per cent interest. They were sold by the commission at a two-point discount, which raises the actual interest paid by the commission to 3.83 per cent.

Investment houses say this is higher than the percentage paid on most toll road issues, but is in line with current market prices.

Motorists to Pay All.

Motorists who use the toll roads and will pay the entire cost of the program, including an estimated total interest on the bonds eventually equaling the $415,000,000 initial cost, will be charged a minimum toll of one and one-half cents a mile. Toll road critics point out that this amounts to an additional gasoline tax of 22½ cents a gallon for those motorists whose automobiles use a gallon of gas to travel 15 miles.

The law specifies that Illinois taxpayers as a whole have no obligation to help retire the bonds, and the toll roads are not planned as a substitute for the state's regular highway.

Knoerle, author of the feasibility report, contracted to make the study for the commission Feb. 20, 1954, less than 11 months after his company, Joseph K. Knoerle & Associates, Inc., was incorporated in Maryland. He has worked for many years for other engineering firms and began his career as an employe of the Missouri Highway Department in the early 1920s.

Contrary to Earlier Findings.

The feasibility report was issued 90 days after the contract was signed. It gave the go-ahead signal for the projected toll roads, although previous independent surveys had resulted in findings that the toll-road principle of providing main highways was not suited to conditions in Illinois.

The commission then contracted further for Knoerle's services. The contract called for his firm to make complete studies, estimates and analyses of five specific highway routes. For these services he was to be paid $50,000 within 30 days and an additional $613,000 contingent on sale of the bond issue.

Knoerle then entered into a financial arrangement with the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co., of Chicago, to which Knoerle assigned his contract. The bank has advanced money to Knoerle from time to time on presentation of toll road commission certificates indicating what percentage of the engineering work has been completed.

$3,000,000 Fee.

Knoerle testified last May before the legislative committee investigating the toll road program that he also expected to be named consulting engineer on the turnpikes at a fee of 1¼ per cent of the construction cost. This fee is estimated in excess of $3,000,000. It is also proposed that his firm be employed on maintenance of the turnpikes at $60,000 a year.

The legislative committee inquired closely into the activities of Jamieson and Knoerle for the toll road commission and a minority report, issued by four Democratic members, was critical of the commission for accepting advice from persons expected to have a financial interest in seeing the program successfully promoted.

Jamieson, who told the Post-Dispatch today he did not consider his role with the toll road commission an "advisory" one in a strict sense of the word, was asked at one of the hearings about his appointment as bond manager in February, 1954, within 16 days after Knoerle had begun his feasibility study.

He said he did not believe this was a strange procedure and that the committee probably would find that it was to the commission's best interest "to have lawyers, engineers and bond people all working in coordination."

Disputes Prejudging Implication.

Jamieson testified he did not believe the early appointment of a bond manager amounted to prejudging the toll road bond issue. This was implied by a committee interrogator, Representative Jack Bairstow (Dem.), Waukegan.

Asked further about this situation today, Jamieson pointed to the fact that the commission had appointed an advisory committee, consisting of three reputable Chicago bankers, to give them the final advice on accepting the bond issue proposal. The committee advised the commission the bond sale, approved Oct. 25 but held up pending disposition of the Supreme Court suits, was a good financial proposition considering today's bond market.

The Illinois toll road program, first broached by Gov. Stratton in his inaugural message in January 1953, was not presented to the Legislature until the 1953 session was nearing an end. The toll road bill, in fact, did not reach the House until the final day and was approved without being referred to committee. There were only five dissenting votes.

Representative Bairstow and other legislators questioned by the Post-Dispatch said they were not aware of some of the provisions of the bill until after the commission had begun to operate. They said they did not know, for instance, that the Legislature would have no voice in how the commission operated.

"They stole our shirts and socks," one legislator said. Representative Bairstow said: "The legislature abdicated."

Asked for Advice.

Looking back to those days in 1953 when the Toll Road Act zipped through the Legislature, the investigating committee attempted to learn who had had a hand in writing the bill.

Jamieson, while denying he had participated in the writing, acknowledged that he once had been asked for advice on a financial point in connection with the bill by Amos H. Watts, member of the Chicago law firm of Chapman & Cutler.

"I talked to as many people as I possibly could, telling them about Glore, Forgan & Co.," he said. "I did talk to Senator (Arthur) Van Hooser, who sponsored the bill, and told him of my interest in this type of finance."

Van Hooser, a Republican from Metropolis, Ill., is no longer a member of the Legislature.

Following the legislative hearings members of the General Assembly introduced a number of amendments which would have curbed the commission's powers, but they were defeated. Then a repealer bill failed to carry in the House by only one vote.

The act was in effect only a few months when the program came under attack.

Secret Meetings Charged.

It was charged that official meetings of the commission were being held in secret and that not all of what went on behind the closed doors was being made public. This was borne out when the legislative committee obtained and made public some documents which had not previously been made available to newspaper men.

Chairman Howell was accused of bringing pressure against individuals opposing the program by complaining to their employers. He later admitted this to the legislative investigators, but made light of the matter, saying his complaints had been registered in an "off-hand" manner.

A storm of criticism followed disclosure that Howell and Jamieson were the prime leaders in organization of the National Turnpike Association, which was incorporated at Springfield Feb. 10, 1954. This was almost a month before Jamieson's appointment as bond manager for the commission.

The association purportedly was designed to serve as a central clearing house for information on toll road matters and also to fight any effort by the Federal Government to take over toll roads.

Howell and Jamieson presented the association's program to a national meeting of toll road officials at Miami, Fla., in March 1954. Howell explained the association proposed to collect $1000 memberships from contractors, material suppliers and investment men interested in toll roads.

Stirs Protests.

This brought protests from toll road representatives of other states. Albert J. Wedeking, chairman of the Indiana Highway Commission, and toll road officials of Maine, Ohio and Florida, said they questioned the propriety of toll road people soliciting funds from business firms intending to do business with them.

The association then became inactive after only about $4800 of a projected $1,000,000 treasury had been collected. Jamieson expressed the opinion he did not believe criticism of the turnpike association relevant, because the association had not planned to give investment advice or engineering services.

As the criticism mounted, the commission continued to push its program. A tentative report by Knoerle which called for construction of four toll highways was received by the commission last November.

Following a subsequent meeting, at which Jamieson advised the commission to abandon a route which paralleled U.S. Highway 40 from near Terre Haute, Ind., to St. Louis and to finance the remaining three highways in one bond issue, Knoerle filed an amended report.

In this report the three highways, all originating in the Chicago area, were designated as "routes" of a single Northern Illinois Highway although they had separate beginnings and endings. This had become necessary, commission members explained, because the Toll Road Act specifies that each toll highway must be financed by a single bond issue.

One of the law suits to be heard by the Supreme Court Tuesday, filed by Edward R. Humrich, Wadsworth (Ill.) architect, alleges that the commission violated the toll road act by contracting to sell one bond issue for three separate highways. The other case, filed by Attorney General Latham Castle to force Orville Taylor, commission secretary, to sign the bonds, holds that a toll highway can consist of any number of routes, not necessarily intersecting.

Taylor had made this suit possible by refusing to sign the bonds when the separate highway issue was raised.

The routes to be built with the $415,000,000 issue include the Tri-State Route, 80 miles long, extending from the Kingery Expressway near the Indiana line in an arc to the Wisconsin border. A major part of this route will be a belt line around Chicago.

The second route, designated the North Illinois route, is 88 miles long and will eventually be connected with Chicago's Northwest Expressway and with U.S. Route 51 near Beloit, Wis.

The East-West Route, initial phase of which will be only 25 miles, will be built from the end of the Cook County Expressway to Aurora. The balance of this route, extending to Moline, is not included in this bond issue.

Members of the commission, in addition to Howell and Taylor, are William Wood Prince, Gov. Stratton and E. A. Rosenstone, state director of the Department of Public Works and Buildings. Stratton, who appointed the committee and passes on its actions, and Rosenstone are members ex-officio. Taylor is a Chicago lawyer and Prince is a Chicago business man and capitalist.

WOMAN DRIVING FOR RED CROSS IS KILLED BY AUTO

Doctor's Wife Had Just Delivered Blood to Hospital — Motorcyclist Loses Leg.

Mrs. Albert Motzel, a Red Cross worker and the wife of a physician, died yesterday a few hours after being struck by an automobile in front of Booth Memorial Hospital, 3740 Marine avenue. She had just delivered a supply of Red Cross blood and was returning to her automobile when hit.

Albert F. Bartsch Jr., of the 2200 block of Alberta avenue, driver of the car, told police he did not see Mrs. Motzel until the impact had occurred. He stopped his machine, he said, and found her on the pavement behind the car.

Mrs. Motzel was 58 years old and lived at 6238 Washington boulevard. She died at City Hospital.

Her husband is a senior instructor in surgery at St. Louis University. Also surviving are three sons, Dr. Albert J. Motzel Jr. of Milwaukee, Wis.; First Lt. L. William Motzel, Biloxi, Miss., and Martin L. Motzel of Kenrick Seminary, five sisters and three brothers.

Funeral services for Mrs. Motzel, a registered nurse who had done volunteer work for the Red Cross for a number of years, will be Wednesday at 10 a.m. at St. Roch's Church, 6052 Waterman boulevard, with burial in SS. Peter and Paul Cemetery.

Loses Leg In Collision.

Richard Gray, 386 Kingston drive, St. Louis county, suffered an amputated left leg when the motorcycle he was riding was sideswiped by an automobile early yesterday in the 200 block of Kingston. The driver of the car surrendered to police later in the day.

Gray's companion, Joseph Niccum, 4131 South Compton avenue, who was riding on the rear of the motorcycle, suffered multiple fractures of the left leg. Both were taken to County Hospital in serious condition. Gray is 20 years old and Niccum is 21.

Paul Henry Deters, 308 Gark avenue, Jefferson Barracks, told police he was driving his car east in Kingston, a four-lane road, and was passing another automobile when he saw what appeared to be another car coming toward him. He said he brushed the oncoming vehicle as it passed. He told police he stopped and looked about but was unable to see any signs of another machine, and left.

Police said the motorcycle continued 145 yards beyond the point of impact, over a rise in the road and into a ditch where it was not visible from the scene of the accident.

A warrant charging Deters with feloniously leaving the scene of an accident was issued yesterday at Clayton by Magistrate Raymond I. Harris. A preliminary hearing was set for Dec. 16.

Robert Ammon, a friend of the injured men, told police he was following them in an automobile. He said the approaching automobile was on the wrong side of the road when it reached the crest of a hill where the accident occurred. He said the car did not stop after the collision and he gave police a description of the machine.

Noticed Blood on Machine.

Deters, a part-time pressman at two newspapers, admitted having several glasses of beer. He told police he was taking a tavern waitress home at the time of the accident. When he got to her home, he said, he examined the car and found it had been dented. Later in the day he found blood on the side of the machine and notified police, he said.

Gray's brother, Charles Gray, was killed last May when his motorcycle collided with an automobile at Lemay Ferry and Buckley roads, Lemay. His cousin, Clarence A. Gray, 2756 Telegraph road, Lemay, suffered injuries to his left hand and arm in a motorcycle-truck accident Dec. 24, 1954.

MRS. ALBERT J. MOTZEL

PAIR MARRIED 50 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Busch, 1520 Linton avenue, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary Tuesday with a mass of Thanksgiving at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church, 2017 East Linton avenue, followed by a breakfast with members of the family. In the evening they will have a reception for relatives and friends at Ivy Halls, 3133 North Grand boulevard.

Busch, 77 years old, was an employe of the Merchants Ice and Coal Co. for 41 years prior to his retirement in 1949. Mrs. Busch is 75. They have one daughter, Mrs. Otto Burian, a son, Vernon, and two grandchildren.

Sports meetings require government permits, and curfew can be imposed and the movement of persons and material restricted.

The British garrison on the island was strongly reinforced in the past few weeks and British troops have been ordered to move about only in groups.

The Cyprus government turned over part of the commercial port of Famagusta yesterday to British naval security forces. Minesweepers will be berthed at the north end of the quay and temporary workshops will be set up.

A Navy spokesman said the move, which will cut the port's commercial capacity slightly, was necessitated by the island's disorders.

Y.M.C.A. GIVES REPORT ON 1955 CAMP ATTENDANCE

A record number of persons attended the Y.M.C.A. Family and Conference Camp, located on Sunnen Lake, 85 miles southwest of St. Louis, last summer, it was announced yesterday by Edmund R. Donk, chairman of the Metropolitan Y.M.C.A. camps committee.

A total of 8635 persons took part in the camp programs. The largest single group attending was the Indian Guides Tribes with 297 fathers and sons.

CERVANTES SAYS BOARD MUST KEEP VETO ON TRAFFIC

Favors C. of C. Plan for Regulation by Experts if Aldermen Have Final Word.

The Board of Aldermen should retain some control over traffic regulation, A. J. Cervantes, chairman of the aldermanic traffic committee, said yesterday in voicing approval of a proposal that a group of experts initiate traffic control measures, as recommended by a Chamber of Commerce committee.

The chamber's traffic committee proposed a city charter provision to take traffic regulatory powers from the Board of Aldermen and give them to a separate commission.

Cervantes, commenting on this proposal, said: "I am definitely in agreement that there should be some sort of professional group to establish traffic regulations.

"The Board of Aldermen is not qualified because traffic control has become a matter for experts. Members of the board do not have the knowledge and training to initiate traffic plans."

However, Cervantes, who is president of Laclede Cab Co. in addition to operating an insurance agency, said he felt the aldermen should pass on any traffic plan recommended by the experts.

Rights of the People.

"Whatever plans are suggested should be presented to the representatives of the public," he told the Post-Dispatch. "We don't want the rights of the people overlooked by any professional group."

Aldermen Anton Niemeyer, vice president of the board, said he felt the aldermen could give up their control over traffic regulations if there was evidence it was being turned over to competent persons.

"I don't believe we should give all this power at once to a commission or a commissioner," he stated. "We should start off gradually, giving a certain amount of authority to see how it is used.

"If we get a good man or commission, I'd be willing to give up all traffic control. I have no desire to retain it."

Niemeyer also suggested that an aldermanic committee be appointed to meet with the Chamber of Commerce on its recommended master traffic plan. He said he would propose at next Friday's meeting of the Board of Aldermen that either a special committee or the traffic committee consult with the Chamber.

Niemeyer, like Cervantes, said traffic control is fundamentally a matter for experts, not aldermen. His only concern, he said, was that persons authorized to make traffic regulations should not abuse the power to the public's detriment.

Charles G. Gonter, city traffic commissioner, said he would not object to establishment of a separate traffic commission provided it had competent and experienced members.

"I'm in favor of all the help I can get," he added.

Indorses Committee Stand.

Gonter indorsed the chamber committee's statement that "traffic is best regulated where the responsible authority is placed in professional and technical hands."

The traffic commissioner said he strongly favored co-ordinated efforts by the city and St. Louis county in traffic matters, saying much could be done to speed movement of automobiles and trucks east and west.

In its report on traffic, the chamber committee recommended that "a proposal be submitted to a board of freeholders for inclusion in a revised charter for the city of St. Louis in the near future to the effect that a traffic commission be established with authority to promulgate rules for traffic control throughout St. Louis."

JOHN L. LEWIS TO APPEAR AT WELFARE FUND INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP) —John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers union, will appear before a Senate labor subcommittee Monday at new hearings on the handling of union welfare funds.

This was announced today by the subcommittee, headed by Senator Douglas (Dem., Illinois), which is resuming a two-year study of administration of the multi-million-dollar insurance and pension funds.

The inquiry is aimed at determining whether legislation is needed to safeguard the funds for their intended beneficiaries, especially since there have been a number of reported diversions to racketeers. President Eisenhower has suggested that Congress study the need for curbs.

Lewis is chairman of the board of trustees of the miners' welfare and retirement fund, as well as president of the union. The fund takes in and spends more than $100,000,000 a year on health, retirement and other benefits, and has approximately $100,000,000 in reserves.

AWARDS TO OPTIMIST CLUBS

Awards will be presented to the Kirkwood and Wellston Optimists Clubs by Dr. Donald J. Twiss, president of Optimist International, at a dinner Thursday at Yacovelli's Restaurant, 717 East Big Bend road, Oakland.

STEVENSON HAS LEAD, MISSOURI DEMOCRATS SAY

However, Party Leaders Expect to Back Symington as Favorite Son.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

Missourians who attended the big Democratic fund-raising meeting in Chicago last weekend to cast an appraising eye on some of the rival candidates for the 1956 Democratic presidential nomination returned home convinced that Adlai E. Stevenson is "way out in front" at this time.

Despite this prevailing opinion, most state Democratic leaders are still predicting that Missouri's delegation to the Democratic national convention next year will back Senator Stuart Symington as a home state "favorite son" candidate for the nomination.

State leaders who went to Chicago had mixed reactions to other matters relating to the presidential race, after taking in the pre-campaign appearances of Stevenson, Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, the "big three" in the Democratic presidential future book.

Nomination Not Wrapped Up.

Although all the Missourians believe that Stevenson, the 1952 nominee, now has a big lead over his rivals, not all are convinced the former Illinois Governor has the 1956 nomination all wrapped up and ready for certain delivery at the Chicago nominating convention next Aug. 13.

Some leaders, including Mark R. Holloran, Democratic national committeeman for Missouri, contend that Stevenson has started with such a big lead, after becoming the first to announce his candidacy, that it will be hard, if not impossible, to head him off.

Others, speaking as experienced politicians, warned that many things could occur within the next 10 months to upset the Stevenson bandwagon. The man in front, they said, faces a tremendous task in beating off all challenges and maintaining his lead. If a convention deadlock should occur, they think Symington might win.

The Missourians generally agreed that Kefauver was the candidate most likely to give Stevenson his most formidable opposition. They also gained the impression in Chicago that Harriman, after an early flurry of activity, has decided not to make an active fight for the nomination and, for the present, is content to accept the backseat role of a "darkhorse" candidate who is available.

Stevenson-Kefauver Ticket?

Holloran, however, said he thinks a Stevenson-Kefauver alliance is a strong possibility. If the Tennessee Senator should accept an offer to run for Vice President on the Stevenson ticket, Stevenson's renomination would be a mere formality next August, he said.

The Missouri national committeeman said he saw a "new" Stevenson in action in Chicago. He said the Illinoisan has learned to reach all the people in his speeches, and under his new experienced political managers should appeal to all the voters if he runs again.

"He's the best man we have to run for President, regardless of whether Mr. Eisenhower tries for a second term," Holloran declared.

Others also expressed the opinion that Stevenson has developed a new campaign technique, to answer the criticism that he spoke "over the heads" of most voters in his 1952 campaign. As one politician put it: "He may have been talking sense, but it was Greek to most people."

William Sermon of Independence, who is becoming an important figure in Missouri politics as a leader of the powerful Kansas City-Jackson county Democratic coalition forces, attended the Chicago meeting with J. Marcus Kirtley, chairman of the Jackson County Democratic Committee.

"A Lot Can Happen."

Sermon agreed that Stevenson is "far in the lead" for the presidential nomination, but added: "While I admire him very much, a lot can happen in the next 10 months."

Kirtley expressed the opinion that it is too early to attempt to predict what may happen next year, saying that "not one of the three can be sure of the nomination this far in advance of the national convention."

Like many other western Missouri Democrats, Kirtley believes the Missouri delegation to the Democratic national convention will back Senator Symington for the presidential nomination. They feel the convention may be deadlocked, giving the Missouri Senator an excellent chance to capture the nomination on a late ballot.

Expects Deadlock.

James H. Meredith, St. Louis attorney who was Symington's campaign manager in the 1952 senatorial races, said he left Chicago with the conviction that a convention deadlock was in the making. He said he believes Kefauver will give Stevenson a "real battle" for the nomination.

"Under the circumstances, I don't see how Missouri Democrats can keep from supporting Senator Symington in the national convention," he said.

State Democratic Chairman Wilbur Daniels of Fayette, another Chicago visitor, shared the view that Stevenson is the leading candidate at this time, but he said he had no idea what might happen next August. He also said the Missouri delegation probably would be boosting Symington for the nomination.

Symington did not attend the Chicago meeting. He said he had planned to go, but was unable to do so because he was suffering from an infected jaw at the time.

TON OF NARCOTICS BOUND FOR U.S. SEIZED IN TURKEY

ROME, Nov. 26 (AP)—Turkish police, with the assistance of United States narcotics agents, have seized more than a ton of illegal narcotics destined for the United States.

Charles Siragusa, United States Bureau of Narcotics district supervisor for Europe and the Middle East, said it was "the biggest seizure with which we have ever been connected in Europe."

Siragusa said agents seized 210 pounds of morphine, 1936 pounds of opium and a complete illegal laboratory for conversion of opium into morphine.

ORDER CONSIDERED ON 'CONFLICT OF INTEREST' CURBS

mission subsequently has announced it will not pay Dixon-Yates any cancellation charges, citing Wenzell's role as the principal reason.

'Conflicting Private Interest.'

Commenting on Wenzell's activities, AEC general counsel William Mitchell said: "It appears that Wenzell, while having a conflicting private interest, acted as one of the principal advisers of the Government in the negotiation and formation of the terms of reference upon which the (Dixon-Yates) contract was founded."

Chairman Cross of the ICC, a former lieutenant governor of Illinois, from Jerseyville, resigned yesterday, and Mr. Eisenhower immediately accepted his resignation.

The Senate Investigations subcommittee had been looking into Cross's role in the awarding of a contract to Railroad Transfer Service, Inc., of Chicago, for bus service between Chicago railway terminals.

The contract, covering transportation of passengers and baggage between the city's eight railroad stations, was held for 102 years by the A. C. Parmelee Co.

Admits 'Indiscretion.'

Cross reportedly told the subcommittee he committed an "indiscretion" in talking to two railroad executives about the contract, but he denied soliciting favorable consideration for the successful bidder.

A committee of railroad executives last spring awarded the contract to Railroad Transfer Service, in which the principal figure is John L. Keeshin.

Cross was reported to have told the subcommittee he interceded on behalf of Railroad Transfer because of his long friendship with Keeshin. He denied he had been offered a job with Keeshin's firm.

Secretary of the Air Force Talbott resigned recently after it was disclosed that he used Air Force stationery to solicit business for an industrial efficiency firm in which he had a financial interest.

Strobel's Activities.

Buildings Commissioner Strobel was questioned about his activities in connection with a New York firm which had government contracts. He said his efforts on behalf of the company, in which he had a financial interest, were carried on during his lunch hours.

The activities of the "WOCs" came under fire earlier this year from a House committee headed by Representative Emanuel Celler (Dem.), New York.

The committee investigation was prompted in part by a General Accounting Office report on Howard I. Young, president of the American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Co. of St. Louis, who served as an unpaid federal official for a time.

Subsequently, the GAO admitted it had made a mistake in at least one part of its critical report on Young's activities, but it said it was not backing down on its other charges that the St. Louis executive interested himself in Government contracts with his private firms.

E. E. Pershall, Hazlewood, board chairman, T. J. Moss Tie and Timber Co. and general chairman of the citizens bond committee.

Edwin J. Spiegel, 35 Berkshire, Richmond Heights, president of Gaylord Container Corporation and executive committee chairman for the citizens bond committee.

Girard C. Varnum, 655 North Kirkwood road, Kirkwood, president, of the County Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the roads subcommittee of the bond issue screening committee.

Matthews said Carl Trauernicht, attorney and bond expert, would be asked to sit with the committee as an adviser.

Other new members named yesterday to the supervisory committee were J. John Brouk, 55 Middlesex drive, Brentwood, screening committee chairman; Charles W .DeWitt, Manchester road, Glencoe; A. J. Pope Changes Timing of Rites On Holy Days Before Easter

Revisions Aimed at Getting More Catholics to Attend—Good Friday Mass 3 to 6 p.m.

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 26 (UP)—Pope Pius XII revised the timing of Holy Week ceremonies today to make it easier for Catholics to get to church on the pre-Easter holy days.

The revision was announced in a decree issued upon the Pope's return to the Vatican from his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo. The 79-year-old Pontiff appeared in excellent health, but was warned by his doctor that he must avoid overworking in the winter ahead.

The Holy Week decree, drafted by the Sacred Congregation of Rites and approved by the Pope, stated in a preamble that the aim of the revision was to combat a situation whereby many churches remain "almost deserted" during the vital rites of Holy Thursday, Good Friday and Easter Saturday.

Afternoon Mass.

The new order goes into effect March 25, 1956, Palm Sunday, which is the first day of Holy Week. Its most important revision was to set Good Friday mass for the afternoon hours between 3 and 6 o'clock, instead of in morning.

The decree said the Good Friday mass should be set as near as possible to 3 p.m., which is the hour Christ is presumed to have died.

The order incorporated detailed instructions to the clergy as to how the Holy Week rites should be performed. It laid down how and when candles should be used, bells tolled and altars and baptismal fonts decorated.

It also urged the clergy to impress upon the faithful the special importance of the Holy Week ceremonies and their significance.

Other Main Revisions.

Other main revisions were:

1. For the complete Holy Week no saint days or other commemorations must be celebrated and there must be no collections in the churches.

2. During the holy triduum (Thursday, Friday and Saturday), a matins and lauds should not be said in anticipation, but on the mornings of the days concerned.

3. The Easter vigil should be celebrated after dark at such an hour as to permit the solemn mass which follows it to start at midnight Easter Saturday.

4. The Lent fasting period is to end at midnight Easter Saturday instead of noon the same day as heretofore.

The preamble said the Pope made the revision in response to repeated appeals for change from bishops and priests.

KARACHI DEMONSTRATORS DEMAND KASHMIR'S RETURN

KARACHI, Nov. 26 (UP)—An estimated 100,000 persons surged through the streets here today, shouting demands for a "holy war" to drive Indian occupation troops out of disputed Kashmir.

The demonstrators marced to a conference hall where Pakistani political leaders were discussing a "national plan" to force India out of Kashmir, and then continued to the tomb of Mohammed Ali Jinnah, founder of Pakistan.

A few persons were slightly injured by stones thrown by street urchins accompanying the demonstrators, but there was no large-scale violence.

ISRAEL BOND DRIVE LEADER TALKS AT DINNER WEDNESDAY

Joseph J. Schwartz of New York, executive vice-president of the State of Israel Bond Drive in the United States, will be guest of honor at a dinner here Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at Hotel Chase.

At the dinner, Nathan Shever will be installed as general chairman of the 1955-56 Greater St. Louis Israel Bond Drive. He lives at 8360 Cornell avenue, University City.

QUADRUPLET GIRLS BORN IN BELLEVUE, O.; ONE DIES

BELLEVUE, O., Nov. 26 (UP)—A set of quadruplets — all girls—was born today to Mrs. Margaret Briehl, 26 years old, wife of a Cleveland engineer. One died 13 hours after birth. The other three were reported "coming along pretty well."

Bellevue Hospital said the babies weigh from 1½ to 3½ pounds.

The first child was born about 12:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Briehl's mother-in-law, Mrs. Martin Briehl Sr., in Bellevue. She was taken to the hospital by ambulance and the other three were born there within the hour.

Mrs. Briehl and her husband, Martin Jr., have one other child, a 15-month-old boy.

Quadruplets occur about once in 650,000 births.

$2000 IN STOLEN GOODS RECOVERED, 3 ARRESTED

Stolen office equipment, tools, cameras and other articles, all valued at about $2000, were recovered by detectives yesterday shortly after the articles were taken in a burglary at the Argo Products Co., 1008 North Twenty-second street.

Three men, Negroes, were arrested. Officers found the goods and the men in a basement in the 5100 block of Cates avenue, in acting on information that some suspicious men were there.

The stolen goods, identified by Arthur Goldstein, the Argo proprietor, included two typewriters, two adding machines, a box of tools, two cameras and a window fan. The men denied that they were the burglars.

Eisenhower Says Politics, Lack Of Cavalry Cost Lee Gettysburg

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 26 (UP) — President Eisenhower, who knows about such things, let it be known today he believes southern politics and absence of his cavalry cost Gen. Robert E. Lee the decisive battle of Gettysburg.

The President advanced his views after learning that reporters here to cover his activities have been debating daily why Lee lost the three-day Civil War battle.

Mr. Eisenhower, once a five-star general, has his home near Seminary Ridge where Lee's 75,000 Confederate troops massed for battle. They were faced by an 88,000-man Union army.

According to Mr. Eisenhower, Lee was forced by political pressures in the Confederate south to take the offensive—and swung his veteran army of northern Virginia up through Maryland into Pennsylvania.

When his troops reached this area, Lee had been out of touch with his calvary general, Jeb Stuart, for eight days. Stuart was the "eyes" of the Confederate force, and in his absence, Lee was "blind" to the strength of the Union army.

Would Have Lost Anyway.

According to Mr. Eisenhower, Lee should have been on the defensive but was pushed into his "tactical mistakes."

Even if Lee had won, Mr. Eisenhower believes, it would not have saved the south from eventual defeat in the war between the states. He feels the north had too much productive power and too much manpower for the south.

The President's views were passed on to reporters by White House press secretary James C. Hagerty, himself a student of the 1863 battle. Hagerty had taken part in some of the reporters' debates and mentioned it to the President on a visit to the farm.

The President, Hagerty said, expressed keen interest in the debate.

"If you think you have arguments," he quoted Mr. Eisenhower as saying, "you should hear the arguments here."

According to Hagerty, debates at the farm run fast and furious, particularly when the President's West Point friends come to visit. The battle of Gettysburg is a classic of military strategy and tactics is studied by every West Point cadet.

Only Perfect Mark.

Mr. Eisenhower, Hagerty said, jokes that the only 100 per cent he ever got as a student was on his studies on the battle of Gettysburg.

The President told Hagerty that before the battle could be properly understood, the student must examine the political pressures put on Lee by his home government at Richmond.

Coupled with Stuart's failure to turn up sooner with the Confederate cavalry, he said, these pressures forced Lee into "tactical mistakes."

The President believes that if Lee had been allowed a choice he would have fought from a defensive position at Cashtown, eight miles west of Gettysburg on the edge of South mountains, a part of the Appalachian chain.

But one of his divisions stumbled on Union troops outside Gettysburg and won an initial advantage. Lee then committed his whole force to the engagement.

U.S. 'PROSPERITY BUDGET' URGED FOR FARMERS

Research Group Says Agriculture Department Should Be Required to Act.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (UP) —The Conference on Economic Development said today the Department of Agriculture should be required to devise a "national prosperity budget" for the nation's 5,000,000 farms.

Most other areas of the national economy operate under such a plan, it said, and farm depressions will continue until the farmers are guaranteed a fair share of the consumer's dollar.

The prvate, non-partisan research organization reported on a long study of the paradox in which farm income has dropped steadily since 1951 while the rest of the nation enjoys booming prosperity. It blamed neither Republicans nor Democrats for the farmer's plight, although each party is blaming the other and will fight it out in the 1956 election.

"Farmers are depressed primarily because of their chronic relative weakness in the market place," it said. "Their organization does not permit them to stimulate consumption or rationalize production and prices and incomes as others do. Trends in food distribution and prices have cut their share of the foodbasket dollar from 51 cents in 1947 to 40 cents now because farm policy is not countering these disabilities."

Prosperity Goals.

The study committee, directed by Leon H. Keyserling, chairman of former President Truman's Council of Economic Advisers, said its proposed prosperity budget would:

"Project ahead, at least until 1960, but with appropriate annual readjustments, inter-related goals for the expansion of domestic food consumption and exports; for corresponding adjustments in production; for the handling of surpluses; for the movement of farm income and living standards toward parity with those of other groups; for strengthening the family-type farm; and for the liquidation of 'mass poverty' in rural areas."

These goals, it said, should be squared with overall full employment goals in which farmers moving off the land would get jobs in other occupations.

The plan would cost about 4 per cent of the federal budget by 1960, the committee said. It suggested the Government start by restoring rigid 90 per cent of parity price supports and other tested devices for some crops, and work from that basis. (President Eisenhower's farm program is geared to flexible supports.)

Income Protection.

As soon as feasible," it said, "price supports should be used in combination with income or production payments. Any workable system of income protection must be meshed with adjustments in acreage and other productive units to feasible levels of consumption. But income protection rather than income penalties are conducive to such adjustments—and much fairer to the farmer."

"All aspects of the farm problem interact upon each other," the committee said, "and any effort to solve one without meeting the others falls of its own weight. Therefore, the study recommends that the Department of Agriculture, working in concert with other agencies, farmers, workers, business men and consumers, be required to develop a national prosperity budget."

Family-Type Farms.

The committee said a million impoverished farms should be eliminated by 1960 and family-type farms increased by 450,000. It also said the trend toward concentration in giant farms should be checked. It said 8,500,000 acres should be removed from production even though food needs will have to be increased 22 per cent by 1960.

Here are the committee's other recommendations: Expand domestic and export consumption of foods; subsidize distribution to the needy; expand the school lunch program; liberalize trade barriers and make more dollars available abroad; a sizable and immediate increase in foreign economic and technical aid, with reductions about 1960; land conservation and establishment of food reserves; strengthen the family-type farm and remove the acute problem of farm poverty; and shift some farmers to non-farm employment.

PAUL CAMPISI TO DELIVER LECTURE ON ITALY TUESDAY

Paul Campisi, associate professor of sociology at Washington University, will deliver the third in the series of four lectures on community problems and social science research at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Women's Building lounge on the university campus.

Campisi, who returned last year from Italy where he spent two years on a Fulbright fellowship, will discuss "The Northern Italian Family—A City-Planning Research Project." The talk, with illustrations, will cover the sociological phase of a project in community planning in Ivrea, formerly a medieval city which now is becoming highly industrialized.

The final lecture of the series, sponsored by the university and open to the public, will be delivered by Harvey Gardiner, associate professor of history, Dec. 15. He will speak on "Great Hates—Old and New" in Louderman Hall auditorium.

SENATORS TO GET ST. CHARLES G.M. INQUIRY EVIDENCE

Two Auto Dealers' Groups Investigate Cancellation of Firm's Franchise.

Testimony obtained by state and national auto dealers' associations on cancellation by General Motors Corp. of the franchises of E. J. Travis, St. Charles automobile dealer, will be turned over to a United States Senate subcommittee investigating the over-all operation of General Motors, it was learned yesterday.

Transcripts of testimony obtained by attorneys for the Missouri Automobile Dealers Association and the National Automobile Dealers Association at a hearing in St. Charles Nov. 18 are to be sent to Senator Joseph O'Mahoney's subcommittee, it was said. The dealers' groups are planning to include the Travis case in a report on a series of allegedly similar incidents for the subcommittee.

When General Motors cancelled the Travis franchises, effective Oct. 31, the corporation said it was for alleged "failure to develop satisfactorily the sale of Buick automobiles in your area of responsibility." The company has declined further comment.

College Head Backs Dealer.

Franc McCluer, president of Lindenwood College, and Mayor Henry C. Vogt of St. Charles were among the citizens who criticized General Motors for revoking the franchise of Travis who sold Buicks, Pontiacs and G.M.C. Trucks at his Travis Service Co. Travis's father also held a Buick franchise from 1906 until the son took over the business.

Mayor Vogt called Travis "Mr. Buick" in praising him as one of the town's foremost business men. At one point in the hearing, Travis held up a silver tray presented to him two years ago for joining the "proud roster of Buick dealers distinguished by their sales achievement for a quarter of a century or more," the inscription read.

Consensus of those who testified at the hearing was that Travis had been a respected, successful and aggressive dealer and that General Motors had no cause to cancel his dealership.

Called 'Shabby Treatment.'

Directors of the Missouri Automobile Dealers Association in a resolution passed at a meeting in Jefferson City Oct. 27, accused General Motors of "shabby treatment" and "mad leadership obsession" in cancelling the Travis franchises. It was the state association that interested the national association in the Travis case. James C. Moore, the national group's general council from Washington, D.C., participated in the St. Charles hearing.

The national dealers organization for two years has been trying to make a major issue of relations between dealers and the corporation, it was said. A statistical study of alleged unfair cancellations of franchises is under way by the national group. Moore told reporters at St. Charles that he believes Travis has a "strong" case.

Travis, who frankly said "there is no hope" of regaining his franchise, told the Post-Dispatch that from November 1954 to last July he sold 25 per cent more automobiles than through the same period a year earlier.

His first complaint from General Motors came in September 1954, he said. A Buick zone manager told him he had "failed to develop satisfactorily the sale of Buick automobiles in your area of responsibility."

Hired Extra Salesmen.

Because of this, he said, he employed two extra salesmen. At no time did he receive complaints from Pontiac or GMC truck officials. He said at no time was his company allocated sufficient Buicks to gain leadership in the field and, he added, "we always had unfilled orders at the zone office."

The cancellation was appealed to General Motors Dealer Mediation Board, top tribunal of the corporation, but it upheld the action.

As the result of the Travis case and others throughout the country, the national dealers' group is trying to get federal laws requiring the reinstatement of territorial guarantees in dealer-factory contracts; "anti-bootleg" laws to prevent dealers from selling surpluses to used-car dealers in competition with regular franchised new-car dealers, and the barring of "phantom freight" charges by the manufacturers.

Meanwhile, Travis is liquidating his business. He said he would have to take "a considerable loss" because of all the special tools and equipment he was required by Buick to have in his garage. He said he has not decided what to do in the future.

BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU RE-ELECTS KELTON WHITE

Kelton E. White, retired investment banker, has been re-elected chairman of the board of the Better Business Bureau of St. Louis, it was announced yesterday.

Other officers elected are K. A. Schrader, vice president of Boyd-Richardson Co., vice chairman; L. M. Stewart, president of L. M. Stewart, Inc., vice chairman; H. W. Riehl, president and general manager of the bureau; S. L. Wisebart, president of the Eagle Stamp Co., treasurer, and C. S. Franke, president of American Furnace Co., secretary.

Polio Ward's Sharp Lad May Get High Court's Scissors Business

Chief Justice Promises to Try to Throw Some Work to Enterprising Young Patient.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP) —If the Supreme Court finds itself without scissors, it may be because Chief Justice Earl Warren has sent them all out to be sharpened.

The Chief Justice spotted a home-made sign while visiting the polio recovery section of Children's Hospital last night with Mrs. Warren.

The sign read: "Scissors Sharpened. 10 Cents."

In the room behind the door on which the sign was posted was Sam Goode, 9 years old, ready for business. He had just received a toy sharpener to help him while away the hours it takes to recover from infantile paralysis.

"My, my, I'll have to see if I can't find some scissors that need sharpening," said the Chief Justice.

The Chief Justice and his wife, whose youngest daughter once suffered polio, went to the hospital in connection with the coming drive in support of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Warren is honorary chairman of the District of Columbia 1956 March of Dimes.

In the therapeutic ward a 6-year-old girl commanded the Warrens "to watch and see—I can walk."

Steadying herself on her braces, Evelyn Seay walked about 10 feet between two parallel bars, a hand on each.

"Fine," encouraged the Chief Justice.

Mrs. Warren, watching with Miss Edith A. Torkington, hospital administrator, and Mrs. Marjorie Magmire, head physiotherapist, murmured, "I remember . . ."

What she remembered were the first steps taken in similar circumstances by the Warrens' daughter, Nina (Honey Bear), 22, who was married last month to Dr. Stuart Brien, Beverly Hills (Calif.) physician.

Honey Bear, then 17, was stricken with polio in the final days of Warren's third successful campaign for Governor of California.

The night of the election Warren stayed at her bedside. She was barely conscious and paralyzed from the waist down.

"She was in a hospital for weeks and it was nearly a year before she could walk," said Mrs. Warren. But her recovery was complete.

Weather Hits Mexican Cotton.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 26 (AP) — Fall hurricanes and heavy rains cost Mexico's cotton farmers a loss of more than 100,000 bales valued at $11,000,000. The total crop, minus the losses, will run about 1,900,000 bales. Cotton is Mexico's major agricultural export.

ANTON C. PEGIS TO GIVE GABRIEL RICHARD LECTURE

Anton C. Pegis, author and director of the new Catholic textbooks department of Doubleday Doran Co., will deliver the annual Gabriel Richard lecture at 4 p.m. next Sunday in the gymnasium of St. Louis University. He will discuss "Christian Naturalism as the Basis of Catholic Education."

A former philosophy instructor at Marquette and Fordham Universities and former president of the Pontifical Institute of Medieval Studies at Toronto, Pegis edited the two-volume edition of "The Basic Works of St. Thomas." His writing include "St. Thomas and the Greeks" and "St. Thomas and the Problem of the Soul in the Thirteenth Century."

The Gabriel Richard lecture series, sponsored by the National Catholic Education Association, is held to honor the Sulpician priest who was cofounder of the University of Michigan and its first vice president. He was the only priest to serve in Congress.

Record Tourist Year in Italy.

ROME, Nov. 26 (AP)—Italy is heading for another record-breaking tourist year. The state tourist agency announces that in the first nine months 9,300,493 foreigners crossed the borders. In all of 1954, when all previous marks were exceeded by 20 per cent, 9,327,512 tourists were recorded.

TELLS OF EXPANDING INTEREST IN MUSIC

Educator Says, However, Opportunities for Professionals Are Declining.

There is an expanding musical consciousness and interest in the United States today, coupled with constantly diminishing opportunities for the performing musician, Harrison Keller, president of the National Association of Schools of Music, said here yesterday.

To resolve this conflict on a basis of stability, Keller urged civic financial support of symphony orchestras, adding that the need for professional musicians must be based on the number and quality of the listening audience. An orchestra should not be maintained where there is no appreciative audience for it, he explained.

Parley Ends.

The association, composed of 225 universities, colleges and music schools, concluded its thirty-first annual two-day meeting yesterday at Hotel Jefferson. It was founded in 1924 to establish higher objectives in music education and has been made responsible for approval of music standards nationally.

Keller, president of the New England Conservatory, Boston, took issue with a recent statement by James C. Petrillo, president of the AFL American Federation of Musicians, that parents should not rear their children to be professional musicians or "the kids will starve."

Perhaps the schools are channeling too many students into the field of professional performing music while a demand exists for them in allied fields, such as music education, Keller said. A more stringent screening of students is needed, he added.

The present collaboration between schools and symphony orchestras, permitting the musician to maintain the dual role of teacher and performer, is one of the few supports for such orchestras, he said.

Financial Rewards.

Those who exploit music, such as radio and television, obtain far greater financial reward than the musicians, who are the only ones capable of "bringing it to life," he said.

Music educators are concerned with the diminishing amount of fine music on radio and television, Keller added.

Dr. Howard Hanson, widely-known American composer, who is director of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y., cautioned the music educators that the arts have been in a state of decline in this age of science.

"This, of course, includes our own art, which is music," he continued. In time, however, music and the other arts will begin a comeback because the pure sciences do not provide for mankind the spiritual elevation that the arts do, Hanson said.

E. William Doty of the University of Texas, Austin, was elected president of the association for the coming year.

NOMINATIONS BEING TAKEN FOR OUTSTANDING YOUNG MAN

The St. Louis Junior Chamber of Commerce is accepting nominations for the designation of St. Louis's Outstanding Young Man, it announced yesterday.

The group annually presents an award to a St. Louis resident between 21 and 35 years old who is judged to have made a community contribution through achievement and personal example.

Any individual or organization wishing to do so may submit a nomination, with a resume of the candidate's qualifications, to the Junior Chamber, 224 North Broadway, by Dec. 10.

FUND WORKERS TOLD TO MISS NO CALLS

Volunteers Urged to Resolicit Areas Where Some Persons Were Missed.

Volunteer workers in the United Fund campaign were directed yesterday by William A. McDonnell, general chairman, to "make every call and we'll make the goal." The extended drive entered its final week yesterday for financial support of 114 health, welfare and character-building agencies.

"In the week ahead each worker must make it a matter of conscience to see all firms and individuals where giving has not been completed," McDonnell said. "He should resolicit his area where indicated and make personal callbacks on those who were missed.

"Only this will give us the additional dollars that will mean a victory for our community in its first United Fund campaign. I am sure all of our volunteers realize that these are crucial days for the United Fund agencies dependent upon us."

Workers in the fund drive last Tuesday reported contributions totaling $7,256,644, or 88 per cent of the goal, $8,245,925.

Only by the volunteers making the most valuable use possible of the time between now and the new deadline, Dec. 5, can a victory be assured, McDonnell declared. The drive began Oct. 20 and originally was scheduled to end last Tuesday.

Firms which recently increased their contributions over last year's donations, McDonnell said, include: American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Co. and employes, $13,600, a 30 per cent increase; Carondelet Foundry Co. and employes, $6335, 61 per cent; American Sheet and Strip Steel Co., $526, a 70 per cent increase.

Jackes Evans Manufacturing Co. gave a corporation gift of $2500, a 19 per cent increase over last year, and employes of the company pledged $4394, a 195 per cent increase.

4 TENNESSEE WOMEN KILLED WHEN TRAIN, AUTO COLLIDE

SWEETWATER, Tenn., Nov. 26 (AP)—Four Sweetwater women were killed today when their automobile was hit by a Knoxville-bound freight train at a crossing here.

Police Chief Walter Thomas listed the four victims as Mrs. William Albert Frye, 33 years old; Mrs. Raymond Queen, 25; Mrs. Vera Chastain Hayes, 45, and Mrs. Dorothy O. Swafford, 28.

He said the four women had just finished working the night shift at a textile mill and were en route home. Thomas said apparently the windshield of the automobile was covered with frost, hampering the visibility of the driver, Mrs. Hayes.

MIRACLE HEARING AID INVENTED BY ENGINEER

NO CORD!

Worn Entirely in the Ear

Audiphone Company Exclusive! A completely new type of hearing device has been announced by Mr K. A. Dahlberg, president of hearing aid manufacturing firm bearing his name.

This new "Miracle Ear" can be worn in the ear, he said. There are no cords, wires or tubes in any manner connected with the device, and the complete unit weighs less than ½ ounce.

Mr. Dahlberg added that no longer do the hard of hearing have to put up with bulky batteries or headbands. It absolutely eliminates clothing noise because there is nothing at all worn in the clothes.

It is truly a miracle ear, and for the first time true, panoramic hearing is possible, eliminating the blind spots in hearing.

Mr. Dahlberg continued that this is something for which hard-of-hearing people have waited a long time, and states that his company is proud to be the first and only company to offer this electronic miracle to the hard of hearing.

Helicopter Rescues 21 From Ship Grounded on Reef in Storm

Operation Made Dangerous for Flyers by Cliffs 25 Feet Away and 35-Mile-an-Hour Winds.

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 26 (UP) —Twenty-one men stranded for 28 hours aboard a grounded, blizzard-lashed tanker only 25 feet from the rugged Cape Breton cliffs were rescued by a helicopter today. The perilous operation took only 45 minutes.

The helicopter ran a shuttle service between the Liberian tanker Kismet II and an emergency rescue station on the snowbanked shore.

It hovered mothlike over the 2800-ton vessel in 35-mile-an-hour winds as waves inched the ship closer and closer to the deadly sharp-edged rocks at the bottom of the rock walls on the northeastern tip of Cape Breton.

The men, who had clung to ropes and every available object during their ordeal, were plucked one by one from the ship. A rope was lowered and the men pulled into the safety of the 'copter's cabin.

On the first trip, the helicopter took four men. Then it successively rescued six, six and five, leaving the ship abandoned. All the men were reported to be in good condition.

Rescuers reached the cliff edge with the aid of snowplows. Lt. Cmdr. John H. Beaman of Montreal piloted the Royal Canadian Navy helicopter with the aid of Lt. Cmdr. Roger Fink of Edmonton.

Rescue officials said the mission was a dangerous one and that one false move might have spelled doom for the helicopter.

After the message "successful operation" was sent out shortly after 8:30 a.m. the helicopter took off for Sydney, N. S. It ran out of gasoline half way and a police car had to rush fuel so it could complete the trip.

The Kismet ran aground on reefs about 300 yards from shore in a dense fog and high winds early yesterday while sailing from Philadelphia to Summerside, Prince Edward Island, with a general cargo.

A near-hurricane and driving snow prevented the helicopter from rescuing the crew yesterday. Fearing the ship would break up on the rocks, officials brought in breeches buoy equipment from Halifax by airplane and truck. Two lines were strung from the cliffs to the ship but they were not strong enough to pull the men up the rock walls, which tower from 350 to 1000 feet above the water.

The crewmen clung desperately to their precarious perch and waited in cold and darkness through the night. The ship's battery and generator were dead and the holds gradually filled with water.

The weather cleared just before daybreak, which enabled the use of the helicopter instead of the breeches buoys in rescuing the men.

FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW FOR SISTER MARY DOMINIC

Funeral services for Sister Mary Dominic, member of the Sisters of St. Mary for 64 years, will be at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow in the chapel of St. Mary of the Angels Motherhouse, 1100 Bellevue avenue, Richmond Heights. Burial will be in Resurrection Cemetery.

Sister Dominic, 81 years old, died yesterday at St. Mary's Hospital of complications resulting from a hip fracture suffered when she fell at the convent about four months ago. She entered the order at St. Mary's Infirmary here in 1891 and made perpetual vows in 1900. The former Elizabeth Sanders, she was administrator at St. Joseph's Hospital, St. Charles, from 1902 to 1908 and served in the same capacity from 1908 to 1910 at the old St. Mary's Hospital, Chillicothe, Mo.

She had been stationed for the last 45 years at the Motherhouse convent, where she was inactive because of illness. Surviving are a sister, Sister Mary Gaudentia, also of the Sisters of St. Mary at St. Joseph's Hospital, St. Charles, and a brother, Harry J. Sanders, Oakland, Calif.

4 NEW DELEGATES NAMED TO EDUCATION CONFERENCE

Four new Missouri delegates to the White House Conference on Education, which will begin tomorrow, were named by Hubert Wheeler, state commissioner of education, to replace delegates who have said they will be unable to attend the meetings in Washington, D.C.

Replacement delegates are the Rev. Paul C. Reinert, S.J., president of St. Louis University; L. J. Dierker of St. Louis, superintendent of Lutheran schools in the state; State Senator Michael Kinney and State Senator Hartwell G. Crain of St. Louis county.

They replace State Senator Floyd R. Gibson of Independence; State Representative Frank L. Mickelson of Freeman; Mrs. Charles A. Shaw, wife of a Clayton attorney, and C. W. Sheppard of Warrensburg. The Rev. James T. Curtin, superintendent of Archdiocesan high schools in St. Louis will attend the meetings as a special delegate at the invitation of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

IRISH RAIDERS BOMB BARRACKS; REPULSED

Policeman Wounded in Furious Fight; Terrorists Get No Arms, Lose Some.

BELFAST, Nov. 26 (UP)—A heavily-armed raiding party, believed to be members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, crossed the border before dawn today and bombed a police station in Northern Ireland in an unsuccessful attempt to seize arms.

Several constables, aroused from their beds above the station, beat off the raiders in a furious exchange of fire.

One policeman was shot seven times during the exchange. His condition was described as "serious." It was not known whether the raiders suffered any casualties.

Authorities said the raid, on a lonely barracks just a mile from the Irish border, had all the trademarks of the I.R.A., which is dedicated to the use of violence to force the withdrawal of Britain from Northern Ireland and secure unification of the Irelands under one government.

The I.R.A. denied it had any connection with the raid, however. A statement issued in Dublin by the "general headquarters of the Irish Republic Army" said no member of the I.R.A. was involved. The statement, circulated to Dublin newspapers, was signed "D. MacDiarmada, adjutant general."

The I.R.A. struck last on Aug. 13 when 20 armed raiders attacked a British army depot at Arborfield in England and escaped with quantities of arms. Three I.R.A. men were sentenced to life imprisonment for their part in the raid.

Police said part of today's 10-man party stood guard on a nearby hill while other raiders planted a bomb that blasted a huge gap in the barracks wall and split the two-story structure from base to roof. Before the smoke cleared, police said, the raiders swept into the station and shouted for the surrender of the six-man garrison.

Five constables and the garrison sergeant rushed out of their sleeping quarters shooting. They forced the raiders to retreat.

The fight raged 15 minutes before the raiders jumped into two cars and fled across the border. They not only failed to obtain police arms, but they left behind weapons and supplies of their own.

The explosion roused villagers from their beds in nearby Rosslea, 500 yards from the barracks.

After the attack, authorities swept down on the homes of suspected I.R.A. sympathizers seeking information on the raiders. However, a house-to-house search apparently failed to turn up any suspects.

GAS PRODUCERS CITE MARK-UP BY UTILITIES

Product Sold at Well for 7.7 Cents Brings $2.31 in Brooklyn.

DALLAS, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association suggested today that users of natural gas in eastern states "look closer to home for explanation of their fuel bills."

President French Robertson of the association said "a group of big utilities who are looking for whipping boys on which to blame their high prices are now out in the open opposing independent producers of natural gas in their fight for freedom from federal price fixing."

Robertson in a statement referred to Thurday's announcement that 35 major gas distribution companies in the East have banded together to oppose the Harris-Fulbright bill to exempt natural gas producers from federal regulation.

"Consumers in the thickly populated states of New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey can brace themselves for some of history's greatest utility-inspired economic demagoguery and double-talk," said Robertson.

"Here is the question utilities will have to answer: Why are gas bills so high when the producer's share is so low?

"Brooklyn Union Gas Co. charges its customers $2.31 per thousand cubic feet. The Independent Gas Producers gets 7.7 cents per thousand. Consolidated Edison Co. charges its New York City customers $2.42 per thousand cubic feet for natural gas which is bought from the producers for 7.8 cents per thousand. New Jersey Public Service Electric and Gas Co. charges its Newark, Camden and Trenton customers $1.96 per thousand on gas for which the producer received 8.6 cents per thousand. In each case the gas is hauled some 1800 miles by pipelines for a cost of 25 cents per thousand or less."

Robertson said "the utilities have revealed their tactics with the untruthful statement that the Harris bill will allow producers to charge what the traffic will bear. The bill specifically sets up procedures to determine reasonable market prices where the producer sells his gas. . . . The Harris bill which they oppose gives the Federal Power Commission several consumer-protection clauses for checking prices paid the producer for his gas, but these utilities seek to put a price freeze on the producer, leaving themselves free to romp through the consumer's pocketbook from here on out. They got themselves out from under federal jurisdiction on their prices in the preceding Congress with the Hinshaw bill."

The Harris bill has passed the House and the measure will be sponsored by Senator William Fullbright (Dem.), Arkansas, in the Senate when Congress reconvenes.

MRS. WOODWARD TO TAKE VACATION IN SECLUDED SPOT

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (UP)—Mrs. Ann Woodward, whom a grand jury voted not to indict in the fatal shooting of her turfsman husband, is making plans for a vacation in some secluded place where she "can forget all about" the tragedy, friends said today.

A Nassau county grand jury of 17 men and five women reached its decision not to indict her on the first ballot last night after 25 minutes of deliberation. A juror said the vote was not unanimous but there were more than the 12 necessary votes to clear Mrs. Woodward of an indictment.

The 39-year-old Mrs. Woodward remained in the care of her physician today at her town house here. A member of her family said she was "feeling much better" this morning. She was hysterical and barely able to walk last night after sobbing out the story of how she shot William Woodward Jr., 35, to the grand jury. The tragedy occurred Oct. 30 in the Woodward's darkened Long Island home where the couple slept with weapons at their sides in fear of a prowler.

NEGRO LEADER IN MISSISSIPPI SHOT, WOUNDED

Ex-President of N.A.A.C.P. Chapter Says White Men Fired at Him From an Auto.

BELZONI, Miss., Nov. 26 (AP)—A Negro active in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said today he was shot by white men who fired from an automobile parked outside his rural grocery last night.

Gus Courts, 65 years old, a former president of the Belzoni chapter of the N.A.A.C.P., told physicians in a Mound Bayou hospital he was shot by "some white men" and that they fled in an automobile. Courts said he did not recognize them.

In New York City, N.A.A.C.P. Executive Secretary Roy Wilkins made public a telegram to Attorney General Herbert Brownell, in which Wilkins said that the attack on Courts "fits the pattern of violence and murder in Mississippi openly designed to deprive Negro citizens of their civil rights . . . it seems incredible that our Federal Government can and does act promptly in any foreign country to protect American citizens but appears impotent when citizens within the United States are ruthlessly shot and murdered for no crimes except insistence upon their citizenship rights."

'Whisked to Hospital.'

Humphreys county sheriff Ike Shelton said friends and neighbors of Courts "whisked him to the Mound Bayou hospital instead of to one a block and a half away before I could question him."

The sheriff said a Negro woman customer told him she saw "one man, either a light Negro or a white man, in the driver's seat" of the gunman's car.

At Mound Bayou, an all-Negro community in Bolivar county, 50 miles north of Belzoni, Dr. J. R. Henry, chief surgeon at the hospital, said Courts was conscious but in serious condition following an operation. He said he removed two flattened pieces of metal, one from Counts left arm and one from his abdomen.

The physician said Courts told him he and his wife were standing by the cash register when an automobile containing white men stopped outside the window. Suddenly two shots rang out and Courts slumped against the cash register.

Previous Center of Controversy.

Belzoni, a town of 4000, mostly Negroes, in Mississippi's rich, agricultural delta, was the center of a controversy over the death of the Rev. George W. Lee, a Negro minister and N.A.A.C.P. leader, earlier this year.

The Rev. Mr. Lee died in May following an automobile accident. However, two Negro physicians, Dr. C. C. Battles of Indianola and Dr. Cyrus Waldin of Yazoo City, and a Negro dentist, Dr. A. H. McCoy of Jackson, reported they found lead pellets in Lee's face.

N.A.A.C.P. leaders, including Dr. McCoy who was president of the state organization, insisted Lee had been shot. Witnesses testified at the coroner's inquest they thought they heard shots shortly before the accident.

The coroner's inquest returned no decision. No arrests were made.

Later in the summer, Courts charged whites were applying economic pressure by increasing his rent to force him out of his grocery for advocating Negro voter registration in Humphreys county. He moved across the street.

MRS. VERA D. BUCHANAN DIES, CONGRESSWOMAN

McKEESPORT, Pa., Nov. 26 (AP)—Representative Vera D. Buchanan (Dem.), Pennsylvania, 53 years old, died today in McKeesport Hospital of cancer. She had been a patient at the hospital since being transferred from the Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md., Aug. 25.

Mrs. Buchanan, widow of Democratic Representative Frank Buchanan, was first stricken in late June while attending a session of Congress.

She had served in the House of Representatives since Aug. 1, 1951. She was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of her husband. Shortly after she took the oath of office, the House named her to its Veterans Affairs Committee. She was re-elected to the Eighty-third Congress and was a firm supporter of the Truman Administration.

She and Democratic Representative Leonor K. Sullivan of St. Louis, Mo., shared a housekeeping apartment in Washington.

STRIKERS PLAN TO PICKET UNORGANIZED SHOE PLANTS

Striking CIO and AFL shoe workers plan to extend their picket lines tomorrow to unorganized and subsidiary plants of International and Brown Shoe companies.

Meetings of the AFL Boot and Shoe Workers and the CIO United Shoe Workers were held yesterday and union leaders explained the picketing plan. There are 26,000 workers of the two companies on strike. They walked out three weeks ago.

Identical offers from the two companies for a two-year contract and wage increases of 5½ per cent the first year and 2½ per cent the second have been rejected by both unions. The strikers are demanding an 8 per cent increase the first year and a 4 per cent increase the second year, with provisions in the contract for establishment of a pension system.

U.S. Says It Can Use Patented Typewriter Keyboard Free

Asserts Veteran's Extension of Rights to Invention Does Not Apply to Government.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP) —The seesaw over the patent to the simplified keyboard for typewriters, now being tested by the Government, tipped to the Government today.

A spokesman for the General Services Administration, the governmental housekeeping agency, said that even if the inventor apparently does hold a patent, the Government is exempt from paying royalties.

It came about this way:

The Government, which uses about 800,000 typewriters, announced it was trying out the new keyboard.

A check of records showed the patent has expired.

Then the inventor, August Dvorak, director of research at the University of Washington, said he had obtained a patent extension under laws granting such rights to veterans.

The Government dug further and said today Dvorak apparently was right.

But the GSA spokesman quoted the law as saying that when patents are extended in such cases "the rights of the United States shall remain in all respects as if such patent had not been extended."

He added that presumably Dvorak would be entitled to financial benefits from use of the keyboards by private industry during the extension of the patent. The spokesman said he believed the extension runs until 1959.

150 AT WASHINGTON U. FROM OUTSIDE CONTINENTAL U. S.

A total of 150 students from outside continental United States are currently enrolled in Washington University, it was announced yesterday.

The students, composing 1.2 per cent of the university's total enrollment of about 12,800, represent 37 countries and Hawaii and come from every continent except Australia.

Hawaii, with 36 students, is the most represented followed by India, Greece and Formosa, respectively.

PIANIST MALCOLM FRAGER WINS GENEVA COMPETITION

Malcolm Frager, 20-year-old University City pianist, was piano winner in the Geneva International Music Competition held in Geneva, it was announced yesterday. He performed in a series of recitals through Switzerland under the auspices of that country's Jeunesses Musicales which has more recently sponsored recitals for him in Germany. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Frager, 8145 Balson avenue.

The Swiss newspaper Jurassienne Moutier Tribune described young Frager as an expert conversationalist in French, German and Russian who plays piano like an angel and sometimes like a demon!"

The pianist, heard on numerous occasions in St. Louis since he was 6 years old, won the Prix d'Excellence in 1952 at the Conservatoire Americain in Fontainebleau, France. He made his Town Hall debut in New York in 1952 and last March played there at Carnegie Recital Hall.

Will Propose Safety Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (UP) —Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem.), Minnesota, said today he would introduce legislation next year to create a federal safety and fire prevention bureau. He said the agency would co-ordinate all federal activities in this field with a goal of reducing "the appalling number of injuries and the accompanying dollar losses" due to fires and accidents.

NEW KETC PROGRAM CHIEF STATES POLICY

Will Emphasize In-School and College of Air Training and Community Service.

KETC will emphasize development of in-school programs, its College of the Air plan and adult community service programs in that order, George L. Arms, new operations manager of the educational television station, told the Post-Dispatch yesterday.

"We know the achievements and aims of systematic televised instruction," he declared. "The possibilities for non-instructional programming are so vast we will have to move more carefully in that field."

He expects to put a new program schedule into effect Feb. 2, offering a minimum of 30 hours of program weekly. Now the station is on the air about 21 hours each week. Last spring it presented up to 34 hours of programs weekly.

A former commercial television producer and teacher, Arms came to St. Louis from KUHT, Houston, where he helped develop the first educational television station in the United States.

At KETC the 39-year-old Arms is responsible for programming. Arthur H. Compton, appointed executive director of the station last month, is responsible for station financing and policy.

Channel Nine is now operating on a budget of $250,000 for the year, he said, adding he hoped $50,000 in special gifts would permit plant improvements. Last year's budget was approximately $300,000.

In discussing evening programs, around which budget controversy has centered, Arms declared, "Programs costing $50 and $500 are often equally valuable." He said KETC's present budget limits it to less expensive programs, but hopes its income will gradually increase so that it can offer a wider variety of programs.

"Our staff's ideas are not rigidly fixed, and we have many ideas we hope to try out," he said. "Audience reaction to program ideas, shown in the number and seriousness of listeners, will determine how successful they are."

Arms hopes the station will be watched by several hundred thousand persons each week. "We're not trying to attract all the viewers all the time, like a commercial station," he said.

The aim of KETC is to offer special programs for those with special interests, like reading, gardening, job training and art, he stated. Telecasts of elected bodies, which he hopes to schedule, can attract at least 150,000 viewers, Arms believes.

"The importance of KETC will be judged by the financial support and respect it commands from St. Louisans," he emphasized.

He announced appointment of two new members of the staff. Larry Gallagher, assistant staging director of KUHT, Houston, has been named staging director here to replace an interim appointee. Harold Barron, a staff director at KUHT, has been hired as a director. Both will assume their new posts within two weeks, he said.

JET'S WING TANKS FALL ON TOWN, NO ONE IS HURT

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 26 (AP)—Two wing tanks from a Delaware Air National Guard Sabre jet plane fell in Newport, Del., today, damaging one building but injuring no one in the community of 4000.

One of the tanks, containing 60 gallons of high-octane gasoline, struck the roof of a store building. Among those in the structure were Mrs. Ever H. Alexander and her small daughter; Esther Budd, operator of the ground-floor beauty shop, and several patrons.

The tank burst as it struck the building and penetrated the wall. A spokesman for the 142nd Fighter-Bomber National Guard squadron at New Castle county airport said it was "almost unbelievable" that no fire resulted from the accident.

Loraine Seaton, who occupies an adjoining apartment, said "everything seemed to be coming apart.' She along with the others fled to the street.

The second tank landed in a vacant lot. The area was roped off while firemen wet it down to prevent a fire.

The Air National Guard spokesman said it has not been determined why the tanks dropped from the jet being flown by Lt. James Scott, Bridgeville, Del.

ROMULO TO TALK TUESDAY AT U.N. ANNIVERSARY DINNER

Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine ambassador to the United States and permanent United Nations representative for his country, will be guest speaker Tuesday at a U.N. tenth anniversary dinner given by the United World Federalists of Greater St. Louis.

The dinner will be at 7:15 p.m., following a reception, at Hotel Chase. It originally was scheduled for Oct. 18, but was postponed when Gen. Romulo was required to attend a U.N. General Assembly on that date.

The speaker will present his view of the future role of the international organization and world disarmament.

EXHIBIT SATURDAY FOR SCIENCE FAIR

St. Louis U. Display Designed to Stimulate Ideas for Annual Event.

A display of science demonstration projects for the 1956 Greater St. Louis Science Fair will be given at the St. Louis University Medical School, 1202 South Grand boulevard, next Saturday, from 9 a.m. until noon.

Purpose of the half-day meeting is to stimulate ideas among science teachers and students for projects for the annual fair. All students and teachers, from sixth through twelfth grades, are invited to attend.

The meeting is sponsored by St. Louis University. Co-operating faculty members, and the subjects about which they will give demonstrations, are:

Albert J. Frank, geology; John D. Dwyer, biology; Lyman J. Wood, chemistry; Kenneth G. Brill, geology; Anthony G. Rouse, physics; John W. Conoyer, geography; Carl Kisslinger, geophysical engineering; Gerald E. Dreifke, electrical engineering; James R. Stinson, meteorology; Thomas Harrington, aeronautics.

The fair, sponsored by the Post-Dispatch in co-operation with Washington University, will be held April 16-20.

PAIR MARRIED 50 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Prouhet, McKelvey road, Robertson, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary last night with a family gathering at the home of their son, Omer Prouhet, Pattonville.

The pair has five children and 13 grandchildren. Prouhet still does some work on his farm. He is 78. Mrs. Prouhet is 75.

CARE BOOTH TO BE SET UP AT SCRUGGS IN CLAYTON

A special CARE booth will be set up for the holiday season at the Clayton store of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney, it was announced yesterday.

"The special booth is in answer to numerous requests," Frank M. Mayfield, chairman of the St. Louis CARE Committee, said. "Such service at the Christmas season puts emphasis upon the 'Food Crusade' which sends Government surplus abroad in $1 units," he said.

Volunteers will man the booth during the peak shopping hours and self-service forms will be available during the rest of the day. A regular booth is maintained at the department store downtown.

BUCKMINSTER FULLER TO BE AT WASHINGTON U. 3 WEEKS

R. Buckminster Fuller, architect, engineer and designer, will return to Washington University Nov. 30, for a three-week period of teaching and directing students, Dean Buford L. Pickens of the School of Architecture announced yesterday.

Last year Fuller directed the construction on campus of a light-weight geodesic dome structure, 42 feet in diameter. He has originated the principle of geodesic design, which he said provides lightweight, simply-constructed buildings in a globe-like shape.

A lecture on "Design Science Strategy" will be given by Fuller Dec. 8 in Louderman auditorium.

HOUSE WITH NO ADDRESS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 26 (UP)—Mrs. William H. Stimpel, not an amnesia victim, asked Allegheny county commissioners today to tell her where she lives. She said her family built a house in 1951 on a road which since has been abandoned and stripped of its name.

"Even the milkman and delivery trucks get lost trying to find where we live."

SOUTH TO HOLD TO IN-STATE BUS SEGREGATION

ICC Ruling Complicates Enforcement —Texas Indicates It Will Go Along.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 26 (AP) —Southern champions of racial segregation today generally viewed the desegregation ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission as complicating their task but pledged themselves to stand firm in their position.

Most of them conceded that there was little if anything they could do to prevent application of the ICC degree on trains and busses operating from one state to another, but they contended that separation of the races in transportation within the states would be continued.

Comment from six of 13 states having transportation segregation laws—Alabama, Georgia, the Carolinas, Mississippi and Louisiana—followed this line.

But Texas sources said the Jim Crow law had not been rigidly enforced in years either on busses or trains or in waiting rooms. Hence Murry Smith of the Rock Island Railroad said in Houston, "We ..... will have no trouble going along with the ruling."

Other states with transportation segregation laws are Arkansas, Florida, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Virginia.

In North Carolina, one utilities commissioner, Ralph Moody, echoed earlier comment by Georgia Attorney General Eugene Cook that the ICC decree would make the state segregation law "more complex to administer."

Norman Johnson, a public service commissioner in the segregationist state of Mississippi, said he did not know what his commission can do, "but we are going to do something."

In South Carolina, Attorney General T. C. Callison said the ruling "means nothing" without court backing, and "I don't think it will affect handling of traffic in this state."

Louisiana Public Service Commissioner John McKeithan said he was "quite sure" his three-member agency would not change its segregation regulations "merely because the ICC has made such a revision."

In Alabama, Associate Public Service Commissioner Jimmy Hitchcock pointed out that state law still required segregation and said the P.S.C. would probably continue to "act accordingly."

Light Quake in San Diego.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Nov. 26 (AP)—A light earthquake jarred the San Diego area at 9:36 a.m. today. It was felt over a wide area of the city. It was the heaviest tremblor felt here in more than a year.

GIRL GRABS TOYS WORTH $210 IN 4-MINUTE CONTEST

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (UP)—A Christmas dream came true last night for four youngsters—they were permitted to raid Macy's toy department and keep everything they could carry away.

The once-in-a-lifetime opportunity was given the four as a reward for doing the best coloring jobs on pictures of three radio and television adventure story characters.

Mary Ellen O'Leary, 13 years old, of Philadelphia, in her allotted time of four minutes, made off with $210 worth of toys, including a bicycle, two toy monkeys, two erector sets, a train and carriage. All but the two monkeys she took as gifts for relatives.

Myron Taplin, 14, of West Roxbury, Mass., grabbed $190 worth in five minutes. Johnny Governor, 12, Lynchburg, Va., got $148 worth in three minutes and the youngest, Daniel Gresler, 8, of the Bronx, N.Y., made off with $120 worth in two minutes.

The time was allotted in proportion to the children's standing in the judging.

SOUTH KOREA DEMANDS U.N. PAY $500,000,000 IN RENT

SEOUL, Nov. 26 (AP)—South Korea is demanding half a billion dollars in rent for buildings and land occupied by United Nations troops the last five years, the semi-official newspaper Korean Republic said today.

The ministry of finance asked U.N. Command Headquarters in Tokyo to set a Dec. 12 conference on settling both rentals and an estimated $50,000,000 bill for utilities and electricity, the newspaper said.

"The command is reported to have proposed late last month to offset the bills with the material and technical assistance given Korea," the newspaper said. "Korean officials claim, however, that the U.N. Command owes Korea far more than Korea owes the command."

REPATRIATION OF GERMANS IN POLAND TO BE SOUGHT

BONN, Nov. 26 (AP)—West Germany's Red Cross president, Dr. Heinrich Weitz, is going to Warsaw soon to negotiate with the Polish Red Cross for resettlement of German citizens.

Estimates are that 250,000 are living in former German territory now under Poland. How many want to be moved has not been determined. Several hundred have come here this year.

Survey Finds UAW Members Loyal to Union Political Action

75 Pct. Voted for Stevenson in 1952, Professors Report — Newspapers Not Trusted.

DETROIT, Nov. 25 (AP)—Three Wayne University professors said today a survey they conducted with funds supplied by the CIO United Auto Workers indicates members of the UAW "are predominantly loyal to the union's political pendeavors."

About 75 per cent of the UAW's more than 1,000,000 members voted for Democratic nominee Adlai Stevenson for President in 1952 despite President Eisenhower's "great personal appeal," the survey report said. In Michigan, it added, Democratic Gov. G. Mennen Williams got 85 per cent of the auto workers' vote.

The UAW made the survey possible through a grant to Wayne, but specified anonymity until completion of the sampling to prevent any influence in responses.

Dr. Arthur Kornhauser, professor of psychology, directed the survey. He was assisted by Dr. Albert J. Mayer and Dr. Harold L. Sheppard, professors of sociology.

They said 828 union members were interviewed.

The professors said the survey results brought out:

1. Most auto workers trust the voting recommendations of labor organizations much more than those of any other groups, and "correspondingly distrust the recommendations of business groups and newspapers much more than those from other sources."

2. Television "was not only given as the most important source of information, but also the most trusted." And UAW membtrs "generally ranked newspapers as least trusted, even though they were cited as the source of most of the campaign information."

3. Fifty-five per cent of those interviewed felt that unions should have more to say about the government and 14 per cent said they should have less; 19 per cent felt that business should have more to say and 41 per cent wanted business to have less influence in government.

The report drew immediate fire from John Feikens, Michigan Republican chairman.

Feikens demanded, "Why doesn't the university publish the interesting part of investigations into UAW political activity by researchers?"

He said a 138-page masters degree thesis approved by Dr. Kornhauser reported that 63 per cent of the Democrats in the UAW opposed political action by the union and that 100 per cent of the Republican union members interviewed opposed it.

M'CARTHY BACKS BOOKIE FOR HOME TOWN POSTAL JOB

APPLETON, Wis., Nov. 26 (UP)—Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, had political circles buzzing in his home town today because of his recommendation of a convicted gambler and bootlegger for a federal post.

The Outagamie County Republican Committee said it was "caught by surprise" when McCarthy's Washington office announced the appointment of Thomas Miller, 57 years old, as Appleton's acting postmaster.

Records showed that Miller had been convicted in 1931 on charges of violating the federal prohibition laws. In 1946 and 1951 he was convicted on charges of accepting illegal bets on horse races.

McCarthy refused to comment on the matter except to say he had recommended Miller for the post. Miller said only that "there are a lot of places you can check up on me and I don't have to say anything."

Al Zupek, Republican county chairman, said McCarthy never consulted the county committee on the appointment.

Miller, "as well as any other candidate, would have been given equal consideration by the committee had normal procedure regarding federal positions been taken," Zupek said.

JEFFERSON CITY GUNSHOT DEATH HELD ACCIDENTAL

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 26—A Cole county coroner's jury today held accidental the gunshot death of Patricia Wagner, 16 years old, last night. She was shot through the heart. Harley Kirchner, 19, of Russellville testified he was attempting to eject the shells from a .22-caliber rifle when it fired.

Both were at the Jefferson City home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Crump when the accident occurred. The girl died within an hour at St. Mary's Hospital.

PAIR KILLED BY TRAIN

IRVING, Ill., Nov. 26 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Roy Rupe of Irving were killed today when their automobile collided with a New York Central freight train.

The accident occurred at a crossing in Irving, a Montgomery county town of about 500, five miles northeast of Hillsboro.

BUILDS BIG CHIMNEY AT 84

READING, England, Nov. 26 (UP)—An 84-year-old bricklayer has just completed, single-handed, a 60-foot chimney-stack at the Parkhurst Old People's Home.

The bricklayer, William Rush, said he intends to continue a 45-hour work week and hold his 100th birthday party on a scaffold "laying bricks."

KHRUSHCHEV HITS AGAIN AT ARMS INSPECTION PLAN

Says It Would Result in Race — India's Leaders Insist Reds Can't Sway Nation.

By HAROLD K. MILKS

BANGALORE, India, Nov. 26 (AP)—The state visit of Russia's two top men rolled into Bangalore today.

Communist party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev, addressing a huge crowd of Indians, took occasion to confirm reports of Russia's latest hydrogen bomb test and to renew his attack on President Eisenhower's proposals for aerial inspection of armaments installations on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

Khrushchev called Mr. Eisenhower's plan "nothing more than an arms race."

"Just imagine Soviet planes flying over America or American planes flying over the Soviet Union," he said. "The Americans might find we have many air bases and they would decide to build more to achieve equality. Or we would see how many fields they have and decide to equal them — and equality is nothing more than an arms race."

Influence Minimized.

Although its impact on the people of India was undiminished, many political leaders insisted the "selling tour" of Khrushchev and Soviet Premier Bulganin will not move this country out of its neutrality role and closer to the Communist bloc.

Everywhere since they arrived Nov. 18, Bulganin and Khrushchev have attracted huge crowds and unprecedented praise from Indian officials.

Millions of people are receiving their first political education on Soviet Communism under circumstances heavily slanted in favor of the Russians.

But leaders of Prime Minister Nehru's Congress party, when pressed for an answer to what the likely effects of such unrestrained support for the Russians would be, are inclined generally to laugh off the question with the reply that "in India everyone likes a show and forgets it quickly."

"We would do the same thing for President Eisenhower if he visited India," they said. "Indians may have praised Russians as a great people but the memory won't last."

No Fear in Congress.

Congress leaders apparently have no fears that the new found friendship with the Soviet Union will make a great segment of India's voters "Communism conscious" under circumstances most favorable to India's own Communist party.

But there are many others who wonder what the final impact of the Bulganin-Khrushchev visit will be on India's democratic future.

The Daccan Herald noted today that school children who, in their thousands are participating in welcomes to the Russians, "in 10 years will be on the list of voters in India."

"Let not our enthusiasm for a nation which seems like-minded in pursuit of tactical objectives now lead us away to any wrong strategy that rests on potentially anti-democratic changes and changes in the scroll of the fickle mass mind," the paper said.

In Madras, an editorial in the popular English language weekly Swatantra took exception to the Russian leaders' "continual challenges to the West from their Indian forum."

It observed that Indian conceptions of hospitality "don't extend to any voluntary sharing of the animosities of our guests, especially when they are directed against countries for whom our friendship and good will is no less."

RARE MORMON BOOK PRINTED IN 1833 GIVEN TO LIBRARY

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 26 (UP)—A rare copy of the Mormon book of commandments valued at "several thousand dollars" was presented today to the University of California's Bancroft Library. The 160-page volume was presented to the library on the occasion of its fiftieth anniversary by the Friends of the Bancroft Library.

The book is known to most Mormons as "The Doctrine and Covenants."

Dr. George P. Hammond, library director, said the book was printed in 1832-33 at Zion, Mo., marking the farthest westward advance of publishing in America at that time.

The book of commandments contains the "revelations of God" to the founder of the Mormon church, Joseph Smith, received from 1829 on. These revelations guided the Mormons in their various movements and establishment of institutions, Hammond said.

Hammond said the volume was "virtually perfect" and set its vaue at several thousand dollars. Only about two dozen volumes survived when enemies of the church attacked and burned the printing plant at Zion, he said. Most other copies were handed down through family and church and became somewhat worn and dog-eared, he said.

Auto Risk Greater in Italy.

ROME, Nov. 26 (AP) — The risk of getting killed in an automobile accident is nearly three times as great in Italy as in the United States. The Italian Institute of Central Statistics listed 5281 traffic fatalities for 1954. This compares with 38,300 reported killed in the United States in 1953. But there were 56,279,864 vehicles in the United States; 3,338,220 in Italy.

Truman Doesn't Want Stevenson to Win the Nomination Too Easily

Professional Politicians Think an Intra-Party Discussion of Issues and Contest Between the Leading Contenders Would Strengthen Party—Notes on Possible Presidential Candidates.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.

WHEN former President Truman told the Democratic fund-raising dinner in Chicago Saturday night "I like variety" he was saying in effect that he was "neutral" regarding Adlai Stevenson, Estes Kefauver and Averell Harriman for the party's presidential nomination because he liked a fight.

Truman's present sideline position is shared by other professional politicians who do not want the former governor of Illinois and defeated 1952 nominee to walk away with the party's standard next year with only token opposition. Most of them are for Stevenson and will so declare before the convention, but, for the interest of the party, they would like to have a serious intra-party discussion of major issues and a substantial sample of the ability of the probable nominee, particularly Stevenson, to work within the party and to wage a winning campaign against the Republicans.

IT IS NO SECRET that Truman and a few other prominent Democrats were bitterly disappointed with Stevenson's campaign in 1952 against Gen. Eisenhower. There were glaring errors of organization and publicity, mostly because Stevenson started from scratch since he had not sought the nomination and did not have time to plan to make full use of all the resources of the party.

One of his closest personal and political friends told the Post-Dispatch in Chicago that Stevenson, by his defeat and the unremitting work he did to wipe out the ensuing party deficit, had learned well the necessities of organization and publicity. This man, who rates as a professional politician, predicted that Stevenson's methods would be vastly different from those of 1952.

As the first announced candidate for the 1956 nomination and election, Stevenson's present organizational and publicity plans are so detailed and formidable that Democrats like Truman fear he may scare off all real opposition.

Some of these have their own axes to grind. Truman, for instance, would like to have next year's campaign based on the performances and promises of the New and Fair Deal under Roosevelt and himself. It is significant that Stevenson did not mention these programs in his announcement of candidacy, in his press conference or in his Saturday night speech.

Others, like Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas, have the congressional elections in mind, as much, if not more so, than the presidential. There are also regional interests and personal ambitions involved.

The dinner speeches, interviews and personal chats between political correspondents and national and regional leaders outlined the current subdivisions of the Democratic party and indicated what can be expected from the party's leading personalities, who are following the philosophies and methods of their political heroes.

Truman's hero is President Andrew Jackson, whose belligerency, devotion to the common people and opposition to "special interests" he has emulated. Truman also has a fighting record of his own, beginning as a club fighter in the precincts and ending as an undefeated champion. Naturally, he thinks his political advice is worth a great deal and he has shown that he intends to give it.

Stevenson's hero is Woodrow Wilson, the liberal, intellectual President. Both were Princeton graduates, both governors and both intensively interested in prose style. Stevenson's speeches are far more impressive when read than when Stevenson delivers them. He also appears to be always in a hurry—a serious defect in an office seeker.

Harriman owes his advancement in high governmental offices to Harry Hopkins, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Truman, and he follows their political philosophy although he is a multi-millionaire. The very rich charge that he, like Roosevelt, is "a traitor to his class," but unlike Roosevelt, who also had a Groton accent, he cannot make a rousing New Deal speech. He asserts that he is not an "active" candidate for the nomination—and suggests that reporters use the quotation marks. His activity this week on the Pacific Coast, his scheduled visit to Alabama next week with Gov. James Folsom, and his trip to California next month show that he is far more available for the nomination than Stevenson was in 1952.

Kefauver, at present also an unannounced candidate, appears to have Davy Crockett as his hero, coonskin cap and all the other frontier trimmings. His unhurried, relaxed manner, his handshakes and his slow speech are impressive with rank-and-file workers. He led on the first two roll calls at the 1952 nominating convention, principally because of the popular acclaim he received from his televised crime investigations and because he entered more preferential primaries than any other candidate. He is currently attracting national attention through his findings of special favors by the Eisenhower Administration in the canceled Dixon-Yates contract and by his hearings on juvenile delinquency. He is not, however, the favorite of the big city politicians because of the crime investigation, or the Southern leaders, because he sided with the Northern "liberals" at the 1952 convention.

Senators Johnson of Texas and Richard B. Russell of Georgia, like Truman, want a "variety" of candidates for the presidential nomination. As "southern" as well as "congressional" Democrats they are looking for a candidate and a platform for their own segment of their party and they speak for a large number of voters, many of whom cast their ballots for Gen. Eisenhower in 1952.

Where Truman and Harriman find Stevenson edging the middle-of-the-road and inclining toward "moderation," Russell has said he is "too leftish" and that he would prefer Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio. Russell, who got 268 votes to Stevenson's 273 on the first ballot at the 1952 convention and 294 to Stevenson's 324½ on the second rollcall, has announced that he will not be a candidate next year. He and Johnson, however, are expected to be experienced behind-the-scenes operators at Chicago next year and may be able to line up a large block of southern votes for bargaining purposes.

Johnson, whose heroes are Speaker Sam Rayburn and former Vice President John Garner, both of Texas, has withheld his support from any of next year's prospects. Before his heart attack in July, he was frequently mentioned as a presidential or vice presidential candidate. He was emphatic this week, however, that he will seek no elective office in 1956 and that his major concern will be the restoration of his health.

In his first political speech since his coronary, Johnson this week outlined a 13-point program for the coming congressional session. Vague as it was, it served notice that the congressional Democratic leadership have their own platform planks in general and that the Texans and others from the Southwest are willing to reverse the Truman Fair Deal stand on federal regulation of natural gas just as Gov. Allen Shivers and other Gulf States Democrats demanded their pound of flesh by giveaway of the Federal Government's rights on off-shore oil.

While Stevenson can ignore or choose selectively from the New and Fair Deal programs, he cannot, as a candidate for the nomination or for the White House, ignore the record of the Democrats in the Eighty-third and Eighty-fourth Congresses. The question is whether he will be able to influence the coming session or whether he will be guided by the speeches and votes of the Democrats in the two houses. There probably will be give and take by both sides.

FOREIGN POLICY is an example of what can happen. Truman, Stevenson, Harriman, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, former American Ambassador to India Chester Bowles and George F. Kennan former head of the State Department's policy staff have all recently been critical of the bipartisan foreign policy as carried out by President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles. All these Democrats are executive branch rather than legislative branch minded. They have been joined in their criticism by Kefauver, who is not a member of the Foreign Relations Committee but who has recently returned from visits behind the Iron Curtain and into the Middle East and Asia.

Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, has collaborated closely with the Eisenhower Administration on foreign policy and at times has taken the initiative. Attacks on the bipartisan policy, as presently administered, are indirect criticism of George, a close political and personal friend of Russell and Johnson.

Stevenson at Chicago was not as sharp in his criticism as were Harriman and Kefauver in their speeches and as Truman was in his personal conversations with reporters. That is one reason perhaps that Truman likes "variety." He would like to test the mettle of the candidates and have a full debate of their views on this and other major issues.

One of the interesting questions of the next eight months is how far Stevenson will be a preconvention candidate on his own and how much he will rely on past Democratic actions in the executive and legislative branches.

Well-Informed Americans Fear Outcome of 'Cold War of the Classrooms'—U.S. Scientific Education Lag Blamed in Part on Anti-Intellectualism.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.

THE "cold war of the classrooms," as Adm. Lewis L. Strauss has termed the East-West race for scientific supremacy, is creeping closer to every man, woman and child in America. There is growing alarm over the rate at which Soviet Russia is training engineers and other professional people.

Speeches by Adm. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, and R. Adm. H. G. Rickover, atomic submarine expert, before the Thomas Alva Edison Foundation Institute in West Orange, N.J., were enough to frighten anyone who took the time to reflect a little on their significance.

THERE IS NO QUESTION but that the Soviet Union is on the verge of outstripping the United States in the education of scientists, and in the light of this fact, as Adm. Rickover said, the current Russian peace offensive makes a great deal of sense from the Soviet viewpoint. Adm. Rickover quoted Nikita S. Khrushchev, head of the Communist party, as asserting recently:

"We don't have to fight. Let us have peaceful competition and we will show you where the truth lies. . . . Victory is ours."

Americans may not want to believe it but recent studies made in this country tend to support Khrushchev. The latest and one of the best of these is a book, Soviet Professional Manpower, published last week by the National Science Foundation in co-operation with the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council. The book was compiled by Nicholas Dewitt of the Harvard University Russian Research Center and is based on exhaustive research by Boris Gorokhoff of the Library of Congress. Before publication it was circulated among authorities on the Soviet and it is probably the most authoritative up-to-date work in its field.

The data on which the book is based were available to Strauss and others who have been campaigning in recent months to arouse the public to the danger this country faces if something is not done quickly to channel more American intellects into scientific fields.

It may be of some significance that the subject is not even on the program, as such, of the highly-publicized White House Conference on Education which starts Monday. There is almost certain to be some discussion of it, however; one of the major speakers and subcommittee chairmen is Dr. James R. Killian Jr., president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who is keenly interested in the matter.

Although many individuals and organizations are working on the over-all problem, and on specific aspects of it, there does not appear to be at hand a complete and practical program that might lead to a solution. Evidence indicates changes in attitude on the part of millions of parents, children, teachers and some industrialists will be needed as well as improvements in curricula.

As to the approach of adults, there is in the United States a proportion of persons genuinely mistrustful of intelligence. In 1952 there were the "anti-eggheads" who opposed Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential candidate, solely on the ground he was "too smart." The fanatical followers of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, are largely anti-intellectuals.

That this attitude is fairly widespread among young people is shown in results of a small Oklahoma City survey. Dr. Melvin Barnes, assistant superintendent of schools, asked 100 high school juniors, "Why is it more students do not take more science and mathematics?"

The majority of those questioned described mathematics courses as dull, complained such courses took too much time and asserted students are not taught really to "understand" the subject. Some described scientists as "squares" or "little old men with beards," or as unsocial creatures who don't make much money. Not one of the answers reported by the Associated Press indicated an intention to make science a career.

A similar picture was painted statistically by Adm. Rickover. He said nearly half of American high schools offer little or no instruction in physics, chemistry or mathematics beyond introductory algebra. He gave these figures on percentages of high school students who were studying scientific subjects in 1900 and in 1950:

Physics	23	4
Chemistry	10	7
Algebra	52	27
Geometry	27	13

Adm. Rickover said the high schools have been required to arrange their curricula to meet the needs of the average, and that it is the gifted children who suffer. He suggested a dual school system, with one branch for gifted pupils, but acknowledged there is a good deal of opposition to such an idea.

In the scientific monthly for September, Dr. Sidney L. Pressey of Ohio State University offered some thoughts on "The Nature and Nurture of Genius." He stated "There is a general belief, fostered in this country by most child psychologists and 'progressive' educators during the last 25 years, that intellectual precocity is somehow not quite healthy, is almost always a hazard to good social adjustment, and should be slowed down rather than facilitated."

In Dr. Pressey's opinion, "Superior original capacity, growing under a favorable concommittance of circumstances, develops into genius." He noted that Mozart, who, as is well known, played the harpsichord at the age of 3, was raised in a musical environment; his father and sister were musicians and he was constantly encouraged by family and friends. Dr. Pressey recalled that the golfer, Bobby Jones, was raised next to a golf course and was encouraged to play by his father.

"Suppose," said Dr. Pressey, "that Mozart or Bobby Jones had not been allowed to begin his music or his golf until the other children did, or to practice more or progress faster, or had had only the instruction of a school class in music or physical education. Suppose they had been kept from playing with older children or adults in the fear they might become socially maladjusted, kept from associating much with other musicians or golfers because that would be narrowing and undemocratic, kept from public performances or tournaments because that would be exploiting the poor child. It surely may be questioned whether they would then have reached the prominence they did."

Dr. Pressey asserted that usually a budding musician or athlete is accepted in the community and stimulated by acclaim, but the young scientists or scholar may be isolated, considered "odd" and denied opportunities to achieve public recognition for his efforts. His lot is frustration and not the furtherance of cumulative success.

THE ATMOSPHERE in the Soviet Union is different. As is well known, scientists and teachers are given honors, privileges and relatively high salaries. Such rewards would stimulate the aspirations of young people toward careers in teaching or science even in a free society; in regimented Russia it is, of course, all part of a program geared to turning out products most useful to the state.

It may well be true that the Soviet educational system is graduating a preponderance of specialists rather than well-rounded human beings. There seems to be no sensible reason, however, why children in the United States cannot be offered a balanced education that would lay more stress on science at the expense of numerous irrelevancies and that would encourage students with natural aptitude. This would apply to girls as well as boys; in Russia 50 per cent of all professional people are women.

Soviet educational philosophy, Dewitt states, rests on three major premises: Advancement of science and technology is best promoted through the central planning of education and research; scientific and educational efforts are primarily a means for the advancement of the social, economic, political and military interests

U. S.-Indian Relations Are at Critical Point As Russia Takes Lead

Visit by Soviet Leaders Emphasizes Diplomatic, Economic Offensive—If We Lose Influence in India We May Lose It in Most of the Rest of Asia—Subcontinent Is Seeking Development.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1955, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 26.

THROUGH the complexity of this vast subcontinent, with its princely states, its huge provinces, and its remote tribes, those who know it well are beginning to see the threads of unity. The task that began with the achievement of independence eight years ago—the effort to forge a nation out of a multiplicity of peoples, languages, customs and religions—may yet succeed, and succeed with democratic procedures, with a margin of free choice rare for the Far East.

To this undertaking the United States had contributed, up to June 30 last, more than $600,000,000 in grants and loans and this total does not include the assistance from a half-dozen private foundations. The American loan providing 2,000,000 tons of wheat came in time to prevent what might well have been the ruin of the whole effort following the failure of the monsoon rains in 1950 and 1951.

But nevertheless relations between the two countries have reached a crisis that can no longer be disguised. The visit of Russian leaders has brought out prejudices on both sides that fan a long-smouldering suspicion and distrust. And this comes at a time when the Indian Government is starting a new program of construction and development.

It was reported recently that India would ask the United States for a loan of $1,800,000,000. That is not correct. Indian pride alone would prevent such a request.

But the second five-year plan about to be launched is, for India, on such a bold scale that a gap of $800,000,000 in foreign exchange is foreseen and if the gap is not filled the projects for irrigation and industrialization will be cut back. It could mean defeat for India's hope to set the pace in Asia and set it not by force and coercion as in Communist China but by co-operation and persuasion.

Because so much turns on the success or failure of this experiment, the hope is that America would come forward and underwrite the deficit. Admitting to that hope, Finance Minister Deshmukh goes on to say that if an underwriting agreement could be worked out, conceivably only a small fraction of the total amount would ever actually be called for. The mere fact of the underwriting would turn the trick.

But in view of current attitudes in Washington and New Delhi this is most unlikely to happen. At best, without some such assurance from the outside, the plan will fall short, but not so far short as to have a crippling effect for the future. At worst, India will fall into the Communist orbit, lured by Soviet promises and some small performance of Soviet aid heavily coated with pious words about peace and co-existence.

NOTHING IN THE DECADE since the war has caused so much agonizing appraisal, so much bitter recrimination as why America "lost" China. The American relationship with India has been nothing as close as was the embrace in which we held Chiang Kai-shek and his Nationalists. That, incidentally, was one of China's handicaps. So in a similar sense we cannot "lose" India. But the consequences will be nearly as serious for American policy in Asia if we forfeit our opportunity and lose the good will of India and the Indian people. This can happen. It is, in fact, already beginning to happen.

Aid is important, but the way in which it is given is almost as important. Policymakers in Washington have too often, in their relations with India, failed to realize two things. First, Nehru, with most of his people behind him, will not choose sides. Efforts to coerce him by crude maneuvers into joining up with the West have only made matters worse. Second, the private enterprise pattern of the United States simply does not fit India. Nehru is determined to follow a course that is neither the capitalism of the West nor the Marxist Socialism of the Communist bloc. He is working toward a pattern that includes both a public and a private sector, what Nehru and the men around him call a "socialistic" rather than a Socialist pattern.

A deep source of Indian distrust is the kind of economic colonialism that puts certain countries in the role of raw material producers for other countries with advanced technology. They want to become self-sustaining on a continental scale in industry as well as agriculture, and they believe they have the resources to bring this about.

India today has only about 1,000,000 tons of steel production for 370,000,000 people as against 110,000,000 tons in America. Under the second five-year plan just projected, three steel plants are to be built by the Government at the same time that production by private companies is to be doubled. The bargaining over terms for the three plants in the public sector illustrates as well as anything could the attitudes toward East and West.

The British held out for a loan at 5½ per cent, and after a long haggle the project was dropped, only to be resumed again recently with another British mission to India and the hope that after many months a deal can be concluded. After some sharp bargaining an agreement was reached with German industrialists for a steel mill, and the financing is now being worked out. In a remarkably short time the Russians granted a loan of $80,000,000 at 2½ per cent, repayment to begin after 10 years, when presumably increased production will have given the economy a lift.

As important as the terms is the fact that the Indians believe, whether rightly or wrongly, that the Russians are going to teach them how to build a steel plant. Indians will be trained in the Soviet Union and by Soviet technicians to be sent here. We don't want a plant that is put up entirely by others so that we are merely handed the key to it, they say.

Another example is oil. As part of any contract for exploration for oil resources, private companies, according to Indian officialdom, wanted the right to develop those resources under a long-term concession. Some such contracts have been let which, while reducing the term of the concession, have been satisfactory to two of the major oil companies for exploration, and later it is hoped production will proceed on a 20-year guarantee. The Soviet Government came forward with an offer to furnish technicians under an agreement covering merely the cost of their work in an area as yet unexplored.

This, say the Indians, is with no strings attached. That viewpoint may seem naive in the West since the West has learned by painful experience that propaganda and subversion are part of the baggage that goes with the Soviets whatever their mission. According to American sources, as many as 500 Russian and Romanian oil technicians will soon be at work in India.

THERE ARE DEFEATISTS saying now that peaceful co-operation between India and America was foredoomed from the beginning, prejudice and suspicion being too great to be overcome and the difference in ideology and economics too grave. The very fact of America's vast power in the world was enough in itself to cause the hypersensitive Indian leaders to pull back.

In this connection it is worth noting that India's relationship with less powerful nations tends to be much easier, even when ticklish issues of aid and its use are involved. When Canada's Minister of External Affairs, Lester Pearson, came here recently, he was warmly received, and in two public addresses he stressed the peaceful intentions of both Canada and the United States and the way in which Canada was able to work with her powerful neighbor on the south in close co-operation without jeopardizing her own independence of action.

To admit defeat at this point is to concede that the influence of the United States will sooner or later wither away in all Asia, with the exception of those limited areas where American power is predominant. For what is happening in India is being closely watched by India's neighbors.

The Soviet offensive, economic as well as diplomatic, is being pushed zealously and shrewdly. The Soviet team of Khrushchev and Bulganin end their tour of this part of the world in Afghanistan, where Communism has already exploited territorial differences with Pakistan, and the Pakistan-United States arms pact. Soviet aid to Afghanistan has taken the showy form of paving the streets of the capital, Kabul, providing the first taxis Kabul has ever had, and building grain storage bins brightly painted and illuminated at night so that all residents of Kabul can see the beneficence of their powerful friends.

It is late, but perhaps it is not too late. Fortunately, America has in John Sherman Cooper an Ambassador in New Delhi who understands the urgency of what must be done. The barriers of prejudice must be overcome, and the chief responsibility in this respect is in Washington. There is still an opportunity, and it should not be lost by default.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

'A Pox on All Three!'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

William Winter's Sunday epistolary comment on your editorial comment on Prof. Gardiner's verbal comment concerning Ol' Jo Shelby forces me to cry a pox on all three of your comments.

Through research, travel, diligent study of John Edwards and his accounts of Shelby—and my inherent right to guess with the best of you—I have the answer as to why Shelby didn't surrender but galloped down to the Rio Grande. It's simple: He was going to fish in the muddied waters of Mexican politics.

The record really is pretty clear that Ol' Jo tried to sell the services of his 800 (or 600 or 1200) men to Benito Juarez (accent on first syllable, please) but, when the command didn't find this romantic enough, he simply led them to Mexico City and tried to make the same deal for a Confederate corps with Maximilian. This time the possibly well-meaning and certainly stupid "emperor" turned down the deal, possibly at Marshal Bazaine's urging.

I don't know what Shelby was thinking, actually, but who does? On the surface, at least, he appears to have accepted the fact that he wasn't going to be a big man in the Confederacy so he'd try to be one in Mexico. With a little luck, he might have made it.

It all seems quite typical of Shelby's character: adventurous rather than quixotic, courageous rather than gallant, an egotist rather than a man acting on high moral principle. It seems quite normal, really. Shelby was too intelligent ever to have confused Maximilian with "sanctuary." DAN SAULTS.

A Plug for Estes

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I believe Senator Kefauver would have defeated Eisenhower in 1952, had Kefauver been the Democratic nominee. Television watchers of the 1952 convention saw the politicians at work and were displeased with the treatment Kefauver received. But those who had watched the Kefauver campaign from the beginning knew how strong he was with the people, and how the "political bosses" fought him.

Kefauver may not be always right, but he knows what he fights for, and we know he knows; honesty, progress, peace and prosperity; and I believe that's what the people want.

'Penetrating Coverage'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

All of us at St. Louis University are appreciative of the thoughtful coverage the Post-Dispatch gave our Founders' day celebration. Your articles covering speeches dealing with the function of a Catholic university in society were particularly well done. As a matter of fact, the emphasis in each case was put exactly where we would have chosen.

The editorial of Nov. 19 summarized very distinctively the message which we were hopeful of conveying to everyone and hence we are doubly grateful for such recognition.

The continuing growth of private education and all that implies in our free society requires widespread public understanding of its functioning and its problems. This cause was well served by your penetrating coverage of the many fine speeches delivered at our convocations.

PAUL C. REINERT, S.J.,
President, St. Louis University.

Why Bread Costs 19 Cents

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

On a recent television program one of the reporters asked the following question of the guest: "When wheat sold for $2.25 a bushel, a loaf of bread cost 19 cents. Why does a loaf of bread still cost 19 cents when a bushel of wheat sells for $1.25?"

For the reporter's benefit, if the farmers would donate the wheat it would have a very small effect on the price of a loaf of bread.

It's the high cost of labor to make the wheat into bread that makes it so expensive. That applies to everything in the line of food including hogs and cattle.

E. A. KOENEMAN.

The 'New' G.O.P.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

For once in many years we in Kansas have a Republican Governor who is not afraid to say what he thinks. Gov. Fred Hall says he wants to build a new Republican party. That is just what Ike thought he could do and failed miserably.

But Hall goes at it in a much different way, and he might succeed. He will need a good old-fashioned pick handle instead of a golf stick.

Mr. Eisenhower is a fine person and aims to be clean. He sure doesn't fit in with the gang that is in charge of his adopted party.

Piper, Kan. J. W. MORGAN.

As to Church Schools

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I want to compliment you on your editorial of Nov. 21, "For the Benefit of Private Schools," which urged that church schools be kept free from state support. From time to time it has seemed to me that you have overemphasized the Roman position. It is gratifying to see an editorial which represents the historic position of true American democracy. I compliment you. MARK ANDREWS.

A Line to Strengthen

At the forefront of presidential consideration at Gettysburg these days is the State of the Union message Mr. Eisenhower will present to Congress in only a little more than a month. The President and his staff are at work now on this important annual White House pronouncement for in barely over two weeks Mr. Eisenhower is scheduled to review in advance his 1956 program with congressional leaders.

Whatever else the coming State of the Union message may contain, it undoubtedly will have a section concerning the policy of the United States with respect to the underprivileged areas of the world, particularly Southeast Asia. Undoubtedly also a section will deal with the continuation of foreign aid by the United States.

It would be almost impossible to overstate the crucial character of our economic and other assistance to the areas that now are the battleground between the Communistic blandishments of the Kremlin and the democratic appeals of the Western nations, including the United States. The stakes are great and on the outcome may well turn the future of the world.

We can take for granted that there will be new calls in Congress for the elimination of foreign aid. These cries arose in the last session of Congress and it was only after a strong fight by the President and leaders of both parties that overseas assistance was protected from emasculation. Mr. Eisenhower put the case well when he said that > underdeveloped countries hold the bulk of the world's population, occupy the largest part of its land area, constitute the major sources of its key minerals and raw materials and contain many of its most valuable military bases.

How this aid is administered is equally important with the aid itself. It is a characteristic of peoples to be proud and this is especially true of the races that make up the teeming nations of Southeast Asia. We cannot go to them with patronizing handouts and expect to win their goodwill and confidence. Nor can we measure our assistance purely in defensive terms of our military and economic well-being.

Actually so to present such assistance would be both an error and a disservice to the United States. Countless Americans are more interested in the leadership this country provides and in the example it sets than they are, for example, in the whereabouts of air bases. They would rather see a power dam of our making transform and lift the life of a depressed area in India, say, than to see our substance go to ends less constructive, necessary though some of the latter are. We must, of course, maintain our own military strength, and strengthen our allies; but we cannot rely on military defense alone.

A good case can be made, as Walter Lippmann among many others is doing, that the world has come to realize that no one could win an atomic war—that aggressor along with defender would lose in mutual annihilation. If this is so, then we may expect the visit of the Soviet leaders to New Delhi to be followed by busy agents, giving the appearance at least of carrying out the promises of Premier Bulganin and Communist Party Chief Khrushchev. We may expect a greatly stepped-up economic contest.

That is why this is as important a subject as the President's State of the Union message probably will contain. It is why the American people should adjust themselves to the idea that some things are more important than balancing the budget. We must be ready to participate for as long as necessary in a foreign assistance program that will present the United States to the world as a friendly, interested, helpful, cooperating member in the society of nations.

After all that is the historic attitude of Americans in world affairs. To depart from it in times like these would be a retreat utterly without reason or justification.

Wrong Remedy

What can be done in St. Louis with old houses which are too large and too costly for single-family occupancy?

A great many have been quietly and illegally converted into rooming houses, and now it is even being suggested that special permits be authorized for operation of such places in certain two-family zones in the city.

This would legalize some of the flourishing bootleg establishments. It also would open up whole sections of the city to the rooming house operators. And judging from what usually happens to a neighborhood taken over by rooming houses, the result would be an unhealthy spreading of municipal blight.

If there were a shortage of districts zoned for rooming houses, it might be possible to argue that action to relieve the shortage would be in the public interest. But that is not the case.

Owners of these large one-family residences certainly deserve relief if at all possible—but not in the form of a special permit to introduce a rooming house in a two-family neighborhood. This is unfair to their neighbors, conducive to the spread of blight, and a public disservice.

Some Silly Answers Coming Up

This is the golden age of the poll and survey industry when everything from the outcome of presidential elections and the make-up of All-America teams to the popularity of mongoloid juke-box tunes and milady's taste in kitchen utensils and night-gowns is determined in advance—and by exact percentage. So we ought to get used to it.

Nevertheless, we take a dim view of the survey which, according to Secretary of the Interior McKay, is going to be made by a New York question-asking outfit for the Fish and Wildlife Service. Almost any day now, says the Secretary, we may expect a pretty young thing to ask how often did we go fishing, how many fish did we catch, what did we pay for our rod, our lures, lodging, food, transportation, etc., and likewise for hunting.

Thanks be to the Founding Fathers for the Fifth Amendment, because these are facts which we do not want even our own families to know. In fact, we do not want the decimal-pointed details ourselves. We already know that fish may be had cheaper in the market than in the most glorious fishing paradise. We also know that the finest rod does not necessarily land the biggest fish—even if it can help. We know, too, that we do not need half the skirted and unskirted lures which yank the money out of our pockets. And if Mr. McKay and the Government do not know as much, then the nation is in shaky hands indeed.

We are not consoled by Mr. McKay's word that the cost of this survey will be covered by excise taxes on fishing and hunting equipment. Who pays those taxes? But that is not our real objection to this federal fishing expedition. When we take off for the Current river with a rod or for the Ozark uplands with a gun, we go fishing and hunting—not necessarily catching and killing. We may be as eager to see the play of light on fast water as to see a trout break through it for a gray hackle. We may be as eager to watch a dog work a draw or to see the smooth glide of a bird as to bring it down.

This does not make us advocates of the empty stringer and the empty bag. But it is enough to show that Secretary McKay has sent his young pretties out to ask some silly questions to which they surely will get some silly answers.

Farm Politics, Not Policy

Isn't anybody going to talk sense about the farm problem during the next 12 months?

When the Democratic National Committee announced appointment of an "expert" advisory committee including two former secretaries of agriculture, we expressed the hope that something useful might come out of it. The committee has now reported, and the result is as disappointing as was the conference of Republican farm belt governors convened by Gov. Hoegh of Iowa.

Had the Democrats' committee paid more attention to policy and less to politics, it could not have embraced, as it did, the purely political slogan of rigid price supports at 90 per cent of parity. The experts on the committee must have known that the mildly flexible price supports now in effect have had almost nothing whatever to do with the fall of farm income which began in the Truman Administration and has continued in the Eisenhower Administration. They must have known that during all of this period of declining farm income up to last summer, price supports were not flexible, but rigid, and at 90 per cent.

To pretend that a restoration of rigid supports will increase farm income is just as demagogic as the claim of Vice President Nixon that flexible supports have increased dairy income. The truth is that the whole flexible-vs.-rigid price support argument is largely irrelevant to the main issues.

The question is not at what level to peg price supports, but how to fashion a farm program that will effectively sustain a fair income for family-farm operators without imposing unfair burdens on consumers and taxpayers. And no matter what kind of program ultimately takes shape, the strong probability is that the level at which income is supported will have to be flexible—that is, will have to bear some relation to supply and demand, so that the Government can avoid subsidizing ever-growing surpluses.

When Adlai Stevenson said on Oct. 7 that Democrats should avoid advocating only what they had advocated before, "like 90 per cent price supports," many people hoped that he, for one, intended to talk sense on farm policy. Since then he has compromised by advocating 90 per cent supports himself, though he also says price supports alone are not the answer. We hope that as his campaign unfolds he will talk more sense about this problem than did the Democrats' advisory committee.

No Case to Cover Up

It is difficult to reconcile the resignation of Hugh W. Cross of Jerseyville, Ill., as chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission with his description of charges against him as "baseless."

When charges are "baseless" in fact, men with nothing to hide ordinarily do not resign in order to halt an investigation of them. On the contrary, such a man would be expected to insist on a full and open inquiry by the Senate Investigations subcommittee headed by Chairman McClellan.

Not only does Mr. Cross not so insist, but Senator McClellan strongly indicates that the investigation will now be closed. We do not know whether the purpose is to spare Mr. Cross embarrassment, or to acknowledge that the evidence may be inconclusive. In either case, closing an investigation merely because the official in question resigns suggests a cover-up of some kind.

Either Mr. Cross did or did not abuse his official influence in connection with the award of a valuable contract for transportation of passengers between the Chicago railroad stations. The public is entitled to know which. It is the job of the Senate Investigations subcommittee to find out which.

Is somebody on this committee interested in covering up the full story in this case? Does the evidence bear out the hints that have been leaked to reporters? There is only one way to answer those questions, and that is by continuing the inquiry to the end, just as if Mr. Cross had not quit.

Bar to Faceless Informers

United States District Judge Luther W. Youngdahl has ordered the faceless informer banished from passport cases. This major decision defines the right of due process in such cases and its implications extend into the whole realm of administrative procedure.

Last June the three-judge Federal Court of Appeals in Washington ruled that the State Department had no right to deny a passport merely at its own discretion. That court ruled in the Schachtman case that citizens denied the right to travel should be given hearings in accord with due process of law.

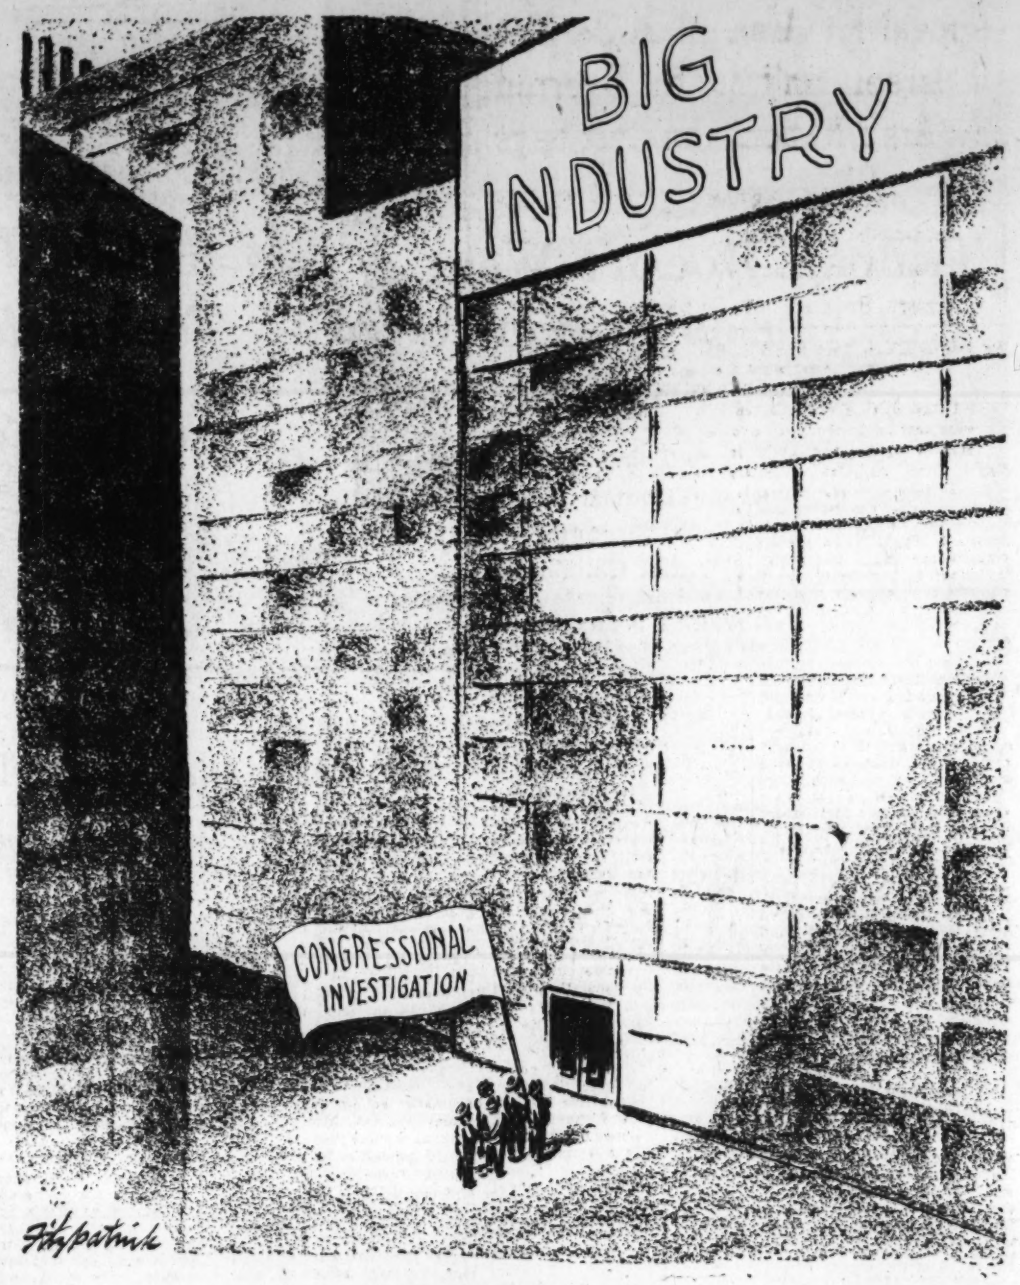
Now Judge Youngdahl, former Republican Governor of Minnesota, has gone further to define due process. Ordering a quasi-judicial hearing for Leonard B. Boudin, New York attorney denied a passport, Judge Youngdahl says such government decisions "must be substantiated by evidence contained in the record." It is a matter of fair play, the judge says, to permit a citizen to know what the evidence against him is. And Judge Youngdahl adds:

> More and more the courts have become aware of the irreparable damage which may be, has been, and is, wrought by the secret informer and the faceless talebearer whose identity and testimony remains locked in confidential files.

Unfortunately the secret informer has in recent years become an acceptable and even employable witness in numerous government administrative proceedings, though hardly acceptable in the courts. But "when the basis of action by any branch of government remains hidden from scrutiny and beyond practical review," Judge Youngdahl asserts, "the seeds of arbitrary and irresponsible government are sown."

From common law to Constitution, the American conception of individual rights includes the rights of men to face their accusers. Judge Youngdahl's ruling should help to restore a basic principle in our way of life.

Some commentators are suggesting that Texas has as much right to be admitted to the United Nations as Outer Mongolia, a Soviet satellite. Texans will rightly resent the slur on their state as a puppet government of the United States. As everybody ought to know by now, it is the United States that is a satellite of Texas.



HOW BIG IS TOO BIG?

The Mark Twain He Remembered

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Man who as a lad was befriended by great writer tells of Clemens's kindliness despite tragedies of later years; was writing pot-boilers to pay bills but still delighted in debunking hypocrites and exploiters; Wednesday is 120th anniversary of his birth.

An Anonymous Recollection About Samuel L. Clemens, as Told to Waldo Carlton Wright, in the American Mercury

It was just before the turn of the century when I came to know Mark Twain. At the time, he was 64 and I was 7. For the next eight years I spent many days with him, whenever he came home between lecture tours to be with his semi-invalid wife, Olivia Langdon, and his daughters, Clara and Susan, in Elmira, N.Y.

Samuel Clemens must have wanted a son badly, the way he welcomed me into his life that first Saturday morning. My father, an Elmira contractor, had taken me with him to Quarry Hill where he was making some alterations on the barn.

It was a pleasant spot overlooking the winding Chemung and the green valley, and I set out to explore an octagonal brick building I had noticed on the way up. It looked more like the bridge of a ship than a house. Peering through the windows, I saw a white-haired man at a desk. He was scratching away furiously, tossing the sheets aside on the floor.

He looked up and his intense black eyes scared me. He laid down his pen and motioned for me to come in.

I stood there awkwardly, hesitant to step on the scattered sheets of foolscap.

"Just walk over them. They're no good anyway."

"Are you making out bills?" I asked, having watched my father preparing his monthly statements.

My conclusion must have amused him. "You might call it that. But I'm trying to pay bills, whole hatfuls of them."

The significance of what he said came years later when I learned that by this time he was on the downward spiral, writing desperately to pay off the debts of the Webster publishing house and finance the development of an impractical typesetting machine.

At that time, while he was trying to do a sequel to "Tom Sawyer" and pot-boil magazine articles, his heart was not in his work. After school or on Saturdays I would walk up Quarry Hill to the little brick house.

My visits were always sufficient excuse for him to put down his pen. Often he would pick up a few sheets from the floor and read them to me. Once he caught me staring out of the window and tore up an entire chapter.

He preferred walking to reading. Sometimes he would take his 45 revolver with him. From his days in the West he retained a steady hand, and could keep a tin can spinning in the air as long as a cartridge remained in the chamber.

On these walks he would recite lengthy passages from Bunyan and Shakespeare, then ask me what I thought they meant, encouraging my halting interpretations. Later, many of these characters seemed to be people I had met on our walks and to whom he had introduced me.

On my ninth birthday he took me to task for not doing something creative. Without a smile he explained he had been talking over my future with three of his friends, one of whom was Voltaire, and that all of them agreed it was high time I started to write stories.

After that we often made up stories together. That is, he led me to feel they were my own stories. I recall parts of them. One that stands out concerned a weary plowhorse that all its life had wished for wings. Then one day its sore shoulders began magically to sprout wings, forcing off the collar and hames, and with its golden wings it flapped away to a horse heaven of deep Kentucky bluegrass.

Undoubtedly, Twain was trying in this story to tell me something about his outlook on life and the tragedy that crowded into those final years, while he was still sprouting his wings of escape from the burden he was dragging.

These stories I laboriously copied in a notebook which he told me to keep until I was old enough to publish them. But the notebook became lost, as did my dreams of being a writer.

Although Clemens is often referred to as an irreverent satirist, the only time I ever heard him swear was at a distance. Once while we were window-shopping in Elmira, Twain noticed a horse heaving, unable to move the overloaded wagon, while a huckster continued to lash and curse it.

Clemens told me to walk ahead. When I was a block away he lit into the huckster with a volley of oaths that boiled out of the pilot house of his days on the Mississippi. For 15 minutes he tongue-lashed this driver without once repeating himself, or letting the huckster get in a word.

Twain not only was the lifelong champion of the underdog. He delighted in debunking hypocrites and exploiters so that not even his beloved Olivia could call him off when he set out to cut a bully down to size. This urge set him on fire to write the journal of the "Maid of Orleans," a quotation from which will always remain in the main hall of Oxford, beside Lincoln's Gettysburg speech and Portia's definition of the quality of mercy.

In the eight years I saw him from time to time, between his world-wide lecture tours, I suffered from undulant fever. It was before the cause had been identified or could be adequately treated. Probably my malady recalled his sickly youth and so deepened his interest in me.

My illness brought me my greenest memory of Mark Twain, when I was 12. It was then he took me with him to a testimonial dinner tendered him by the great and the near great, in Buffalo. My parents had questioned the wisdom of the long train ride, but Twain had assured them he would see that I got adequate rest.

That evening a boy of 12 occupied the place of honor on Mr. Clemens's right, and when anyone came to shake his hand he always introduced me. During his talk he referred to me twice as a fellow-author.

But his greatest act of thoughtfulness came later when he noticed my drooping eyelids during the expressions of esteem that followed his talk. Rising and breaking into another's speech, he excused us, saying it was our bedtime.

Although this meeting meant much to him, helping him to shut out of his mind the tragedy that was stalking his life—the death of Susan, the impending loss of his wife—he had set aside his own homage to assure a travel-weary boy a night of quiet, happy sleep.

That is the Mark Twain I remember.

More Flame Than Bird

Ernest Kroll, a graduate of Columbia University who served as a Japanese language officer in the Navy in World War II, has been an information and editorial specialist in the State Department since 1946. Author of Cape Horn and Other Poems (1952), he has now published a new collection of verse, The Pauses of the Eye (Dutton, 64 pgs., $3), source of the following selections.

Homer With a Camera

Mathew B. Brady, 1823-1896

In his ramshackle wagon rattling after battles,
And down on the ground and under the black
Cloth, his eye in the makeshift dark alive
With love of the visual image,
His hand directing the light to cut
War's configurations on the plate,
He saw the truth as terrible as myth,
And made for the eye its only Iliad
Of gods unbuttoned and the dead.

Cardinal

More flame than bird
At loose in the wood,
Though gone, still Burning where it stood.

Whitman

A Century of Leaves (1855-1955)

Not looking for you under their bootsoles,
The people do not find you now, as you hoped then,
A hundred years of leaves ago.
A young dog on the springy green
Knows more than the special presence that I mean,
Although his master watches and sees nothing.
You said that you could turn and live with animals.
It is animals, I think, would not have wrecked,
Lacking the world-destroying intellect,
Your vision, by the host unseen.

The open road leads only into space,
By rocket poised against the void.
Riders to the stars might take your leaves along
For guidance elsewhere. This is the wrong
Planet. The love of comrades is a hopeless case.

The Swifts

I watch the ceremony round the orifice
Of chimney swifts in flight, compelled
To act this rite like leaves
Whirled by the wind and Littering the air—
Until the last one
audibly
Wheeling in the deeper gloom
Drops
Into the birdpacked room
And draws the Darkness
In.

Boy in a Brown Fedora

(In the Negro slums, Washington, D.C.)

It is like imagination donned.
Under it his great face glows
Vivid as the ripe alum rose,
And I am willing to believe he is,
Wearing that noble hat,
Anything his wild thought pleases.

Filling Stations

And here in our nocturnal gardens
Night-blooming efflorescences;
The yellow globes, head-high, in bloom,
Distill their separate nectars,
Are visited by bees in queue,
In long processionals of buzzing traffic.
And all those flowers are kind to have
Attendants to ease the transfer
Of their most precious essences.
No rapacious probing in a sac,
The bee bending with its weight the flowers back,
But the flowers offer up the fragrant hearts
Filtered and distilled, distilled from their most Secret parts. And everywhere the full profusion,
The roads meandering, among unending gardens
Outblooming Castilian and Andalusian.

PHILLIPS

Appeal for Arms Must Be Met If Israel Isn't to Be Overrun By Arab Nations, Analyst Says

No Prospect of Agreement and Russia Appears Unwilling to Withdraw From Arms Race Which Threatens to Upset Balance of Power.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.

THE first small group, a dozen or so, of Egyptian pilots who were sent to Czechoslovakia to be trained to fly the Russian MIG-15 fighter and IL-28 jet bomber have returned to Egypt. Other Egyptian pilots are training in Czechoslovakia.

Since Premier Abdal Gamal Nasser of Egypt has denied that Communist technicians would come to Egypt to supervise maintenance and to instruct Egyptians in the use of Soviet equipment it appears that the instruction is being given to Egyptians in Czech military schools.

At present American military experts estimate that Israel and the surrounding Arab states of Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Lebanon, Syria and Iraq are about at a stand-off in military power. The Arab states have greater forces in being than Israel, but Israel can mobilize almost 250,000 men in 48 hours and the leadership, determination and spirit of the Israeli forces are superior.

Because there is a present balance, which has been rigorously preserved by the United States, Great Britain and France, the sale of arms by Czechoslovakia to Egypt, Syria and Saudi Arabia easily can upset it.

Extent of Deal Indefinite.

Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern Affairs George V. Allen has estimated the Czecho-Egyptian deal to amount to between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000. In terms of arms this is not a great amount. However, other authorities believe that the deal was on fire-sale terms and the actual value of the arms to be traded for Egyptian cotton and rice is in the neighborhood of $250,000,000.

It has been reliably reported that the deal includes MIG-15 fighters and IL-28 bombers. Although estimates have been published that some 200 aircraft were involved, reliable information indicates that it is closer to 100 than to 200.

The first aircraft have been delivered. Airplane wings were seen on one of the six freighters that have been unloading arms at Alexandria. Other important equipment includes 100 Stalin tanks, six motor torpedo boats and two submarines.

Until this time the air forces of Israel and the Arab states have all been equipped with British Meteors and Vampires —obsolete jets—and U.S. F-51 Mustangs. The Israeli air force consists of about 100 of these aircraft, organized mainly to support ground operations.

The 100 or more Soviet jet fighters and bombers are sufficient to drive the Israeli air force out of the air and to permit the Egyptians to bomb Israel almost without opposition. This would make a decisive change in the balance of military power.

The Stalin tanks would also have a decisive effect. Egypt now has 30 British Centurions, which are overmatched by the Stalin, and is getting 34 more on an arms deal which was halted at the time of the dispute over the British base in Egypt, but which now has been resumed. Israeli also has about 100 obsolete American Sherman tanks, and a number of light tanks.

Egypt already is carrying out a blockade of the Israeli port of Elath on the Gulf of Akaba and of all shipments to Israel through the Suez Canal. The motor torpedo boats and submarines will enable Egypt to extend this blockade to some degree to Israel ports on the Mediterranean.

Both Depreciate Strength.

In the dispute between Israel and Egypt, there is the strange spectacle of both sides attempting to belittle their own military strength in order to justify the purchase of additional arms.

A Israeli official source told the Post-Dispatch: "It has been officially published that Great Britain contracted in 1949 to sell Egypt 64 Centurian tanks. Some 30 of these have already been delivered. This is the most imposing armored vehicle in the Middle East. Israel has no Centurian tanks at all. In other categories Egypt has one and one-half to two tanks to every Israeli tank.

"Egypt has bought and had delivery of some 2500 heavy and light machine guns from Spain, as well as mortars. It has on order 200 to 300 Valentine tanks from Belgium. It has approximately 100 jet aircraft, in addition to squadrons of ordinary propeller-engined fighter aircraft, and there are further orders outstanding in Britain for jet aircraft due for delivery to Egypt.

"Egypt has one and one-half to two pieces of field artillery compared with the number of such pieces with the Israeli defense forces."

Nasser Voices His Concern.

Like the Israeli, Premier Nasser of Egypt has also discovered machinations to keep Egypt weak while Israel gets arms. Egyptian intelligence, he said, had acquired a secret French document.

"This French document," he continued, "states that the most important Israeli heavy weapons are of British-American origin. As an example here is some of the equipment which Israel has secured from Great Britain: 20 Meteors, 50 Mustangs, 20 Mosquito planes, 100 Sherman tanks, 15 Churchill tanks, 100 anti-tank guns, 70 pieces of artillery."

"Last week," he added, "we read in an Israeli paper, in Davar, that France has signed an agreement with Israel for the delivery of 100 (MS-15) tanks. It has also contracted for the delivery to Israel of a number of Mystere fighters."

Position of United States.

Knowing more or less what arms the Egyptians are getting from Czechoslovakia, it is not difficult to make an estimate of what Israel is now asking from the United States. Both the President and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles have said they would consider the sale of defensive arms and Assistant Secretary of State Allen has said, that the United States agrees to sell Israel "significant" arms.

However, official Israel sources say there is no such thing as defensive arms. Whether they are offensive or defensive, they state, depends upon how they are used, the intent in using them. With this position all military men will agree, except for limited categories such as antiaircraft guns.

Israel has an armored corps, probably of three brigades. Israel will want one of the brigades to be equipped with the latest American Patton tanks which are a match for the Stalin.

Israel also will need about 100 F-86 fighters to cope with the Soviet MIGs and some light jet bombers to be able to retaliate against Egypt if Israel is bombed.

Unquestionably the request will include a substantial amount of longer range artillery, such as the 155-m.m. gun and howitzer and possibly a small number of 8-inch howitzers. Modern antiaircraft guns will also be needed, such as the American 90-m.m. and the 75-m.m. Skyscraper.

Israel Needs Warships.

The Egyptian threat to Israel on the sea is serious and Israel will need motor torpedo boats and destroyer type vessels for antisubmarine operations and to prevent an Egyptian blockade of Israel.

Israel has not asked, the Post-Dispatch has been informed officially, for atomic weapons.

Nevertheless, the requirements are substantial. They must be met if Israel is not to be overwhelmed by its more numerous neighbors. There is no point in debating the question of whether the arms are defensive or offensive. The better solution would be to prevent an arms race in the Near East, but the Soviet maneuver and unwillingness to withdraw, has made the race inevitable.

There seems to be no present prospect of reaching any agreement between Israel and the Arab states. British Prime Minister Eden proposed Nov. 8 to negotiate a settlement that would fix the boundaries somewhere between those in the United Nations proposal of Sept. 1947 and the present armistice line which was agreed upon in 1949.

Israel has rejected this although it agreed to it in 1947, at which time the Arabs rejected it and invaded Israel. Now the Arabs are willing to negotiate on this basis.

Why Israel Shifted Stand.

The Israeli position is that this territory has been developed for six years by Israel and has been settled with Israeli.

Ben-Gurion takes seriously the Arab threats to drive Israel into the sea. On Nov. 2 he told the Knesset (parliament):

"King Saud of Arabia has declared in public that he is ready to sacrifice 10,000,000 Arabs to drive Israel off the earth. Radio Cairo recently reiterated these desires to annihilate Israel and Radio Cairo does not say anything that is not approved by the ruling junta."

For its security in the future Ben-Gurion says:

"We must become a maritime power. In antiquity, the Middle Ages, and also in modern times we have seen how small nations dwelling on the sea became great maritime powers through the development of shipping and fishing."

"Israel's security," he continued, "lies in immigration.

"Security means settlement, settlement of the unoccupied areas," he proclaimed.

This is just what the Arabs are afraid of and will fight to prevent. Our best informed officials do not see the way out.

U.S. and Russia Race to Train Technicians

of the nation; and the basic truths of human life, of nature and of the universe, and of social, political and economic reality, have been discovered and proclaimed and are beyond debate, so that the task of the teacher and the scholar is to demonstrate and apply the truths rather than to question them or to seek alternative truths.

Coercion Implied.

These maxims imply coercion and conformity to blind and dogmatic beliefs, Dewitt continues, but they also provide a realistic approach to the training of personnel for the Soviet type of economy. For various reasons there is an enforced selection at every educational level, he says, "which serves to channel the academically gifted rather than the merely competent into more advanced stages of training."

The basic Soviet educational framework corresponds roughly with that of the United States. The "10-year-school" takes children at the age of 7, who may have attended nursery school, and carries them from the first primary grade through what would be called high school in this country. After the fourth grade Russian students can be siphoned off to labor reserve trade schools and factory apprentice schools and after the seventh grade they may be moved into "technicums" or secondary semi-professional schools.

During the 10-year period a Soviet student is expected to spend about 2000 days in school, which compares with about 2160 days in the United States during a 12-year period. The Soviet curriculum is based on a six-day week. In addition to a greater emphasis on science and mathematics in Russia than in the United States, Soviet educators stress language and geography more than we do.

The 10-year Russian schools have no optional or elective courses. Teachers are checked regularly to be sure they measure up to standards. Written and oral examinations are checked or supervised by outsiders as well as by teachers. There have been many campaigns aimed at laxity in grading. An American who attended a Soviet 10-year school is quoted by Dewitt as saying he was required to conform to "a pace of schoolwork far more rigorous than any encountered in the United States."

Ivan Works Hard.

As Adm. Strauss put it:

"Young Ivan is made to work much harder than our Johnny. . . . By the time he completes high school he has had six years of biology, five years of physics, four years of chemistry and four years of mathematics, including trigonometry. Fifty-three per cent of our high schools do not teach physics at all and half of them do not teach chemistry."

Education is a state monopoly and is completely secularized. While it emphasizes scientific subjects at all levels, it also stresses physical and military training, political indoctrination and an introduction to productive work. In the course of educational reforms in the early thirties emphasis began to be placed, Dewitt says, on discipline and obedience, individual learning and grading and the mastery of certain skills and knowledge.

"It is apparent," Dewitt says, "that the most important factor which motivated this reform was the simple practical consideration of the great and pressing need for young people to know the fundamental principles of science, to have adequate preparation in physics, mathematics, chemistry and other natural sciences, to acquire habits of order and a sense of systematic learning."

Dewitt points out that higher education is more accessible in the United States than in the Soviet Union, that in 1953 this country had about 5,800,000 persons with completed higher education (college or first professional degree) while Russia had only about 2,000,000. But he italicizes this comment:

"However, in applied scientific fields—such as engineering, agriculture and medicine—the number of Soviet professionals with completed higher education was about equal to or somewhat above the number of trained persons in these occupations in the United States."

Emphasis on Science.

Dewitt quotes numerous figures illustrative of this. Strauss, in his talk earlier in the week, also quoted statistics. Strauss's figures are somewhat more up to date. The AEC chairman said in part:

"The emphasis which the Soviets are placing on science and particularly on the training of new young scientists and engineers presents a real and growing challenge to us. Their scientists and engineers are well-trained and highly competent. We are turning out less than one-half the number of scientists and engineers we require.

"We require from 45,000 to 50,000 new trained engineers every year. We are getting half that number. Last June's crop was about 23,000. Russia at the same time produced 53,000 new engineers and is expected substantially to increase that number next year and each year thereafter.

"Russia is graduating 120,000 new scientists and engineers of all types this year, which compares with our total of 70,000. Between 1950 and 1960, which may be the most critical decade of our national existence, Russia is expected to produce 1,200,000 trained engineers and scientists, against our 900,000.

"At present we are about even with or perhaps slightly ahead of the Soviets in numbers of trained scientists and engineers — about 1,000,000 in each country. In Russia's case this is for an industrial establishment far smaller than ours. Russia has some 520,000 graduate engineers and we may be sure that substantially all of them are engaged upon the work for which they were schooled. We have a somewhat larger number of graduates, but this is more than offset by the fact that only 65 per cent of our engineers are actually working at their professions. A third of them have gone into executive jobs or have wandered off into sales promotion, finance or other lines of work."

High Schools Failing?

Strauss charged that American high school systems are failing in their obligations. Between 250,000 and 400,000 high school students are learning mathematics from teachers not trained to teach the subject, he said, adding that the same situation prevails in science teaching. In an "appalling percentage" of instances, Strauss went on, science courses have been abandoned because there are not enough trained teachers. By a sort of reverse chain reaction the situation is becoming worse.

Educators frequently complain that science graduates are drawn too often into industry and do not remain in the academic system to teach young people.

Adm. Strauss, emphasizing that a solution must be found within the framework of democratic principles, suggested the United States assure in some manner that students with demonstrated aptitude receive suitable inspiration. He termed this a challenge to parents, educators, industry, professional societies and government at all levels.

Campaign Proposed.

For the short range, Strauss proposed that industry and the professional societies undertake a campaign to popularize a plan under which every engineer and scientist in the country would volunteer to conduct classes in physics, chemistry and mathematics in secondary schools a few hours each month.

As a more permanent program, he proposed that colleges recognize the gravity of the threat and make a certain minimum of credits in physics and chemistry a requirement for enrollment. That would force changes in high school curricula.

Adm. Rickover, who is chief of the Naval reactors branch of the AEC as well as assistant chief of the Navy's Bureau of Ships, said he had found in interviewing college graduates that all but a small number lack "proper motivation" in that they are seeking security in terms of money rather than opportunities for self-improvement.

He said also he had found these graduates had learned many facts but not many principles.

"The facts we learn are soon forgotten and their meaning changes with time," he said. "A trained man knows how to answer questions. An educated man knows what questions are worth asking. . . . I do not believe 'practical stuff' should be or can be taught in a university. The employer who wants a 'practical' engineering graduate is simply hiring a man who knows how to make the same mistakes that have been made in his plant for the last 10 or 15 years."

Adm. Rickover suggested that means be found to see that every qualified young man and woman receives a college education. He said that for every high school graduate who eventually earns a doctoral degree there are 25 others with the intellectual ability to earn such a degree who do not achieve it. He also urged "drastically" higher pay for teachers, increased funds for education, a lengthening of the school year, increased opportunities for gifted children and better school administration. He proposed in addition that industrial organizations at their own expense loan their scientists and engineers to the schools for annual periods, and that industries and labor unions go further in helping finance education.

Civil Rights Getting New Recognition

Hearings Reveal Growing Administrative Respect for Citizens.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.

SENATE investigators disclosed this week that for the first time since Senator Joseph R. McCarthy was flying high there is developing judicial and administrative recognition that the constitutional rights of citizens have, at least, equal standing with civil or military authority.

To optimistic observers at the public hearings on constitutional rights being conducted by a subcommittee headed by Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr., Missouri Democrat, it appeared that the heyday of the faceless accuser was nearing its end, and that the time-honored Anglo-Saxon dictate of guilt based upon substantiated proof was again, after a temporary lapse, going to become an integral part of the American governmental fabric.

The immediate issue before the Hennings subcommittee involved individuals penalized in one fashion or another for alleged past associations with organizations now designated as subversive by the Attorney General or the House Un-American Activities Committee, or with persons, including close relatives, who at one time or another may have had such unorthodox associations.

Secret Accusers.

But the broader issue confronting the subcommittee was the presence in the cases before it of the unidentifiable informant who initiated the charges and who could not be confronted, on the grounds of official secrecy, for examination as to his credibility, reliability or, in most cases, as to his actual existence.

The Hennings subcommittee is concerned with the operation of the Government's far-flung loyalty-security program as it affects civilians and members of the armed forces. Hence it could take courage from, and considerable credit, for developments in which the Government, in the language of lawyers, has been obliged to confess error, through judicial fiat or administrative revision of rules.

The change in complexion began in the early summer, as the Hennings subcommittee was warming up to its job, when the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco ruled that the Government could not rely upon information emanating from a source it refused to identify in branding as a security risk a merchant seaman under its port security program.

Passport Ruling.

Again in June, the Circuit Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia decreed that the passport office of the State Department must grant a hearing on its denial of a permit to travel abroad to an individual whom the authorities had arbitrarily placed under interdict because of information from a secret source that he was guilty of surversive associations or activities.

This week the pace set by these decisions picked up momentum as the Hennings subcommittee moved relentlessly on.

In the District of Columbia, Federal Judge Luther W. Youngdahl blasted the use by the Government of the "secret informant and the faceless talebearer" in the case of persons accused of subversive activities.

In ordering the State Department to grant a hearing within 20 days to an individual denied a passport to travel abroad, Judge Youngdahl said there was no question that secret information must be put on the record so that a defense could be arrayed against it.

As Judge Youngdahl put it: "When the basis of action by any branch of government remains hidden from scrutiny and beyond practical review, the seeds of arbitrary and irresponsible government are sown."

Upholds Hennings.

Judge Youngdahl added in his official decree what Senator Hennings and his subcommittee counsel, Lon Hocker of St. Louis, have been saying all along, that:

"More and more the courts have become aware of the irreparable damage which may be wrought by the secret informers and the faceless tale-bearers whose identity and testimony remains locked in confidential files."

It is noteworthy that in earlier cases where the rulings of the State Department have been challenged in legal actions, the passport office has issued travel permits rather than face a court test of the secret information originally invoked in its adverse rulings.

The secret informer figures in other areas of the Hennings investigation, notably, so far, in the cases of service men who have been dismissed from the service with less than honorable discharges because of derogatory information linking them directly or through relatives to alleged subversive organizations prior to induction.

This week a Federal Judge hit at this practice.

Civil Rights Violated.

In New York City, Judge David W. Edelstein ruled that the Army violates civil rights when it gives anything other than an honorable discharge to an inductee because of pre-induction membership in, or association with, an allegedly subversive organization. This ruling substantiated the Hennings contention that the military has no right to punish a soldier for acts committed as a civilian—that being the function of the civil authorities.

Moreover, representatives of the Defense and Army departments agreed this week, under prodding by Hennings and Hocker, to review their practice of automatic discharges of less than an honorable nature for service men adjudged—or self adjudged—to have had questionable associations prior to induction. An Army spokesman pledged that in the future information which is unsupported will not be placed in a soldier's file.

Anonymous information in recent days, however, raised a question in the minds of Hennings and Hocker as to definition.

One security officer who was testifying said that:

"These informants are not anonymous—we just don't know who they are."

Afghans Driven to Dependence On Russia by Row With Pakistan

Quarrel Over Border Tribesmen Led to Closing of Frontiers, Forced Landlocked Nation to Rely on Soviet Route.

By FERDINAND KUHN
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KABUL, Afghanistan, Nov. 26.

THE NEW RULERS of Russia have something to smile about these days as they look southward toward the Persian Gulf and the Indian Ocean. They can see this land-locked country on their southern border stumbling into economic, political and military dependence on the Soviet Union.

The Afghans are good Moslems with no love for Russia or Communism, but their leaders may yet deliver them into Soviet hands. The result would be the end of another country's independence, and a dangerous expansion of Soviet power.

At first sight no part of Asia could matter less to the West than this Texas-sized country of bare mountains, deserts and river valleys. Its 12,000,000 people, three fourths of them farmers and one fifth wandering herdsmen, are no threat to anyone. Of its natural resources, only karakul lambskins and fruit have been exploited up to now; its foreign trade with the free world is an unimportant $64,000,000 worth a year.

But geography has made Afghanistan important for more than 2000 years. Conquerors starting with Alexander the Great have swept through its barren plains and mountain passes into India. Today the Russians have a sudden opportunity to get to the edge of the Indian subcontinent, without sending an army and almost without lifting a finger. The reason is a miserable dispute summed up in the word "Pushtunistan."

Row With Pakistan.

The dispute concerns the 9,000,000 warlike tribesmen who live on both sides of the Pakistan-Afghanistan frontier. About 4,000,000 of them are on the Afghan side, 5,000,000 in Pakistan. In 1947, when the British quit India and set up an independent Pakistan, the Afghans revived an old demand that these tribesmen should form an independent nation. Since the tribesmen are Pathans, or "Pushtuns" in their own language, their new nation was to be known as "Pushtunistan."

For eight years the Afghans have been beating the drums of a crude propaganda against Pakistan on this issue. They have demanded that Pakistan give up a huge slice of its territory to make the new state possible. To an outsider it looks like an irrational demand, without the slightest basis in international law; but the Afghans take it seriously. In particular, their strong-willed young Prime Minister, Prince Mohammed Duad, a first cousin of the King, takes it with the seriousness of a zealot.

The dispute reached the breaking point last March, when Pakistan merged its Northwest Frontier province, the home of the tribesmen, into a single state of West Pakistan.

An Afghan mob stormed the Pakistan embassy here and tore down its flag. When apologies did not come, Pakistan committed an act of breath-taking folly for a bigger, stronger and presumably wiser neighbor. It closed the Afghan frontier and imposed an economic blockade. The Afghans found themselves landlocked as never before. They had been bringing most of their machinery, trucks and consumer goods, and sending most of their exports, through the Pakistan port of Karachi. Now they were threatened with economic strangulation.

Help From Russia.

At this point Khrushchev, Bulganin & Co. moved in. They promptly offered the Afghans a new transit route through Soviet territory. Within the past few weeks the Russians have signed a transit agreement under which goods can be landed on the Black Sea and carried by rail, at subsidized rates, to the Soviet-Afghan frontier. From there, in this country that has no railroad, the goods are trucked over unpaved Afghan roads.

The proud Afghans are still using the Russian route for most of their traffic, even though Pakistan has reopened its frontier. In their anger at Pakistan, the Afghans are even talking about getting arms from Russia.

The Russians, in addition, have been making hay with $5,000,000 worth of showy projects here in Kabul, where the Afghan leaders can see them. They have paved the main streets, built a grain silo and cement plant, and delivered 30 sleek Russian busses and 20 taxicabs. The taxicabs are the first this city has ever seen. The United States investment, in contrast, has been 10 times as big in terms of money and far more useful to the Afghans. It has concentrated on technical assistance and on a huge flood control and irrigation project in the south. But not one member of the present Afghan government has ever taken the trouble to go south to see it.

More American millions, to outbid the Russians, will not change the course of Afghan policy. The immediate problem is political; the crux is "Pushtunistan." The first job of Western diplomacy is somehow to persuade the Pakistanis and the Afghans to put their dispute, and their emotions, on ice, and to behave as neighbors should. But this would require statesmanship on both sides—and statesmanship is a commodity sadly lacking in this troubled part of Asia.

Craving for Beauty in an Unexpected Place

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN
Book Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

RUMER GODDEN'S novel "An Episode of Sparrows" allows us to believe that the craving for beauty dies hard. The background of her story is a bombed-out section of London where the children of the middling poor must seek their diversions in filthy back-alleys, rutted pavements and in vacant lots piled with rubble.

One of the denizens of Catford street is a little girl named Lovejoy Mason who wants to plant a garden where gardens never grow. Lovejoy has had no previous knowledge of gardens. She knows something about music halls because her raffish mother is a chorus girl but in the period of her most eventful series of adventures she has been temporarily abandoned. Housed in Catford street with one of her mother's friends she joins the other "street sparrows" that infest the neighborhood.

One day she snatches a small package from a less aggressive playmate and finding that it's a package of seed she decides, logically enough, to plant them and watch the flowers bloom. Her first efforts are frustrated by a gang of boys who resent her presence in the ruins that lie piled up on a nearby lot.

RUMER GODDEN

AN EPISODE OF SPARROWS, by Rumer Godden. (Viking Press, 247 pgs., $3.50.)

BY the time she locates another possible site in the half-hidden yard of the Catholic church she has also discovered that she needs more than seed to make a garden. Garden tools cost money; so she robs the collection box in the church, gets her tools and starts to work.

By this time one of the gang leaders in the neighborhood, a big, aggressive boy named Tip Malone, has decided to join her. Something about her absorption in such a crazy project together with her fragile appearance has aroused in him a latent chivalry. Tip, however, is a pious boy and when he learns how she is financing her garden he persuades her to make restitution as a penance.

This is unbelievably difficult. Working together the two of them manage to scrounge a few pennies here and there which Lovejoy, in full sight of the Virgin's statue, returns to the violated collection box.

Formidable difficulties still lie ahead. In surmounting them both Tip and Lovejoy run afoul of the law and outrage the quality folk whose nearby park they despoil while scooping up eighteen bucketloads of dirt. Fortunately a rich and somewhat eccentric lady intervenes in their behalf as does the neighborhood priest. So life looks much brighter for Tip and Lovejoy when the narrative comes to an end even though they are forced to abandon their garden.

AS summarized this story may seem to be naively sentimental. I can assure you there's nothing naive about it. The realities of Catford street are set down in unsparing detail both in carrying forward the main line of development and in describing the parallel activities of numerous subordinate characters. Miss Godden assumes, to be sure, that compassion and generosity may show up in unexpected places; and the circumstances of Lovejoy's deliverance may be a bit fortuitous.

Statistical probability, however, is not the primary virtue of imaginative writing. In this case, certainly, the desired suspension of disbelief comes easily, for Miss Godden not only writes with a deft, enticing charm, humor and vividness of detail but creates as well an atmosphere of plausibility.

THEY'RE GOING TO KILL ME, by Kathleen Moore Knight. (Doubleday, 186 pgs., $2.75.)

LANCE HARDY should have been the happiest man in Boston this Christmas eve. He lives with his two adoring aunts in a fine old house on Beacon Hill; he has an impeccable social position and wealth and he is engaged to lovely Susan Carey. In spite of all this, he is terrified. What happened in Korea to cause his war buddies to appear in Boston vowing revenge? How and where could Lance have known the blonde in the cheap fur coat who peers through the window of his home during the Christmas eve party? Why is Lance almost incoherent when he hears the "Whiffenpoof Song"? As Susan ponders on these strange happenings, all Lance says is, "They're going to kill me." Authentic atmosphere and an exciting plot add up to one of the best mystery stories of the year.

THE MAN OUT OF THE RAIN AND OTHER STORIES, by Philip MacDonald. (Doubleday, 189 pgs., $2.75.)

THIS volume of six short crime stories takes its name from a tale of horror concerning a woman and her child, trapped with a killer in her home on a mountain side during a flood. Another story, "Dream No More," is high in suspense while "The Go-Between" is a touching account of a little girl whose teddy bear is missing. The remaining stories are also well plotted and entertaining. The first story collection by this successful author, "Something to Hide," was judged by the Mystery Writers of America to be the best book of mystery stories of 1952.

GOVERNMENT

The Welfare of the People

NATIONAL POLICIES FOR EDUCATION, HEALTH AND WELFARE, ed. James E. Russell. (Doubleday & Co., 551 pgs., $7.50.)

Reviewed by
WERNER Z. HIRSCH

THE early pioneers were true individualists, each man for himself. Since then we have come a long way in our attitudes and practices concerning the collective well-being of individuals. How far we have actually come and what government should do about the welfare needs of the people was the theme of a conference held at Columbia University on the occasion of its bicentennial celebration.

The distinguished contributors included Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, President A. Whitney Griswold of Yale, Adlai E. Stevenson and Dean Benjamin Youngdahl of Washington University.

There is almost complete unanimity among the contributors that while Americans should be left free of governmental interference in their private affairs, the leadership for the welfare of the people must come from the federal government.

Dean Youngdahl, perhaps more than any other writer, is aware of the increased industrialization and urbanization of America and its ensuing social changes and needs. In such a society stable employment at living wages, wide-open educational facilities, and income security for those who are unemployed because of ill-health or age are of paramount importance.

Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1934 stated his belief that "Security was obtained in earlier days through the interdependence of members of families upon each other.... The complexities of great communities and of organized industry make less real these simple means of security." His conclusion was that government must assume the responsibility of giving each individual greater security.

Consistent with these ideas Dean Youngdahl outlines a three-pronged plan: The government should fully assume the responsibility of establishing a framework in which the individual has a maximum opportunity to get along on his own and by himself. His specific proposals include leadership in maintaining full employment, stable prices and public housing, and encouraging progress and knowledge. As a more direct measure he proposes a widening of the scope and coverage of social insurance; expansion of the Old Age and Survivor's Insurance and inclusion of insurance against illness and disability. Furthermore, a nationwide network of public welfare departments with Federal grants-in-aid should be set up.

ALL in all the conviction is that the well-being of the individual is a matter of RIGHT, and to provide it a partnership between the federal and local government is needed. That the federal government should be the inspiring leader cannot be questioned.

Yet the great debate starts when the nature of the leadership and its inclusiveness comes up for discussion. Even Mrs. Hobby agrees that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare should be at the "hub of the wheel and the spokes running outward to the States and local communities."

However, even today the word welfare state is used in a rather derogatory sense. Yet in more than one respect we are becoming a country where society, and government with it, assumes more and more of the responsibilities of looking after the welfare of its people, and few will claim that this is not progress.

Mountains Cast a Spell

THE BOOK OF THE MOUNTAINS, edited by A. C. Spectorsky. (Appleton-Century-Crofts, 492 pgs., $10.)

JACK ALDRIDGE

THE mountains have always cast a spell of enchantment on men, and for those who know the haunting fascination of high places this rich anthology of mountain literature is just the thing. More than an ordinary amount of care went into the selection of writings to be included, and literary excellence was a prime consideration.

As is usual in comprehensive anthologies, the reader may wonder as to why a particular piece was chosen, but all in all the collection is a meritorious one and the writings are supplemented by some breath-taking photographs and drawings of mountain scenes.

The book is divided into six sections, each having to do with a single aspect of man's relations with the mountains, such as climbing, living and working, military operations, scientific reports, and poetic legends that hint of the supernatural. It is a companion volume to Spectorsky's earlier "Book of the Sea" and the impressive array of authors represented includes Pliny, describing the eruption of Mount Vesuvius, Xenophon, Walt Whitman, Thomas Mann, Leonardo da Vinci, Andre Malraux, Thoreau, Melville, Mark Twain, Sigrid Undset, C. G. Jung, Thomas Wolfe, and, unexpectedly, Norman Mailer, with a passage from "The Naked and the Dead."

MODERN HISTORY

Truman's View of Himself

YEAR OF DECISIONS: VOL. I OF MEMOIRS, by Harry Truman. (Doubleday and Co., 596 pgs., $5.)

Reviewed by
ROBERT LASCH

AS readers of the serialized version of Mr. Truman's memoirs will have observed, they are required reading for anybody interested in recent history, but do not, after all, tell very much that was not known before.

Mr. Truman makes no pretense of writing great prose, though when his simple directness overcomes the officialities to which a long official life habituated him he writes well enough. He has few secrets to tell. And his memory, as is quite clear from the vociferous challenges that have come from so many persons of whom he writes, is not—well, unchallengeable.

The character that shines through these pages is an amazing circumscribed one. Here was a man whose official policies rose to peaks of national greatness, and who through it all remained, apparently, a rather small-bore, petty, singularly myopic politician.

Considering the times, the powerful isolationist impulse that usually asserts itself after foreign wars, the domestic political situation and the world strategic situation, Mr. Truman must command the deepest respect for the record of his Administration. The Marshall Plan, Point IV, the Berlin airlift, the welding of the Atlantic alliance, the response to aggression in Korea, all add up to great acts of a great Administration. Yet it is impossible, reading the memoirs, to believe that it was led by a great man.

THE memoirs show a man who has consistently revised his judgments and his recollections in the light of hindsight, to wrap his whole life in a misty veil of self-justification. He may admit a mistake here and there, but the general impression he gives is one of unexampled honesty, incorruptibility, wisdom and courage in public office.

And it is curious that he has so little to say about Tom Pendergast. What would he have to lose by admitting that Tom Pendergast sent him to the Senate? Yet he presents his first campaign in terms which imply that it was his vigorous campaigning in rural Missouri that won him the nomination, whereas his own figures make plain that only a topheavy Jackson county vote overcame his losses elsewhere.

With an official record of great deeds to boast of, Mr. Truman never seems to have made peace with himself as he was. He has felt obliged to draw an absurdly complimentary self-portrait that is really not Harry Truman, but somebody he would have liked to be Harry Truman. Most people will prefer the real one, who must have been, if not great, still an outstanding man to lead the Administration he led.

Hunting Stories

BIG WOODS, by William Faulkner. (Random House, Inc., 198 pgs., $3.95.)

WILLIAM FAULKNER has linked together "The Bear," that long, short story which compares favorably with the best of his novels, and three other stories to produce this fine book about hunting. In omitting all of the fourth section of "The Bear," he certainly has narrowed his canvass. But he again reconciles hunter and hunted while also lamenting that lack of restraint which in a generation or two destroyed most of the wildlife and wilderness of his region. The book is handsomely illustrated by Edward Shenton.

Fantastic Story of Krebiozen

Former President of University of Illinois Tells What He Experienced

"KREBIOZEN": THE GREAT CANCER MYSTERY, by George D. Stoddard. (Beacon Press, 282 pgs., $3.50.)

EVARTS A. GRAHAM, M.D.

THIS book by the former president of the University of Illinois gives a detailed account of the events that led up to his dismissal by the Board of Trustees of that university. The story revealed by Dr. Stoddard is so fantastic that it seems hardly credible, yet it is carefully documented. As further evidence of the truth of the contained statements is the fact that the publication of the book was held up for more than three months by legal action taken by the Krebiozen interests. They must have felt that the truth would hurt them. The Beacon Press of Boston deserves our thanks and congratulations for its courage in publishing the book.

Krebiozen was the name given by its promoters to an alleged cancer cure. Many fake cures for cancer have been promoted from time to time but they have usually passed quickly into the limbo of forgotten things without gaining notoriety. Probably Krebiozen would have followed the same course if it had not been for the melodrama of its setting. Here we are dealing not only with a Graustarkian tale out of the Balkans, but with actual events that are frightening to anybody who is really interested in the public welfare and in scientific honesty.

The tale begins in August, 1949, when two brothers by the name of Durovic called upon Dr. Andrew C. Ivy who was then Distinguished Professor of Physiology, head of the Department of Clinical Science and vice president in charge of the Chicago professional colleges of the University of Illinois. The brothers claimed to be the sons of a former premier of Yugoslavia under King Paul and to be related to the former Queen of Italy. They said they held passports with a Vatican visa to Argentina from the no-longer recognized government of King Paul and that they were in the United States under visitors' visas.

DR. STEVAN DUROVIC stated that in the early 1930s he had spent most of his time in research on cancer at his castle in Montenegro. The brother, Mr. Marco Durovic, claimed to have been a judge. Both brothers emigrated to Argentina where they set up the so-called Instituto Biologica Duga. Dr. Stevan was the self-appointed Scientific Director of the Instituto; and the ex-judge, Marco, was the president of the company.

They asserted they had spent $1,326,000 on the research which culminated in the preparation of Krebiozen and, as might be expected, they aimed to recover that money in the United States, the nation of rich suckers. The plan was to dispose of 200,000 ampules allegedly containing the miracle drug at $6.63 per ampule. What could be more generous on their part, only to ask for reimbursement for the actual amount of money spent by them in the discovery and preparation of a substance that would cure cancer, at least in those people who had money to buy enough ampules?

GEORGE D. STODDARD

The flies in the ointment, however, consisted of the fact that the philanthropic brothers Durovic never would make a clear and intelligible statement of just how the substance was prepared, either on the grounds of the Montenegrin castle or on the horse farm in Argentina. Moreover, they were never able to provide any of the material for chemical analysis because very thoughtlessly they had mixed it all up in mineral oil.

FINALLY, although samples of the mixture were given to three different reputable commissions in the United States to test on cancer patients the verdict of each of the commissions was that not the slightest beneficial effect could be discovered. Two of these commissions were set up respectively by the American Medical Association and the Chicago Medical Society. The third was a special group appointed by President Stoddard of six members from five different universities. The head of the latter group was Dr. Warren H. Cole, the Professor of Surgery at the University of Illinois, who was formerly a member of the department of surgery here at Washington University.

Meanwhile the dramatis personae of the melodrama increased in number and in heterogeneity. Three United States Senators became a part of the cast, together with several members of the Illinois State Legislature, a Chicago newspaper, certain shadowy characters who seemed to be more interested in the financial and business aspects of the deal than in its alleged philanthropic claims, and the members of the Board of Trustees of the University of Illinois.

What should have been no more than a scientific appraisal of another alleged cancer cure gradually developed such extreme bitterness on the part of the Krebiozen Research Foundation, its most important champion Dr. Ivy, and certain laymen on the Board of Trustees of the University against Dr. Stoddard that a drama with many elements of comedy became over a period of about four years a tragedy. Not only was Dr. Stoddard finally ousted from the presidency but Dr. Ivy, his leading opponent, was also turned out of his position as vice president and has become completely discredited by his scientific colleagues.

THE last and almost unbelievable act in this strange tragedy was that the final executioner of the president of the University, the man who pulled the trigger, was one "Red" Grange, a former football hero at the University, more recently a television commentator on professional football games, who was a member of the Board of Trustees. He is given the credit for requesting the private session of the Board at which was taken the vote of "no confidence" which compelled the resignation of the president.

Is it not terrifying to witness what can happen to a man of the highest integrity who is discharging in a very creditable manner the complex functions of the head of a great university? This is not something that has occurred in Russia but it has happened in our own United States. A distinguished, intelligent and fearless man is attacked by a rabble of those who are utterly incompetent to judge the right or the wrong in the issue and is forced out of his position because he tried to protect the public from exploitation and to save the reputation of his university.

I wonder if "Red" Grange and the other Trustees are still satisfied with what they did. All those who are deeply concerned about the preservation of the integrity of our educational institutions should read this book. But it is not recommended as a soothing bedtime story.

A Notorious Hellhole

ANDERSONVILLE, by MacKinlay Kantor. (World, 767 pgs., $5.)

HARNETT T. KANE

NOT in years has the American public received so powerful, and so powerfully impressive, a work of the imagination as this long, panoramic, closely packed novel based on events and people in the hellhole of a Confederate prison, the famous Andersonville of Georgia.

In this latest of his many volumes Mr. Kantor comes into his own as an important American writer, in a book of deep emotion, of smoldering action and long reflection. It is difficult to imagine a writer, North or South, who will not be moved once he adjusts himself to the tempo and realizes the purpose of this master work.

"Andersonville" is an episodic novel, without more than three or four major characters. It has, instead, a myriad of figures, each taking his small or otherwise circumscribed role in the novel. Each contributes his part to the building of a total effect, a brilliantly conceived essay upon human failings, human good and human capacity for endurance or suffering.

Without question certain readers will be repelled by this book, by its grim cataloguing of man's frequent bestiality to man, of wretched conditions of health and malnutrition, of neglect or mistreatment. And "Andersonville" has, at least in some measure, that flaw of so many recent novels; it is too long, and judicious editing would have improved it enormously.

But, after these statements are made, Mr. Kantor's richly filled work remains unique in its effect. He has worked long upon his facts; he has dug deeply into a mass of sources; and most important of all, he has created a cast of superbly developed characters.

A NUMBER of Southerners may be offended by aspects of "Andersonville." They should not be; there were horrible conditions in camps on both sides in the war, and there were men of sadistic nature in camps in which they had opportunity to treat others with callous disregard, or worse. Then, too, as the author indicates, these episodes at Andersonville occurred at a time when the South had little or nothing for its own soldiers, scant food for its civilians, and a time when war bitterness flared as never before.

This is, basically, not a book of North-South relations but of man pitted against man, of the fundamentals of power, the abuse of power, and the erosion of captor and captured.

The reader will long recall such individuals as Ira Claffey, a medium-range Southern planter who felt a duty toward his slaves; and Dr. Harry Elkins and Hazareth Stricker and one or two others. But he will remember, more than these individuals, the impact and power of a situation and a place that became a symbol of agony and dissolution.

Grandparents Have It Best

YOUR REWARDING YEARS: NEW MEANING, PURPOSE AND HAPPINESS FROM THE MIDDLE YEARS ON, by Mrs. Clarence H. Hamilton. (Bobbs-Merrill, 219 pgs., $2.75.)

Reviewed by
A. MERVYN DAVIES

"Grow old along with me! The best is yet to be...."

I CAN remember repeating these lines of Robert Browning to my wife when we were first married. And now what Browning must have meant by the "best" is close upon us, namely, the years that follow the rearing and educating of one's family, when the burdens begin to grow lighter and the opportunities that life presents for wider enjoyments become greater. So it is time to look ahead and plan.

That is the theme of Mrs. Hamilton's helpful and stimulating book. These are the "rewarding years."

Gerontology — defined by Webster as "the scientific study of the phenomena of old age"—is necessarily receiving constantly more study because we have to face the problems that come with an aging population. Mrs. Hamilton has chosen to survey the practical philosophical aspect of the subject, the aspect of Amiel's "Journal intime": "To know how to grow old is the master work of wisdom, and one of the most difficult chapters in the great art of living."

There is no doubt at all that the problems which the author discusses are real ones for virtually all who reach these "rewarding years." They are those arising out of the wise management of our lives when our families no longer need us, when the children grow up, marry, leave home; when we become grandparents; when that house, which used to house a large brood and be the scene of so much activity, becomes too big for just two people and we "rattle around" in it; when the time of retirement inexorably looms ahead and we begin to wonder just exactly what we are going to do with our remaining years. Are they going to become empty ones—or full of all kinds of new and exciting things?

TO the discussion of these problems Mrs. Hamilton brings a wealth of experience and sympathetic understanding both of her own—for she has raised a family of four — and gleaned from others. Her pages are full of helpful suggestions and she gives many case histories of people who have successfully dealt with these problems.

Specifically, she discusses such problems as: When we are alone; having happy relationships with our married children; when we have to live with them; the role of the grandparents; where to make our home.

Her pages are full of inspiration—but not of the preachy sort. They reflect her own faith that these latter years can and should, under ordinary circumstances, be the richest and most rewarding of our lives—even when they have to be lived under the shadow of handicaps, physical, financial or emotional.

As one who is now a grandfather and so has entered upon this period of his life, I can recommend Mrs. Hamilton's book to those in a like spot. Grandpa as well as Grandma, it might be well to add, can benefit from it!

Victoria's Golden Years

VICTORIAN PEOPLE, by Asa Briggs. (University of Chicago Press, 313 pgs., $5.)

WE have slipped the word "age" behind Queen Victoria's name and so some of us have all but slipped into the illusion that the period was as long as, say, the Age of the Antonines. Oxford's Prof. Asa Briggs argues that the golden days of the Victorian period ran only from the opening of the Great Exhibition in 1851 to the adoption of the second reform bill in 1867.

Whatever term one may want to set for the period, these were turning points, and between them some fascinating individuals passed across the English stage: Anthony Trollope, the novelist; Walter Bagehot, expounder of the British constitution; Thomas Hughes, author of "Tom Brown's School Days"; Joseph Paxton, builder of the Crystal Palace; John Bright, the Quaker reformer, and Samuel Smiles, that odd apostle of improvement through industry, among others.

Their England and their ideas certainly were different from what came after Disraeli's reform legislation, "the leap in the dark" which brought about a different England, yet hardly a poorer one, Carlyle to the contrary notwithstanding.

Shellabarger's Last

THE TOKEN, by Samuel Shellabarger. (Little, Brown and Co., 135 pgs., $3.)

PRESUMABLY the last and almost certainly the least of Mr. Shellabarger's works "The Token" will hardly satisfy the appetites of those used to the more robust fare of his "Captain From Castile," "Prince of Foxes" or "Lord Vanity." This slight book, published posthumously, would seem to be hardly more than an outline which had he lived the author might have developed into a meatier story. It is presented rather like a tale for young people, with a fairy story and a dream as the most delightful and vivid incidents. Delicate illustrations by Steele Savage evoke the days of knight errantry in medieval France most attractively. Physically it is a pleasure, a slim volume of 130 pages and big print with only about 200 words to a page. Nice for reading in bed if one wants to fall easily and quickly to sleep.

A REPORT TO THE ST. LOUIS COMMUNITY ON THE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY SECOND CENTURY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

During the first year of Washington University's Second Century Development Program, the response from the community has been heart-warming.

Every citizen who was asked to lend a hand in the work necessary to stage the "Blessings of Liberty" Convocation last February accepted without hesitation and gave generously of his or her time.

When the University's capital gifts solicitation began in April, again the request for the donation of time and effort by many leading citizens in our community was answered with affirmative enthusiasm.

Through the generosity of many people, the University has now received more than $8,000,000 in gifts and pledges toward its three-year goal of $20,000,000.

The program is moving forward. Within the next few weeks, many more individuals and businesses will be given an opportunity to invest in the work of the University. The task of helping Washington University to realize its great potential of service to St. Louis and the world continues with full vigor, thanks to St. Louis men and women of vision.

A program of higher education for a current enrollment of 12,750 students, including more than 11,000 from the Greater St. Louis area. This represents a growth from 1905 when the entire student body and faculty were able to assemble in one room of Brookings Hall on the Skinker Boulevard campus.

An independent University which has been in continuous operation for 102 years. Through the generosity of the people of this area, Washington University has brought the advantages of higher education to the youth and adults of this community without the expenditure of appropriated tax money.

A carefully-selected, highly-trained faculty of 571 full-time and 1004 part-time professional men and women. In addition to their activities at the University, faculty members devote their talents to full participation in the civic and cultural life of the community.

A world-recognized medic ter with its wealth of medical, dental, and nursing authorities which, together with the affiliated hospitals and clinics, provides the teaching program and the research and care that save uncounted lives and bring a higher level of health and happiness to all.

A University which ranks 24th in the number of alumni in Who's Who in America among 990 independent colleges, universities, and technical schools in the country.

Fifteen schools and colleges, including the College of Liberal Arts, the School of Engineering, the School of Architecture, the School of Business and Public Administration, the George Warren Brown School of Social Work, the Henry Shaw School of Botany, the School of Law, the School of Medicine, the School of Dentistry, the School of Nursing, the School of Fine Arts, University College, the Summer School, the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, and the Sever Institute of Technology.

Full service to the community. As just one example, more than 250 educational and cultural events to which the St. Louis public was invited were held on the campus during the past academic year. These included lectures, concerts, dramatic productions, art exhibits, specialized conferences, institutes, workshops, and convocations.

An extensive educational program for adult St. Louisans in evening courses at University College. More than 200 firms in Greater St. Louis have five or more employees taking advantage of these courses to upgrade their abilities and, therefore, their value to their employers.

Services to St. Louis business and industry. The presence on the University faculty of recognized authorities in science, engineering, management, and many other fields, makes available to business and industrial concerns a pool of technological and professional consultants.

A continuous and comprehensive search for truth in the humanities, social studies, sciences, engineering, architecture, business, social work, law, medicine, dentistry, nursing, and the fine arts including specific research projects for industry and government and many other projects for the general benefit of society.

INVESTMENT BANKERS OPEN CONVENTION THIS WEEK

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., Nov. 26 (AP)—The forty-fourth annual convention of the Investment Bankers Association of America opens here tomorrow.

The week-long meeting is focused on the mounting problems of the investment banker at a time when the stock market is around peak levels and a growing flow of investment money is seeking an outlet.

Of principal interest will be the four main speakers: Gabriel Hauge, administrative assistant to President Eisenhower; Philip D. Reed, chairman of General Electric; Harllee Branch Jr., president of the Edison Electric Institute and the Georgia Power Co., and Thomas B. McCabe, president of Scott Paper Co., and former head of the Federal Reserve Board.

Say Sign of Any 'Soft Spot' for Fourth Quarter Not Indicated

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—Stepped-up production and a rising flow of new orders gave the business boom an added push this month, a survey of top-level purchasing executives showed today.

And, the survey indicated, there's no sign of any "soft spot" that might change the fast pace of business during the fourth quarter.

Those were the main conclusions drawn by the National Association of purchasing agents after a poll of its members on business conditions in November.

Ninety-three per cent of the purchasing executives said production of their companies this month was the same or better than in October. On new orders, 86 per cent reported their position the same or better than last month.

Other findings:

Although the number of executives reporting higher commodity prices still exceeds those reporting lower prices, the ratio is much closer than a month ago, confirming the trend toward price stability indicated in the association's October survey.

Inventories are up slightly, but in keeping with high production levels. Employment continues high despite occasional strikes.

The survey found that more suppliers are actively soliciting competitive business than in October, but for the most part they are not offering price concessions or special service.

On the subject of commodity prices, 53 per cent of the purchasing executives reported prices up from October and 19 per cent reported a decline. Forty per cent said they found prices unchanged from a month ago and only 5 per cent reported lower prices.

COMMODITY PRICE INDEX INDICATES MODERATE DROP

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Associated Press index of important commodity prices declined moderately this week. It had risen two weeks. The index stood at 170.65 compared with 171.02 a week ago and 172.70 a year ago.

The industrial component hit a new high for the year, and livestock, textiles and nonferrous metals also rose. Lower were grains and cotton and food.

Week's Review Of Business And Finance

GUILDED LILLY!

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP).

BUSINESS in 1955 will smash all prior records. That's how United States Government experts figured it out this week. Measured in dollars, the total volume of goods and services produced in the United States this year will hit 387 billions. That's $2500 apiece for every man, woman and child in the country. It's $26,500,000,000, or 7 per cent, more than in 1954.

Lending force to the Government's official estimate of "gross national product" this week were the latest business indicators.

People, off to an early start on their Christmas shopping, stepped up their spending in the nation's retail stores. Merchants looked for an increase of at least 5 per cent in Christmas business. Shiny new automobiles rolled off assembly lines at the rate of more than 30,000 a day. One day's production was lost on Thanksgiving. But for the time actually worked, the daily rate was higher than in the week before when total output came to 180,000. Steel production roared along at 99 per cent of capacity. Production and refining of crude oil increased. For the first time in history, weekly output of electric power reached 11 billion kilowatthours. Check clearings were 17 per cent higher than a year ago. Stock averages moved up sharply.

Potential Trouble Spot.

There was one potential trouble spot. Auto dealers reported signs here and there of buyer resistance to higher price tags on 1956 models. List prices announced by manufacturers for the new models range from $10 to $500 above factory prices on the 1955 line.

Steel, for some time now a hard-to-get item, was in even shorter supply this week. According to the "Iron Age," national metalworking weekly, shortages of steel are forcing production cutbacks for manufacturers of washing machines, tractors, bulldozers, railroad cars and Army tanks. In some cities, lagging deliveries of steel have held up school construction programs.

Steel Mill Expansion.

What are the steelmakers going to do about it? "Iron Age" says the industry will spend more than three billion dollars in the next four years to lift its ingot capacity by 16,000,000 tons. Funds for this gigantic program are to come, in part, from higher prices.

Stiffening price trends were apparent on other fronts this week. If you live on the East Coast, you'll probably be paying more for home heating oil soon. Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve Board pointed out that wholesale prices of industrial commodities at mid-November were up 4 per cent from a year ago—a factor which helped swell the dollar estimate of this year's gross national product. Living costs, said the Government, would be higher, too, except for a decline in food prices.

Status of Consumer.

The individual American consumer is still the main support of the boom. This week his financial health was closely scrutinized by Government and business leaders.

Gist of their diagnosis was this: People are making more money than ever before (the average weekly take-home pay of a factory worker with a wife and two children last month was $72.18, a new record). But consumer debt is rising faster than consumer income.

The widening gap between income and debt has been accompanied by a slowdown in the rate of savings. During October, the nation's 527 mutual savings banks reported a gain of $85,000,000 in deposits. That compares with a rise in October, 1954, of $101,000,000. In the first 10 months of this year, deposits have increased $1,452,000,000. For the same period last year the gain totaled $1,551,000,000.

If Americans saved less money this year, they spent more. Consumer spending through the first nine months was eight per cent ahead of the like 1954 period, the Federal Reserve Board said, and "a further rise is apparently taking place in the current quarter."

Briefly Over the Business Scene.

T. V. Houser, chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., said retail prices of many types of merchandise may go up four per cent by the middle of next year. . . . The Department of Agriculture hiked the interest rate it pays banks for making price support loans to farmers. . . . Japan called a temporary halt to exports of cotton goods to the United States. . . . General Electric Co. installed a new heating system at the Government's Hanford, Wash., atomic plant. It uses waste heat generated by the plant's nuclear reactor.

GENERAL DECLINE IN GRAINS MARKS WEEK

CHICAGO, Nov. 26 (AP)—In a succession of slow and dreary markets grains worked lower this week, in many cases closing at the bottom prices of the week. In addition to relatively poor export business, slow commercial demand and the overwhelming weight of too many supplies, the bulls in grains had another worry as the week ended: The prospect of heavy tendering of cash grain on December contracts.

Wheat closed the week 1⅜@3⅞c lower, corn ⅞@1⅜c lower, oats 1⅛@2½ lower, rye 2¼@3c lower, soybeans 4¼@5½c lower and lard 25@45c a hundred pounds lower.

The worry about deliveries of cash grain on December contracts first became apparent in Wednesday's session. December oats were a particular target for selling. On Friday this selling spread to other December contracts. Deferred months declined in sympathy.

New crop wheat futures held up better than the old crop months. This was based on continued lack of moisture in the Southwestern winter wheat belt. The top soil needs moisture in that area.

Main weakness toward the week's close, however, appeared in corn and oats. This followed issuance of the agriculture department's outlook issue of "the feed situation." There was little to comfort the bulls in this review.

Main trouble with soybeans continued to be the highly depressed situation in soybean meal, although a slight firming tendency was noted as the week drew to a close. On Wednesday bean meal was quoted at $46@47 a ton, lowest in about 10 years.

REDUCED SUPPLIES LEND STRENGTH TO HOG TRADE

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Nov. 26 (USDA weekly review of the livestock market) — Increased receipts locally contrasted with sharply reduced supply for 12 main centers. Run of heifers was largest all season and prices declined fully $1. Steer marketings ran heavily to shortfed and warmed up kinds and these along with all grades steers 1100 lbs. and over declined 50c@$1. Only choice and prime steers under 1050 lbs. escaped decline, these holding steady with $23 top for load high-choice to prime 1083 lbs. followed by $22.00@22.50 for few smaller loads high choice light cattle; otherwise little over $21.50 and only dozen loads over $21; bulk good and choice steers $17.50@21.00; with fully 75 per cent $19.50 and below; liberal supply commercial and good warmed-up kinds $15@17. Most medium and good stockers and feeders brought $14.50@17.00, prices of which steady to 50c lower. Top mixed yearlings brought $21.50 and straight heifers $21; nearly 100 loads straight heifers largely $17.00@18.50; utility and commercial kinds freely at $12.00@15.50. Most utility and commercial cows brought $9.50@11.50; bulk canners and cutters $7@9; good and choice vealers $18@23; prime up to $27 sparingly.

Compared with Friday last week, barrows and gilts 180 lbs. up finished steady to 25c higher, lighter weights 25c lower and sows strong to 25c higher. Reduced supplies proved strengthening factor. Top prices ranged from $12.75 sparingly on Tuesday and Friday to $13 on Monday and Wednesday. For the week, most 180-230 lb. weights sold at $11.50@12.75; 230 to 270 lbs. $11@12; 270 to 310 lbs. $10.65@11.25; 140 to 170 lbs. $11.50@12.50, and sows $9.25@10.50.

Slaughter lambs closed the week strong to 50c higher, other classes unchanged. Choice and prime wooled lambs and one deck mostly shorn but carrying a few wooled topped at $19.50 with several lots wooled lambs at $19.25. Bulk of good to prime, mostly good and choice, wooled lambs sold at $17.50@19.00, utility and good $15@17; culls down to $8 or less. Most shorn lambs cashed at $18@19. A part deck of good and choice wooled yearlings turned at $17, utility and good $14@15. Cull to good slaughter ewes bulked at $3.00@4.50.

PROGRESS OR DECAY?

On March 5, 1950, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch began a series of illustrated articles titled: "Progress or Decay? St. Louis Must Choose."

Aware that the social, economic and physical welfare of Metropolitan St. Louis was approaching a hazardous condition, the Post-Dispatch defined the community's problems and suggested their solutions. Realistically, the suggestions included sources of the money which would be required to implement the proposals.

During the months and years since "Progress or Decay?" first appeared in the Post-Dispatch, the words have become a household phrase throughout the St. Louis area. And the Post-Dispatch has continued to ask the question and evoke a positive reply . . . on its editorial pages, in its news sections, in its Sunday supplements.

ST. LOUIS IS CHOOSING

Six months ago the voters of the City of St. Louis approved 24 Bond Issue proposals, totaling $126,034,000. Last Tuesday the voters of St. Louis County approved "All Eight" Bond Issue proposals totaling $39,712,000.

Under the inspired leadership of public officials and private citizens . . . supported by the news, editorial and picture pages of the Post-Dispatch and other public-spirited media and organizations . . . the Bond Issue campaigns have been won and a long stride has been made toward the ultimate goal.

The means can now be provided to make Metropolitan St. Louis the healthier, cleaner, safer, more attractive and desirable community in which to live, work and play . . . as depicted and described by the Post-Dispatch in the "Progress or Decay?" series which began more than five years ago.

Toward the complete attainment of this goal, this newspaper will continue to devote its efforts . . . with the hope that it will continue to be joined in these efforts by other public-spirited media and organizations, and an ever increasing number of public officials and private citizens.

FOOL MISTAKES WERE KEEPING ME BROKE

So I Sent $6 to The Wall Street Journal

I always seemed to do things wrong. For example, I sold some land when prices were low. I bought a new home when prices were high.

Then one day I picked up a copy of The Wall Street Journal. I saw right away that it had the facts I needed to help me in my personal affairs and in my job. So I sent $6 for a Trial Subscription.

The Journal not only tells me how to earn more money—it also tells me how to get more value for the money I spend. An automotive article helped me trade in my old car at the right time. Articles on food and clothing point out the things to stock up on in order to save money. Articles on taxes guide me on what to do to keep my taxes down.

This story is typical. Because the reports in The Wall Street Journal come to you daily, you get quick warning of any new trend that may affect your income. You get the facts in time to protect your interests or seize a profit. The Journal is a wonderful aid to salaried men making $7,000 to $20,000 a year. It is valuable to owners of small business concerns. It can be of priceless benefit to ambitious young men.

The Wall Street Journal is the complete business DAILY. Has largest staff of writers on business and finance. The only business paper served by all four big press associations. It costs $20 a year, but you can get a Trial Subscription for three months for $6. Just tear out this ad and attach check for $6 and mail. Or tell us to bill you.

Published daily right in the Midwest to bring you vital business and Washington news immediately. Address: The Wall Street Journal, 711 W. Monroe St., Chicago 6, Ill.

RAILS TAKE OVER MARKET LEADERSHIP WITH SPLURGE

Carriers' Average Price Tops 1929 Peak in Closing Trades of Week—General Market Level Back Near Its High.

By RADER WINGET

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—The stock market kept its recovery rolling this week despite the Thanksgiving holiday, and it stood ready to launch the traditional year-end rally with a little encouragement.

A rally as the year closes is a cherished expectation of stock brokers. They have history on their side. The market in the great majority of cases advances in December.

In the final nine weeks of last year, for instance, the market went up every single week. This week was the fourth consecutive advance for the market, and the favorable month of December is just around the corner.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks this week gained $2.30 and closed at $181.30. That is only 20 cents away from the historic high mark reached Sept. 23 on the eve of the break brought on by news of the President's heart attack. A nudge would bring a new high.

Rails Top 1929 Level.

Significant from the standpoint of the chartists was the manner in which the railroads rallied so strongly. The railroad component of the Associated Press average on Friday pushed through to a new high mark since 1929 with a gain of $4.10 at $142.40. The rails were slow to advance in comparison with the industrials, but they forged ahead with a rush when they got started. Higher prices kept attracting renewed buying.

It is true that several of the big gainers, including Union Pacific and Santa Fe, are in the rail component of the average, but the new high was attained and that's the way it's written in the record books.

Rails Catch Up.

Such a new high to the chartists means that the rails now have caught up with the industrials and have done even better, thus assuring at least the technical grounds for the year-end rally. Now Wall Street is looking for that little extra encouragement to touch off the final rise of the year.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was .03 of a point higher for the week, ending 482.88. The 15 utilities were 65.31 up .42. Rails gained 7.78 points on the week, their widest gain since June 27, 1931 when the average rose 9.38 points. On Friday the rails rose 4.41 points for their best gain in 22 years and the average closed the week at 167.83, a new high since Oct. 22, 1929.)

Volume for the week (4 days) was 8,977,245 compared with 12,430,157 in the preceding full week. Of the 1392 issues traded 757 were higher, 437 lower and 198 unchanged.

Two Dominant Influences.

During the past week, there were two dominant developments — proposals for stock splits and higher dividend declarations.

Some stocks took off for striking gains in anticipation of the good news, and then they declined rather sharply when the official announcement was made and speculators sold to take their profits. Sometimes the anticipation was so great that the stock had a sizable reaction. du Pont was an excellent case in point. Speculators looked for a split. Directors declared a year-end dividend of $3 as against $2.50 a year ago. Nothing was said about a split. The stock was engulfed in a rush of selling and lost 9¾ points on the day. For the week the stock was off 9¾ at 228½.

Union Pacific was the other side of the coin. Directors declared an extra dividend of $3 as against $2 a year ago and also proposed a five-for-one split. The stock raced ahead and closed up 8 points. On the week it advanced 16½ at 202½. Santa Fe railroad, viewed as a candidate for a split, attracted heavy buying that put it up 18 points on the week at 160.

The Analysts' View.

Stock market analysts read this into those developments—if the market wasn't unsettled by the du Pont action but it did take a lot of encouragement from the Union Pacific announcement. That was more or less the case all week. The good things were capitalized on immediately while any reaction to adverse news was quickly absorbed without disturbing the market as a whole.

WAR HERO MALMED'S FUNERAL TO BE TODAY

He Was Credited With Talking Hundreds of Germans Into Surrendering.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26 (AP)—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Lawrence Malmed, a 40-year-old World War II hero who was credited with talking hundreds of Germans into surrender.

Malmed, who entered the Army as a private in May 1941, and rose to captain, died Thursday from heart disease in a hospital. He had been ill for about a month.

Malmed's persuasive powers made him a legend.

One of his feats with the Thirty-Fifth Infantry Division occurred in the Orleans sector in France. He went behind the German lines and talked with a German colonel for 23 hours. When Malmed returned to the American side, he was followed by 150 enemy soldiers.

In October 1944, he was wounded and captured by the Germans, but again crossed back to the American lines after talking five more Germans into surrendering. On the way he picked up seven additional prisoners.

In another exploit Malmed was credited with walking to the town of Fremerstroff near the Saar with 24 men after tanks had failed to take the strategic point and capturing the community house by house. His company was credited with capturing 2000 Germans.

Malmed, who was discharged in 1945, was awarded the Silver Star with an oak leaf cluster and a Purple Heart with two clusters.

Before the war he was a silk salesman. More recently he was employed as an executive in Gimbels' department store. He lived in suburban Drexel Hill.

PROMOTION BY MERIT NOT SENIORITY

...one of the FACTS that ENGINEERS LIKE about General Electric

OPPORTUNITIES FOR inventiveness and professional growth come frequently at the Special Defense Projects Dept. of GE. That's natural, for research and development in the field of guided missiles is the major interest here.

Indeed, PRODUCTIVE IDEAS COME MORE frequently, because engineers know originality will be noted, remembered, rewarded.

ANOTHER THING that's liked is the atmosphere: it's professional, congenial; it's receptive to original ideas. That's because men aren't looking over their shoulders, wondering when projects are going to end. They KNOW work's planned on a long-range basis. They know the scope of the program is GROWING. More engineers needed right along.

ENGINEER
AIRCRAFT ENGINEER

...for Product Planning in advanced aircraft engine program is expanding its development activities to include many new types of aircraft engines and propulsion systems.

This expansion has created openings for experienced engineers. Here engineers often define their own projects, creating new conceptions of aircraft engines in terms of the needs of the future and the capabilities of the present.

The working climate is congenial to new ideas — small, effective groups of professional men cooperating in valuable idea exchanges.

QUALIFICATIONS

Ability to evaluate new propulsion systems in terms of technical capabilities, thrust, rate of climb, weight, range, market potential, etc. . . .

Experience in the development of air frames or aircraft engines.

LOCATION

Medium-size, Midwestern city . . . Excellent housing and many educational opportunities, including company-sponsored graduate work at local universities.

If you are interested in this type of career, but have no aircraft experience, a position may exist for you in a development area, which would later qualify you for product planning.

You've been hearing how

ELECTRONICS HISTORY

in

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

It was recent front-page news when Hughes revealed the previously highly secret electronic advances they were making in Los Angeles.

The fabulous FALCON air-to-air guided missile which can seek out, follow and destroy maneuvering enemy aircraft, was created, tested and is manufactured by Hughes.

Hughes developed and is producing and further improving the control system, or "electronic brain," now installed in every American and Canadian jet interceptor guarding this continent. This "seek-find-and-kill" fire control system can automatically find, track and destroy approaching enemy bombers in any weather, day or night.

These long-range projects have created excellent opportunities for Engineers, Scientists, Designers and Manufacturing personnel experienced in the following fields:

ELECTRONIC TEST EQUIPMENT ENGINEERING PROCESS ENGINEERING
SEMICONDUCTOR DEVICES
SEMICONDUCTOR APPLICATIONS
FIELD ENGINEERING
ELECTROMECHANICAL ENGINEERING
PLANNING-ELECTRONICS AND MECHANICAL QUALITY CONTROL
INSTRUMENTATION ENGINEERING
FLIGHT TEST ENGINEERING
ENVIRONMENTAL AND RELIABILITY TEST ENGINEERING DRAFTING ENGINEERING DESIGNING
ENGINEERING DRAWING CHECKING

You are invited to contact us for further information regarding careers at Hughes. All inquiries will be held in confidence. Mail a complete work history, including home telephone number, to the address below.

SALES OPPORTUNITY IN EDUCATIONAL FIELD. If you have had experience in this field, here is an outstanding opportunity. Instruction, Inc., of Minneapolis, is nationally recognized as the leading Home Study Art School in America. We are rated one million in Dun and Bradstreet. We invest over $350,000 annually in national and local advertising. You positively do not child lurker selling. We have hundreds of qualified leads in this territory. We are seeking a live wire salesman who has good transportation and is a real worker. Write, giving experience, J. Sher, 500 South 4th street, Minneapolis 15, Minn.

SECURITY with absolute independence; raises not blocked by older men ahead or other blind alleys; work you enjoy brings mounting income, as your children grow up and cost more.

One qualification is freedom from unfounded prejudice against selling life insurance (this has kept many otherwise good men out, leaving a clearer field for you). You should be between 25 and 40, like people and enjoy helping them, also have some aptitude. A guaranteed income that will increase steadily as you learn and soon should exceed that of most professional men.

First step is to take a free aptitude test. This may change the course of your whole career and help you plan your life work, whether it is selling life insurance or something else. We are trying to be helpful—so without obligation—call or telephone W. Donald Stayton, General American Life Ins. Co., 1501 Locust st. CE 1-1700.

TIRE SALESMAN Experienced

To represent independent manufacturer in St. Louis area. Man selected must have previous and current successful experience selling tires and tubes to dealers, distributors and fleet accounts. Have you ever heard of the expression "White Elephants"? It's a term applied to items of merchandise that are no longer of any use to the owner, but for which other people would gladly pay a reasonable cash price. If you have white elephants in your basement or attic—things you no longer need—why not sell or swap them through a Want Ad in the classified columns of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch? Ask about the special low seven-day rate. An experienced adtaker will help you word your ad if you wish. Call the Post-Dispatch, MA 1-1111 Now! Adtakers are on duty daily except Sunday from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m.—Call Now!

PACKARD, '51 400 4-door; radio, heater, automatic transmission. $695.

REOPENING DECEMBER 1st
UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT
MISSOURI STABLES, 5200 BERTHOLD

With its accommodations for 165 horses, who will receive personal and continuous attention not only from our entire staff during day, but from our night manager and watchman during night. Yes, there will be horse shows and various other shows of entertainment during year for young and old in our spacious indoor lighted arena, seating several thousand people. Besides A1 care and attention for your horse, this spacious arena is available for you and your friends to ride. Therefore horseback riding can now be a year 'round pleasure. In addition, you have available 10 miles of cinder trails in lovely Forest Park, with entrance already tunnelled under superhighway, where, ladies, we feel confident you will find some handsome but all-gallant gentlemen to ride with you as your escort. Now, gentlemen, speaking from experience, I have always found the loveliest of lovely ladies to accompany you on your rides past golf course, various lakes handball and tennis courts, up on Art Hill, down through wooded area, past various barbecue pits and picnic grounds. A stop here on an early ride and cooking your breakfast is a pleasure you will always enjoy. Where could you receive such care for your horse and pleasure for yourself for $60 per month than at Missouri Stables? Sorry we cannot take you and your horse into our family of friends until Dec. 1st. May we invite you to enjoy these pleasures then.

83 FOREIGNERS AT U.N. LIMITED IN U.S. TRAVELS

Two Britons Restricted to 40-Block Zone, 78 Russians to 25-Mile Radius.

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 26 (AP) — The United States Government restricts the movements of 83 foreign delegates, observers and correspondents at the United Nations.

Three foreigners may not, without special permission, go farther away than Ninety-seventh street, 40 blocks to the north. Two are British observers for humanitarian organizations and the third a Middle Eastern correspondent. The restrictions are "conditions of admission" set by the State Department on the advice of the Attorney General.

Two other foreigners, official observers, must have permission to go outside the city limits of New York. That is because they were in such a hurry to get here for the General Assembly they did not wait for security checks, which sometimes take five weeks.

Seventy-eight Soviet citizens —73 delegates and five Tass correspondents—may not travel more than 25 miles from this headquarters unless they give 48 hours' notice. Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov is in this group.

Can't Go to Brooklyn.

When the Russians do travel, 27 per cent of the United States is forbidden ground that they may enter only by special permission. This includes all neighboring Connecticut and New York's borough of Brooklyn.

The State Department has maintained the 25-mile limit, here and in Washington, since 1952 and the forbidden-area rule since last January in an effort to pressure the Soviet government into lifting similar restrictions from Americans in Moscow.

Those foreigners bound by Ninety-seventh street on the north may go west 10 blocks to Ninth avenue and south 16 blocks to Twenty-sixth street. Their eastward limit is the East river, right alongside U.N. headquarters.

That area measures about 3¾ miles north and south and 1½ miles east and west. It takes in Bellevue City Hospital, big hotels and department stores, Broadway and the main public library.

It allows "transit to or from the headquarters district" as required in the 1947 U.S.-U.N. headquarters agreement.

Many confined to that area in the past have represented Communist-sponsored organizations. That is not true of those presently confined.

Confined Britons.

Mrs. Jessie Street of the Anti-Slavery Society in London and the Rev. Michael Scott of the International League for the Rights of Man in Geneva believe they are restricted for failure to answer certain questions asked when they applied for United States visas.

Mrs. Street declined to list organizations she had belonged to since 1930. She says, "I haven't got any idea of all the organizations I've belonged to since 1930."

The Rev. Mr. Scott refused to tell about his associations in South Africa, where as an Anglican pastor he has opposed the official race segregation policy. He feared the information might harm his friends.

"The anti-Communist laws there are very strict," he says. "Almost any opposition to the government's racial policy can be construed as Communism."

By special permission, both observers live outside the prescribed area—Mrs. Street in an apartment a block west of bounds on West Ninety-seventh street and Scott in an Episcopal seminary seven blocks off limits, on lower Ninth avenue. Twice in as many years, Scott also has been permitted to preach at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, far outside the area.

"I haven't complained," he says, "and I'm not complaining now."

GUARDSMAN FIRES ON AUTO IN PERFECT CIRCLE INCIDENT

NEW CASTLE, Ind., Nov. 26 (AP)—A National Guard sergeant fired two shots at an automobile that ran a road blockade at the east edge of New Castle and tried to run down two guardsmen before dawn today.

Maj. John S. Anderson, commander of the 95 guardsmen sent here Wednesday after a renewal of violence in the Perfect Circle Corp. strike, said the car made a "deliberate" attempt to hit guardsmen manning the baricade. Anderson said the troops were forced to dive into a ditch to keep from getting hit.

Anderson said there were three persons in the car, all believed to be men.

A jeep load of guardsmen reported they were run off another road by a car, but no one was injured and the jeep was not damaged. Guardsmen have authority from Mayor Paul McCormack to make arrests under civil law.

The CIO United Auto Workers strike against the Perfect Circle Corp. is now in its fifth month.

HEADS C. OF C. AT KIRKWOOD

Bill Bailey, owner of a cleaning establishment bearing his name, has been elected president of the Kirkwood Chamber of Commerce for next year, it was announced yesterday. Tony Caraffa was elected vice president.

Widened as Bond Issue Project

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

Widening of Forest Park avenue has been completed on this section extending eastward from Sarah street. The center park strip has been reduced from a width of 50 feet to 24. Widening of the thoroughfare from Grand boulevard to Kingshighway is a $159,587 project in the 1955 bond issue program.

DEADLINE FOR REPLACEMENT OF EXPIRED G.I. INSURANCE

Tomorrow is the deadline for replacement of expired G.I. term insurance policies if the policies lapsed after April 25, 1951, while the service man was on active duty, or within 120 days after his discharge, the Veterans Administration announced yesterday.

Replacement of the policies is allowed within 120 days after discharge or within 120 after July 29, 1955, which ever in later, under Federal law.

Veterans who were in a status of missing, missing in action, interned, captured, beleaguered or besieged at any time after the 1951 date and before April 26, 1952, are eligible to apply for a retroactive waiver portion of their premiums, the deadline also being tomorrow, the VA said.

REGISTRATION DEC. 12 TO 16 IN PUBLIC X-RAY SURVEY

A public X-ray survey will be conducted Dec. 12 through 16 at the northwest corner of the old Federal Building, Ninth and Locust streets, it was announced yesterday. Members of the Junior Advertising Club of St. Louis will register shoppers and others desiring free chest X-rays in the mobile unit of the Tuberculosis and Health Society.

Meanwhile, the eleventh annual city industrial survey, which began last Monday, will continue through February in 37 plants, hospitals and government offices.

Cost of surveys is defrayed by the Tuberculosis and Health Society of St. Louis. The society's major source of revenue is the sale of Christmas seals. This year's sale will continue through December.

FUNERAL SERVICES TUESDAY FOR EDWARD F. WALCHER

Funeral services for Edward F. Walcher, a commercial artist, will be Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. at the Fendler undertaking establishment, 5611 South Grand boulevard, with burial in St. Paul Churchyard. He was 60 years old.

Mr. Walcher, who died Thursday of a heart attack, drew the lettering in the Mandrake the Magician cartoon, which appears in the Post-Dispatch and other newspapers. He had been doing the lettering for about 20 years in addition to other free lance work. He lived at 3441 Magnolia avenue.

A bachelor, Mr. Walcher is survived by a sister, Mrs. Margaret Klute of Seattle, Wash.

22-STATE DENTAL CONGRESS MEETING STARTS HERE TODAY

The Mid-Continent Dental Congress will hold its fourteenth annual meeting today through Wednesday at Hotel Jefferson. More than 3000 delegates from 22 states are expected to attend.

Most phases of dentistry will be covered in the meetings. A special all-day course on "Hydrocolloid Inlaid Technic" will be conducted from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. today. Special programs will be presented during the four-day conference.

W. R. PERSONS TO HEAD JUBILEE EXHIBITS GROUP

W. R. Persons, president of Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co., has been appointed chairman of the exhibits committee of Mid-America Jubilee, Roscoe C. Hobbs, president of City Country Cavalcade, Inc., announced yesterday.

The exhibit committee will be responsible for organization and operation of exhibitor participation of the jubilee scheduled for next September on the riverfront.

PLAY BY BISHOP'S COMPANY

Stephen Vincent Benet's "The Devil and Daniel Webster" will be presented by the Bishop's Company at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the auditorium of Third Baptist Church, Grand and Washington boulevards. There will be no charge for admission.

The Bishop's Company presented "The Boy and the Cart" at Third Baptist Church last year on a 14,000-mile national tour. The dramatic group also appeared before the second national assembly of the World Council of Churches in Evanston, Ill.

HARRIMAN PRAISES JOHNSON PROGRAM

He Says Senate Leader's Objectives Are Kind Democrats Should Stand For.

ALBANY, Nov. 26 (UP)—Gov. Averell Harriman said today the Congressional program advanced by Senate majority leader Lyndon Johnson is "the kind of progressive and forward looking program we Democrats should stand for."

The Texas Senator, in a recent speech at Whitney, Tex., outlined a 13-point program which he said was not "all inclusive" and may require some modification.

Major points were a reduction to 62 years in the eligible age for social security benefits for women, tax relief for low income groups, increased federal health funds for research and hospital construction, federal aid for school construction, a return to 90 per cent of parity on agriculture, state development of Niagara Falls power, and an expanded housing program.

In his statement, Harriman was critical of the Eisenhower Administration which he said has, for the last three years, "done little or nothing about farms, or schools, or houses, or health, or many other pressing human problems."

Harriman added that the Eisenhower Administration "has tried to put this inaction in a favorable light by calling it a policy of 'moderation' or 'middle of the road.'"

50-DAY TOUR OF EUROPE TO BE COLLEGE 'TEXTBOOK'

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 26 (UP)—A university's summer school will offer a new traveling course with a 50-day tour of Europe as the "textbook," it was announced today. The course at Clark University will be known as "introduction to western civilization," and the classrooms will be an ocean liner and busses which will tour the continent.

The course, covering three semester-hours of college credit, will be conducted by James S. Edwards, assistant professor of German and a veteran European traveler.

Enrollment will be limited to about 20 students and auditors on the college level. "Classes" will begin as the travelers assemble on June 8 in Montreal. The course will terminate in mid-August with a 3000-word report to be submitted afterward as a "final exam." The course will cost about $1000 per person, the university said.

CHRISTMAS MAIL EXPECTED TO FILL 53,000,000 BAGS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP) —The Association of American Railroads said postmen and trains will have to handle more than 53,000,000 mail bags between Dec. 1 and Christmas day.

The association reports that "to transport the avalanche of gifts parcels and greetings, the Post Office department estimates it will need space equivalent to almost 5000 solidly loaded 12-car mail trains." That would be "long enough to reach from Washington, D. C. to Chicago."

$105 STOLEN BY MAN WHO ARRANGED PRAYER MEETING

Arthur Hawley, 87 years old, reported to East St. Louis police yesterday that $105 was stolen from his wallet by a man who came to his home at 807 (rear) Parsons avenue, East St. Louis, and arranged to use Hawley's home for a prayer meeting.

Before leaving, Hawley reported, the man asked him to pray with him for a few minutes, then excused himself, saying he would be back. Hawley discovered the theft of the money when the man failed to return.

GOODWILL MEMBER MEETING

Missouri Goodwill Industries, an organization that provides jobs for physically handicapped persons, will have its annual membership meeting at its plant at 4140 Forest Park boulevard Wednesday night, starting with dinner at 6:30 p.m. Daniel R. Blount, president, said the public will be welcome, with dinner reservations available through tomorrow.

WOMAN 'TOO EMBARRASSED' TO CASH CHECKS FOR PENNIES

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 26 (AP)—An Oklahoma City police clerk, "too embarrassed" to cash her government checks, is fouling up the United States Treasury Department's bookkeeping.

Mrs. Betty Dow, part Chickasaw and Choctaw, has received three government checks in the last three months as payments on Indian coal land. She held the checks for souvenirs. The government wrote weekly letters, pleading with her to cash them.

One of the checks was for 6 cents, one for 3 cents and one for a penny.

Mrs. Dow said Treasury officials finally persuaded her to cash the first two checks, but she still hasn't the nerve to turn the final one into copper.

GIRL, 8, ASSAULTED, BEATEN TO DEATH IN ILLINOIS TOWN

CANTON, Ill., Nov. 26 (AP)— An 8-year-old Canton girl, her clothes ripped from her body, was found fatally beaten today in an isolated spot near her home. Police said she had been raped.

The victim, Janice May, died two hours after her two older brothers and their dog found her unconscious among a number of upended mine cars alongside the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad in this north central Illinois town 150 miles southwest of Chicago.

Chief of Police Kenneth Lindzey said Janice apparently had been seized while on her way to join her brothers at a nearby playground.

FRENCH COMMUNIST PARTY DROPS SUPPORT OF FAURE

PARIS, Nov. 26 (UP) — France's Communist party withdrew its support of Premier Faure today.

Without the backing of the 94 Red deputies which carried him through his last two confidence votes, Faure appeared to have little chance of surviving the new National Assembly confidence vote Tuesday.

French newspapers of all political shades predicted a government crisis and turned their attention to speculation on a new premier. Faure called for the confidence vote yesterday when the Assembly's steering committee rejected his request for a new electoral debate Tuesday. He has been fighting for early elections since mid-October and has faced opposition at every turn.

REICH CHICKENS COST $52, —G.I. DRIVERS ARE WARNED

WARZBURG, Germany, Nov. 26 (UP) — The United States Army warned jeep - driving soldiers of the newly-arrived Tenth Division today to steer clear of German chickens—they are worth $52 each.

A year-old chicken costs only about $3.50, but Americans on maneuvers are subject to German law and must compensate German farmers for potential earnings as well as the dead fowl.

That potential includes eggs for two years plus the percentage of eggs that might hatch and produce chicks at $1.25 apiece.

CONQUEROR OF ANNAPURNA KILLED IN FRENCH ALPS

CHAMONIX, France, Nov. 26 (AP)—The body of Louis Lachenal, French mountain climber who reached the top of Annapurna in 1950, was found today wedged into a ravine 11,000 feet up in the French Alps.

Lachenal, 35 years old, fell into a 100-foot deep ravine yesterday when a snow bridge gave way under his weight.

Maurice Herzog, Lachenal's companion in the famed Himalayan climb to the top of Annapurna, was on the way from Paris to aid in the search when rescue workers found the body.

PAIR MARRIED 50 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Bernardo, 6320 Chippewa street, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary today with a family dinner at the home of a daughter, Mrs. C. H. Townsend, 6609 Bancroft avenue.

Bernardo, 71 years old, a barber for 50 years, operates a barber shop at 738 East Big Bend boulevard, Webster Groves. He and Mrs. Bernardo, 67, were married here and have two daughters, two grandchildren and a great-grandson.

FUNERAL TOMORROW FOR DR. HAVERSTICK

Former Missouri Dental Society Head Dies at 81 on Hunting Trip.

Funeral services for Dr. Edward Everett Haverstick, former president of the Missouri State Dental Society, and a St. Louis dentist for more than 45 years, will be tomorrow at 2 p.m. at his home, 7346 Westmoreland avenue, University City.

Dr. Haverstick, 81 years old, died early yesterday when on a hunting trip near Cairo, Ill. He had an active day Friday at his office, 346 North Boyle avenue, before leaving for the Southern Illinois goose-hunting area.

His death was discovered when his son, E. E. Haverstick Jr., attempted to awaken him for the morning's hunting.

Dr. Haverstick headed the state dental society in 1950-51. He was president of the St. Louis Dental Society in 1924, and served as its librarian in the period 1925-42.

The St. Louis Dental Society Library, founded by Dr. Haverstick, now is housed at the Barr Branch of the Public Library. Dr. Haverstick wrote a history of dentistry in Missouri.

Born at De Soto, Mo., Dec. 6, 1873, Dr. Haverstick attended the State Normal School at Cape Girardeau, the University Academy at Columbia, and the University of Missouri. He was graduated from the old Missouri Dental College, now Washington University School of Dentistry, in 1901.

Early this year Dr. Haverstick and his two sons, E. E. Jr. and William K. Haverstick, bought control of Radio St. Louis, Inc., the operating corporation of Radio Station KSTL. Dr. Haverstick was chairman of the board.

Surviving in addition to the sons are his wife; a brother, Andrew J. Haverstick of St. Louis, and a sister, Miss Rose Haverstick, DeSoto.

ALVIN GRIESEDIECK HEADS ST. LOUIS U. FUND UNIT

Alvin Griesedieck, chairman of the board of Falstaff Brewing Corp. has been appointed chairman of the Firms and Corporations Council of St. Louis University, it was announced yesterday. He and Donald L. Barnes Jr., vice chairman of the council, will direct the program to obtain business support for the university's "distinguished teaching program."

Other university organization officials appointed include: Roland C. Behrens, chairman of the Bequest and Gift Council; Stuart E. White, vice chairman; William J. Murphy, vice chairman of the National Parents Committee; James S. Sheehan, vice chairman of the Alumni Fund Council.

Dr. Matthew W. Weiss is general chairman of the University Development Committee. The Firms and Corporations Council last year collected $102,000, which was part of the $236,000 in unrestricted funds donated to St. Louis University's Living Endowment Program.

SCHOOL NEWSPAPERS TO GET FACTS ON NEW RESERVE ACT

Editors and reporters of high school newspapers will interview top officers of the 102nd Infantry Division, Reserve, Tuesday night to obtain a better understanding of how the new Armed Forces Reserve Act affects high school graduates.

The interviews will be conducted at the division's headquarters, 4350 South Kingshighway, with Maj. Gen. L. J. Sverdrup, division commander; Brig. Gen. Byron Peebles, assistant division commander, and Brig. Gen. William H. Harrison, artillery commander. Demonstrations by various units of the division will be given following the interviews.

Under the new Armed Forces Act, youths 17 to 18½ years may perform their military obligation by six months of active duty, and seven and one-half years in the ready reserve. The first two groups of youth enlisting in the program are now in training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and four other Army posts.

TWO CHURCHES TO PRESENT PARTS OF HANDEL'S 'MESSIAH'

Christmas portions of Handel's "Messiah" will have two presentations today, both at 4 p.m.

At Pilgrim Congregational Church, 826 Union boulevard, the church choir will be combined with Harris Teachers' College chorus and choraliers. The joint chorus will be directed by Wirt D. Walton, director of music at the college, and organ accompaniments will be played by Lee Short, organist and choirmaster of Pilgrim Church.

Webster Groves Christian Church, 1320 Lockwood avenue, Glendale, will present its 55-voice chorus under the direction of Wayne Balch, minister of music. Soloists will be Miss Sue Fidler, soprano; Mrs. William Budke, contralto, Daniel Blount, tenor, and Edwin Bolton, bass.

DIABETES DRIVE IS EXTENDED

Extension of the eighth annual diabetes detection drive until Dec. 7 was announced yesterday by Dr. H. E. Oppenheimer and Dr. Harold K. Roberts, co-chairmen of the drive.

The campaign, which began Nov. 13, is aimed at locating an estimated 10,000 persons in the area who have diabetes, but do not know it.

Any individual wishing to secure a test may get additional information from any drug store, or by calling the St. Louis Diabetes Association, JE 3-5800.

ADENAUER MAY MEND SPLIT IN BONN COALITION

BONN, Nov. 26 (AP)—There were indications today that Chancellor Adenauer would be able to mend the split in his coalition in time to present to the world next week a government completely loyal to the Western alliance.

The Bonn Parliament's first foreign affairs debate since the failure of the Geneva foreign ministers conference is set for Friday. The debate will be both an inquest on Geneva and a demonstration of West Germany's future attitude in view of Russia's refusal to agree to reunification.

The 79-year-old Chancellor and the Free Democrats, second largest party in the coalition, were at odds today over Bonn's future foreign policy. Adenauer wants complete loyalty to the Western alliance while the leader of the Free Democrats, Thomas Dehler, has demanded "more initiative" from the Government in direct talks with the Russians over German unity.

ADM. BYRD BEGINS FLIGHT TO NEW ZEALAND, ANTARCTIC

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26 (AP)—R. Adm. Richard E. Byrd left today on a flight that will take him to New Zealand and on his fifth expedition to the Antarctic.

The explorer of the polar regions took a Pan-American clipper to Honolulu. He was accompanied by Dr. Paul Siple, government scientist; Mort Reuben, representative of the United States National Committee of the International Geophysical Year; Robert Forbes, cold weather specialist and geologist for the Army, and Capt. Laurence Matthews, Byrd's chief of staff.

"A man's age is nothing to prevent him from going on an expedition if he is in good physical condition, and I am," Admiral Byrd told reporters. "I was taken aback to read in the papers recently that I am 67 years old. I hadn't been thinking about that. But I realize that when you work hard all your life, the time passes very quickly."

R. POWELL ADAMS HEADS GROUP BOOSTING ST. LOUIS

R. Powell Adams, vice president of S. G. Adams Co., has been appointed chairman of the Advertise St. Louis Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis, it was announced yesterday.

He will work with the Advertise St. Louis Committee of the Advertising Club of St. Louis and another committee of the chamber in a co-ordinated program to promote domestic trade development in this area.

Chairman of the Advertise St. Louis Committee of the Advertising Club is Walter G. Heren, director of advertising for Union Electric Co. Ben H. Wells, vice president of Seven-Up Co., was named chairman of the chambers' Domestic Trade Development Committee, which will co-ordinate a program to strengthen bonds between St. Louis manufacturers, wholesalers and distributors and their retail outlets in this area.

KEFAUVER-FOR-PRESIDENT GROUP STARTED IN IOWA

DES MOINES, Nov. 26 (AP) —An Iowa Kefauver for President committee, said to be the first state-wide organization of its kind, was formed here today at a meeting of about 50 Iowa Democrats from most of the state's congressional districts.

The meeting was called by S. Jack Galvin of Sheffield who has been head of Kefauver forces in this state since 1952.

Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee sent greetings to the session through Col. William A. Roberts of Washington, D.C., treasurer of the national Kefauver for President Committee.

Roberts told the delegates there was every reason to believe Kefauver will announce his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination as soon as his Senate committee obligations are completed and that this may come before the end of December.

JOINS UNIVERSITY STAFF

John Marston, managing editor of The Pet Milk Co. Magazine here since 1951, has resigned to become an associate professor in the College of Communication Arts of Michigan State University, East Lansing.

Succeeding Marston in his position will be Ben R. Hartley, assistant editor of the magazine.

BANK CASHIER WAS BLUDGEONING VICTIM

Police Thought Missing Minnesotan Had Been Shot.

ELK RIVER, Minn., Nov. 26 (AP) — An autopsy today showed that bank cashier Kenneth Lindbergh of Thief River Falls, Minn., was the victim of a bludgeoning with a sharp instrument.

The body of the banker, who had been missing since Nov. 12, was found yesterday in a snow-covered farm field. Officers at first believed he had been shot.

Coroner Gordon Tesch of Sherburne county said Lindbergh died as a result of eight or 10 blows on the head with an instrument such as a machete or a hatchet.

The body was discovered 13 days after Lindbergh left from the Northern State Bank in Thief River Falls following a long conference with an unidentified stranger. Two hundred silver dollars were found scattered in the area where the body was discovered. Missing at the time Lindbergh disappeared were $14,000 in bank travelers checks and some $1750 in silver.

About $1500 of the missing silver was found last week in the trunk of Lindbergh's automobile, abandoned on a Minneapolis street.

Two days after Lindbergh disappeared, a man who identified himself as Charles D. Kenwell of Philadelphia tried to deposit in a Detroit bank $6000 in travelers checks taken from the Northern Minnesota Bank.

TOBACCO FIRM AMENDS SUIT TO KILL CIGARETTE TAX

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 26 —Attorneys for Brown & Sons Tobacco Co. of St. Louis filed an amended petition in Cole county circuit court yesterday in their attempt to have Missouri's new cigarette tax law declared unconstitutional on the ground the bill was not handled properly in the House of Representatives.

The original petition brought by owners of the wholesale tobacco concern was knocked out last week by Judge Sam C. Blair here on technicalities. In seeking dismissal of the first petition, the Attorney General's office contended the suit should have been directed against State Revenue Collector A. S. Arenson instead of against M. E. Morris, director of the State Department of Revenue.

Both Arenson and Morris were named as co-defendants in the amended action, which alleged that it would cost the tobacco concern more than $70,000 to get ready for the 2-cents-a-package tax, effective Jan. 1. The tax was passed by the 1955 General Assembly and approved in a referendum Oct. 4. It is expected to produce between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 in revenue for school purposes.

Japanese-Indian Air Pact.

NEW DELHI, Nov. 26 (AP) —India and Japan signed a new air agreement today. The accord confirms the present once-weekly service between the two countries by the nationalized Air India International and opens the way for a similar service by a Japanese airline.

DR. CHARLES O. METZ HEADS GENERAL PRACTICE ACADEMY

Dr. Charles O. Metz, president, heads the newly elected officers of the St. Louis Academy of General Practice who will be installed at Norwood Hills Country Club next Saturday night.

Other officers are: Dr. Walter C. Gray, vice president; Dr. Eugene W. Hall, secretary, and Dr. Herbert J. Rudi, treasurer. New directors are Dr. Marion D. Bishop, Dr. Barney W. Finkel and Dr. Charles A. Molden. Dr. Norton J. Eversoll will be master of ceremonies at the installation.

Activities of the Academy of General Practice under leadership of Dr. Preston C. Hall, retiring president, included an intensified tuberculosis patch testing program and co-operation with health insurance firms and the Bar Association in clarifying insurance policies and medical forms for the protection of patients.

'CHRISTMAS ADVENTURES' AT BOTANICAL GARDEN

THE DOOR OF THE ANCIENT MUSEUM BUILDING BUILT BY THE LATE HENRY SHAW, IS DECORATED FOR THE "ADVENTURES," THURSDAY THROUGH SUNDAY, BY A COMMITTEE HEADED BY MRS. OSCAR JOHNSON (ON STEPS). MRS. DUSTIN H. GRIFFIN (LEFT), MRS. WYLIE TODD AND MRS. RICHARD D. SHELTON (ON LADDER). MRS. JOHNSON'S YOUNG GRANDSON, JOCK BENGTSSON, HELPS WITH A ROLL OF GREENERY.

"CHRISTMAS Adventures" are promised to St. Louisans who visit Shaw's Garden Thursday through Sunday. Concentrating their decorative skill in the Henry Shaw mansion and the Museum building, both of which are best reached at 2221 Tower Grove avenue, members of the Women's Committee have prepared unusual table arrangements in the Museum, have decorated the doorway and set up a shop where Christmas gifts may be purchased. A tiny building outside, called the Tin Soldiers' Sentry Box, holds balloons and grab bags for children. In the mansion Christmas songs and poetry have suggested titles to a series of exhibits—"Deck the Halls" and "Not a Creature was Stirring," as examples. Proceeds from the project, open from 11 to 8 o'clock, will go to the garden.

TIN SOLDIERS SENTRY BOX, GAILY PAINTED, WILL HOLD GRAB BAGS AND BALLOONS FOR CHILDREN. THE PAINTER IS MRS. GEORGE T. PETTUS. STANDING BY ARE MRS. CHARLES W. WHITELAW II, HER DAUGHTER, SANDRA, AND MRS. GEORGE D. FRAZIER AND HER DAUGHTERS, CHESLEY (ON TRICYCLE) AND LYNN.

THE SHOP, CREATED IN THE MUSEUM BUILDING, WHERE FELT STOCKINGS AND TABLE DECORATIONS, SOME MADE OF DRIED FLOWERS, OTHERS OF FRUIT AND FLOWERS, ARE SET UP BY MRS. J. BRUCE BUTLER, LEFT, AND MRS. CHARLES A. BRANDON.

Natalie Reeve, Lt. Neal T. Dohr To Be Married

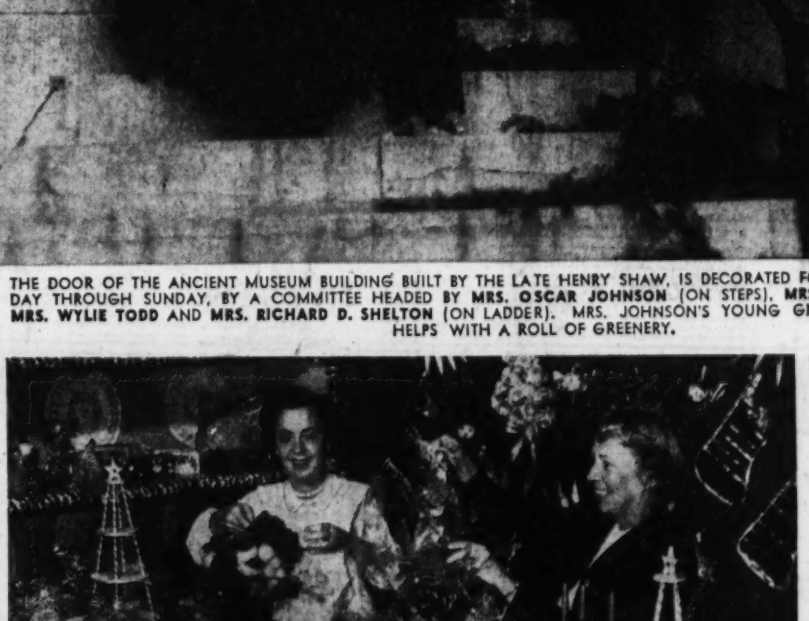
THE first debutante of the current season to announce her engagement is Miss Natalie Moffitt Reeve. At a luncheon yesterday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Reeve, 436 Melville avenue, University City, her engagement to Lt. Neal Todd Dohr, stationed with the Army at Mannheim, Germany, was made known by means of a poem distributed to the guests by Miss Pamela Trigg, young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Franklin Trigg. Copies of the poem were mailed to out-of-town friends.

Lt. Dohr is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Dohr, 4985 Bancroft avenue. The wedding will take place next summer after his return from foreign duty.

A Mary Institute graduate, Miss Reeve attended Sullins College, Bristol, Va., and was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball in October. She is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel L. Moffitt and a niece of Mrs. Dustin Hadley Griffin, St. Louis, for whom she was named; Mrs. Joseph W. Holliday of Kansas City, Mo., and Mrs. Glenn V. Russell of Montclair, N. J.

Lt. Dohr was graduated a year ago from Washington University, where he became a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity. He has one sister, Miss Phyllis Dohr.

IN THE LATE HENRY SHAW'S BEDROOM IN THE SHAW MANSION, THE EXHIBIT IS TO BE "VISIONS OF SUGAR PLUMS," WITH EACH OBJECT, EVEN THE HAT, DECORATED IN CANDY. THE DECOR IS PINK. MRS. T. RANDOLPH POTTER IS AT LEFT; MRS. GRANT WILLIAMS, AT RIGHT. HOURS OF THE EXHIBIT ARE 11 TO 8 O'CLOCK.



A PRODUCTION LINE MAKING, PACKING AND PRICING DECORATED MATCH BOXES. FROM LEFT, MRS. ORVAL C. SUTTER, MRS. GEORGE H. PRING, MRS. GILBERT W. PENNEWILL, MRS. EDWARD J. NEUNER, MRS. MARTIN LAMMERT III, CHAIRMAN OF THE WOMEN'S COMMITTEE OF SHAW'S GARDEN, WHICH IS SPONSORING THE EXHIBIT; AND MRS. CHESTER G. HENRY.

Miss Meyer Married to W. W. Sant II

AN important event of the late autumn season was the marriage last evening of Miss Alice Caroline Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Philip Meyer, to William Webster Sant II, son of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. John Francis Sant.

Scene of the wedding was the Church of St. Michael and St. George where Dr. Sant, rector, and the Rev. Dr. W. Davidson McDowell of Ladue Chapel, officiated. Chrysanthemums and stock, in pristine white, were arranged in vases on the altar and woodwardia fern banked the chancel. Attached to the pews along the center aisle were lighted tapers, the standards entwined with greenery.

A large wedding party attended the couple. Miss Mary Elizabeth Jones served as maid of honor and Miss Lillian Tuttle Sheldon, Miss Shelley Bush, Miss Katharine Wagner, Miss Josephine Medart, Miss Susan Berger, Miss Nina Moss, Miss Doris Silliman, Wilmington, Del., and Miss Suzanne Shutz, Kansas City, Mo., were bridesmaids. The bride, Miss Bush and Miss Sheldon were all special maids of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball a year ago.

John Talbot Sant was his brother's best man while ushers were the bride's three brothers, Andrew Strauch, John Strauch and Philip Strauch Meyer; John S. Lionberger Jr., Lansden McCandless Jr., Frederick Lee Hawes, Samuel Fitzhugh Gordon Jr., George E. Hale, Cleveland, O. and Hoyt H. Thompson, Kansas City, Mo.

The flower girl and ringbearer, cousins of the bride, were Maria Christine and Donald Jerome Meyer Jr., daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Meyer.

The bride wore a simply-designed gown of pure silk satin in a delicate blush tone.

AMONG PROSPECTIVE BRIDES OF LATE NOVEMBER

Deborah Bair Engaged to J. B. Martin

THE engagement of Miss Deborah Bair, daughter of Mrs. Robert Griffith Bell and the late Douglas Harvey Bair, to James Bell Martin was announced last night at a buffet supper given by Mr. and Mrs. Bell at their home, 10 Ridgetop, Richmond Heights.

The guests, members of the two families and close friends of the engaged couple, found the living room fireplace decorated with laurel roping and blue and white (for Yale) hearts surrounded by sweetheart roses and enclosing the names of Miss Bair and her fiance.

The wedding will take place at 5:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 28, at the Church of St. Michael and St. George. The reception will be given at the St. Louis Woman's Club.

Miss Bair, a graduate of Mary Institute, attended Skidmore College for two years. She made her debut last season with Miss Eleanor Rowland at a garden party at the home of Miss Rowland's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Rowland.

Sister of Douglas Wheeler Bair, the bride-elect is a granddaughter of Mrs. William Baer and the late Mr. Baer, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Wheeler, and the niece of Roland Charles Baer.

Mr. Martin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee Martin, 5 Tuscany Park, Clayton. He was graduated from Country Day School and Yale University, with a B.S. degree in engineering last June. He majored in industrial administration. Commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Force at commencement, he will report Jan. 6 to Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., for active duty. Meanwhile he is associated with the DuPont Co. in Niagara Falls, N. Y.

As an undergraduate he was a member of the Yale Glee Club and Spizzwinks, a singing group, with which he toured Europe last year.

He has one brother, David Lee Martin, a senior at Country Day School, and one sister, Anne Chase Martin. Their grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Frederick Martin and the late Mr. and Mrs. William Hume Bell, all of Evanston, Ill.

June Heneghan, C. R. Brown Jr. To Be Married

THE engagement of Miss Mary June Heneghan, daughter of Mrs. Leo Patrick Heneghan, 1730 Del Norte avenue, Richmond Heights, and the late Mr. Heneghan, to Charles Robert Brown Jr., was announced last Sunday evening at a dinner given by Mrs. Heneghan in the Frontenac room of Le Chateau. More than 100 guests, who had received anonymous invitations asking that they reply to a post office box, attended the party.

Miss Heneghan and her fiance were seated with their contemporaries at a large table which was decorated with an arrangement of white roses and chrysanthemums, to which the names of the engaged pair were attached in silver letters. Pink tapers in silver candelabra provided the illumination. The other tables were centered with pink candles set in pink fall flowers.

The bride-elect, called by her second name, is a sister of Miss Patricia Fay, Miss Barbara Sue and John Charles Heneghan. A graduate of St. Joseph's Academy, she belongs to Sigma Alpha sorority.

Mr. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robert Brown, 5904 McArthur avenue, is a graduate of Christian Brothers Military High School, St. Louis, and Christian Brothers' College, Memphis, Tenn. He is a member of Norwood Hills Country Club.

Msgr. John J. Butler, great-uncle of Mr. Brown, will officiate at the wedding on a date to be announced later.

Miss Dorothy McCoy, R. W. Horan Married

THE marriage of Miss Dorothy Anita McCoy to Robert William Horan took place at noon yesterday at Our Lady of Lourdes Church. Vases of white autumn flowers and arrangements of woodwardia fern provided decoration for the church; the center aisle was delineated with lighted tapers held in hurricane standards entwined with greenery and tied with white ribbon. The Rev. Mathias Benjamin Martin officiated.

The former Miss McCoy, who lived at 4615 Lindell boulevard, is the daughter of Mrs. John L. Moran of Carlyle, Ill., and Glen Echo Country Club. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Joseph Horan, 6926 Pershing avenue, University City.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Moran, was attended by Mrs. Aloysius Kennedy (Bebe Conrad) as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Edward Lee, Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. Joseph Warnick, Miss Jane O'Donnell, Miss Ivalou Kuchins and Miss Ann Elizabeth Horan, sister of the bridegroom. They wore emerald green polished peau de soie gowns with tiny sleeves and molded bodices featuring square necklines. Their long slim skirts were draped at back to form bustle effects from which hung short trains. Matching velvet leaf headpieces covered their hair. They carried full-blown red roses.

An heirloom wedding gown created 62 years ago in Paris for the bride's aunt, the late Mrs. Louis Hamilton (Alice McCoy) was worn by yesterday's bride. Entirely handmade of baby Irish linen lace in seven distinctive patterns, the gown was fashioned with a fitted bodice, slightly changed to conform to today's fashion of deeply cut necklines. The molded skirt extended into a train. With the dress the bride wore a long tulle veil, gathered to a lace cap, and long, white kid gloves. She carried white orchids.

John Joseph Horan, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were John Everett Hunkins, Dr. Roland Ernst, Ralph A. Muckerman, Carl C. Bardenheier, Robert P. Woerner, Ernest A. Eddy Jr. and Walter A. McCoy, brother of the bride.

The reception was given at Glen Echo Country Club. Guests were received before the fireplace between round green trees ornamented with white chrysanthemums. White angel figures on the bridal table held white autumn blos-

Jane Griesedieck Married at Church To Hugh C. Webster

MISS JANE GRIESEDIECK became the bride Friday evening of Hugh Claude Webster. The marriage service was performed at Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Webster Groves by the Rev. Alfred B. Seccombe in a setting of woodwardia fern and white blossoms. Hurricane lamps festooned with greenery marked the center aisle.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Christopher Griesedieck, 71 Lake Forest, Richmond Heights, was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in white lace over satin. The dress featured an empire bodice cut to a round scalloped neckline, long sleeves and a full lace skirt. A wide satin band, inserted at the waistline, was tied in a huge bow in back and cascaded the length of the train. The lace hat, which secured her tulle veil, was marked with orange blossoms, and her bouquet was lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Joseph Orrie Morrissey Jr. (Ann Griesedieck) was matron of honor for her sister. With a short frock of rust velvet she wore a matching velvet headpiece with a veil attached and carried Orange Delight roses.

Mrs. Douglas Vass Martin III, Mrs. Robert McCallum, Mrs. John E. Hoffman and Miss Minerva Canavan were

Audree Fischer Is Married to R. G. McKelvey

THE marriage of Miss Audree Margaret Fischer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Fred Fischer of Washington, Mo., to Robert Gray McKelvey took place at 11 o'clock yesterday morning at St. Luke's Catholic Church. A candlelighted aisle led to a setting of white flowers and candles at the altar where the Rev. John E. Freiberger performed the ceremony.

The bride, called Peggy, was attended as matron of honor by Mrs. Richard S. Radcliffe; as maid of honor by Miss Patricia Edwards of Dallas, Tex., and as bridesmaid by Mrs. Adolph H. Kuhlman of Kansas City, Mo. They were dressed alike in pink taffeta trimmed with Burgundy velvet which formed a back panel and huge bow. Their hats were small pink velvet models with pink veiling; their flowers were contrasting dark red roses.

The bride wore off-white taffeta, a princess gown with

MRS. LEO A. DREY

Kay Kranzberg Becomes Bride Of Leo A. Drey

MISS KAY KRANZBERG and Leo A. Drey were married in a simple service Friday morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Kranzberg, 7615 Maryland avenue, Clayton, by James F. Hornback, leader of the Ethical Society of St. Louis. The families of the principals witnessed the ceremony performed before the mantel which was ornamented by white snapdragon, pompons and roses.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a waltz-length gown of French blue silk. The neckline was finished with imported lace. More of the lace was used on panels over the very full skirt. She wore a bandeau of tiny white rosebuds and carried a bouquet of camellias.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Max W. Myer, 6409 Ellenwood avenue, Clayton.

Included in the family group were Mrs. Karl R. Korn, the bride's sister of Ithaca, N.Y., and her grandmother, Mrs. Bertha Kranzberg.

After the wedding, the families were seated at a luncheon table centered by a several-tiered wedding cake trimmed with roses and lilies of the valley.

The newly-married couple departed for a wedding trip to California, after which they will live at 515 West Point court, University City.

The former Miss Kranzberg attended Washington University before graduating from the University of Michigan. Mr. Drey is a graduate of John Burroughs School and Antioch College, Yellow Springs, O.

Miss Joanne Sutter Plans June Wedding To James L. Gavin

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Paul P. Sutter, 3972 Dover place, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Joanne Marie Sutter, to James T. Gavin. The news was told to members of the families at a Thanksgiving dinner; friends of the pair were informed of their engagement by notes in the mail. The wedding will take place next June.

Miss Sutter was graduated from Ursuline Academy and completed a two-year secretarial course at Fontbonne College. Her sorority is Kappa Beta Gamma. Miss Sutter has one sister, Miss Jaqueline Louise Sutter, and a brother, Stephen P. Sutter.

Miss Russell, W.R. Conzelman Are Married

THE marriage of Miss Beverly Sue Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mason Russell, 8509 Colonial lane, Ladue, to William Russell Conzelman took place last night at First Congregational Church. White autumn flowers, greenery and candlelight provided a setting for the ceremony performed by the Rev. Dr. Paul S. McElroy.

The bride wore a satin and tulle gown. Lace trimmed the neckline and edged the satin tunic falling over a bouffant tulle skirt. Her pleated tulle half-hat, embroidered with pearls and sequins, secured her fingertip veil. She carried a lace-covered prayerbook marked with white orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Ann Hoch served as maid of honor and Miss Jacqueline Blass, Miss Shirley Koch and Mrs. Arnold Pierce Jr., were bridesmaids. They wore ruby red crystallette gowns with accordion pleated panels at the skirt backs. Small matching hats covered their hair and they carried bouquets of pompons.

Mr. Conzelman, son of Mrs. Russell A. Conzelman, 833 Sudbury drive, Clayton, and the late Mr. Conzelman, had Arnold Pierce Jr. as best man. Ushers were Donald Schlapprizzi and Ronald Catanzaro, St. Louis; Charles Byrley, Frankfort, Ky., and Buzzy Naive, Lexington, Ky.

Debra Schiff served as flower girl, wearing a white tiered embroidered organdy frock tied with a ruby red velvet sash. She held a basket of pompons. Ringbearer was Warren Bailey.

Greenbriar Hills Country Club was the scene of the reception. Mrs. Russell greeted her guests wearing cocoa colored chantilly lace over biege satin. A sequinned hat and a spray of brown slipper orchids completed her costume. The bridegroom's mother was in beige lace over toast satin with which she wore brown velvet accessories and brown orchids.

Mr. Conzelman and his bride, after a wedding trip to Kansas City, Mo., will live at 9172 Robin court, Brentwood.

Susan Spinner Becomes Bride Of W. J. Kilroy

MISS SUSAN EMILY SPINNER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Spinner, 7822 Delmar boulevard, University City, who has been living in New York, came home to be married Friday to William J. Kilroy of Allentown, Pa. The ceremony, at the Church of the Annunziata, was performed by Msgr. Charleville B. Faris. Pews along the center aisle were marked by candles in hurricane standards tied with smilax and the chancel was decorated with white chrysanthemums and woodwardia fern.

Mr. Spinner gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a ballerina gown of ivory wool designed with a crisscross bodice having long sleeves, and a full skirt set on low and dipped at the hem in back. Her elbow-length veil was held by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a colonial bouquet of violets, pink garnet roses and yellow and white pompons.

Mrs. George Tyler Gale, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a brown velvet afternoon gown with a small Peter Pan collar and long torso basque. She wore a matching velvet bow in her hair and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

Lt. Edward M. Kilroy was best man for his brother, who is the son of Mrs. William J. Kilroy of Allentown and the late Mr. Kilroy. William P. Crowley and Mr. Gale were ushers.

Chrysanthemums and greenery adorned Norwood Hills Country Club for the reception which followed the ceremony. Mrs. Spinner wore cocoa-colored peau de soie and alencon lace with a beaded hat to match and brown orchids. The bridegroom's mother, who with her daughter, Miss Virginia, was here for the wedding, was in Dior blue peau de soie with a matching hat and pink camellias.

Other out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. John Williams, Milwaukee; Mr. and Mrs. John Plautz, Terre Haute, Ind.; Mrs. Pearl Sprengel, Omaha, Nebr., and Mr. and Mrs. George H. Quentin, Kansas City, Mo.

Mr. Kilroy and his bride will honeymoon in Hawaii. They will return the middle of next month and live in Princeton, N.J.

The former Miss Spinner is a graduate of The Principia and William Woods College, Fulton, Mo. Her husband is an alumnus of Lehigh University and a member of Theta Kappa Psi.

MRS. BEN JOSEPH HITZ

Miss Jean Dickoff, B. J. Hitz Married At Church Service

MISS JEAN DICKOFF and Ben Joseph Hitz were married at Central Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon by the Rev. Dr. J. Layton Mauze Jr. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dickoff, 9937 Tesson Ferry road, Affton; the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. John Oostendorp of Santa Ana, Calif., and the late Ben J. Hitz Sr.

Mrs. Charles Rea was her cousin's matron of honor; bridesmaids were Miss Marie Boedeker and Miss Gloria Cunningham. The young women were gowned alike in pink nylon chiffon with pink velvet bandeaux. Each carried white gardenias arranged with pink stephanotis and ivy.

The bride's gown was of pleated tulle and chantilly lace appliqued on the bouffant skirt. Her short veil was secured by a coronet of matching lace, and her flowers were white stephanotis, pink sweetheart roses and ivy.

Best man was Russell Alber. The bride's brother, James Dickoff; a cousin, Robert Bluedorn; Jack Lewis and Pierce Haller served as ushers. Daniel Blum was ringbearer.

Pink and white flowers decorated the Embers Restaurant where Mr. and Mrs. Dickoff entertained 400 guests at a reception.

Mr. Hitz took his bride on a wedding trip to Miami, Fla. They then plan to cruise to Nassau and Havana, Cuba. On their return they will live in St. Louis Hills.

Pamela Gerhart Married in East

WITH the addition of one letter to her last name, Miss Pamela Gerhart became Mrs. Livingston Gearhart Friday afternoon at First Unitarian Church, Philadelphia. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Gerhart, 6682 Oakland avenue, went east for the wedding. Mr. Gearhart, who has been living in New York, is the son of Mrs. Lillian Hawley Gearhart, East Orange, N.J. He and his bride are musicians.

The Rev. Harry Shoefield, Philadelphia, and the Rev. Wayne Shuttee, New Haven, Conn., performed the ceremony before an arrangement of white chrysanthemums and greenery. The marriage service was preceded by a half-hour concert by a string quartet from Curtis Institute of Music, from which the bride was recently graduated.

Mr. Gerhart gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a white chantilly lace and tulle gown, the lace appliqued to an illusion yoke in a rose point pattern sprinkled with sequins. The bouffant tulle skirt fell beneath a lace peplum and lace panels. The bride wore an illusion veil, secured to a pearl-beaded crown, and carried a spray of white roses entwined with pale pink Hawaiian rosebuds.

Mrs. Peter Danella, Harrisburg, Pa., was matron of honor and Miss Nena del Rosario of the Philippine Islands and New York, was bridesmaid. They wore aqua taffeta waltz-length dresses and matching velvet bandeaux finished with short veils. Their flowers were bronze chrysanthemums in cascade bouquets.

Mr. Gearhart was attended by Ernest Farmer, East Stroudsburg, Pa., as best man. Mr. Danella and Anthony del Rosario, New York, were ushers. Guests remained for a reception in the parish room. Later the bridal party was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Gerhart at a buffet supper at the home of Mrs. Arthur Campbell.

Mr. Gearhart and his bride will live in Buffalo, N.Y., where he is on the faculty of the music department of the University of Buffalo. He studied piano at Curtis Institute and at Fontainebleau Conservatoire in France, later making his professional debut in Paris. The bride was a six-year scholarship student at Curtis Institute, majoring in violin. Last season she was heard as violin soloist with the St. Louis Philharmonic Orchestra, of which her father is the conductor, and has appeared frequently in the East as a concert soloist and as a member of chamber music groups.

In addition to the bride's parents, Mrs. Charles Hall McDowell of St. Louis went east for the wedding.

MRS. DAVID J. STOLWYK

Miss Reppell Bride Of David J. Stolwyk

A BRIDE of yesterday was Miss Marilyn Regina Reppell, whose marriage to David John Stolwyk took place at St. Mary Magdalen Church with the Rev. Gerald G. McMahon officiating. Later a breakfast was given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Reppell at their home, 9800 Cottonwood lane, Rock Hill.

White and pink chrysanthemums adorned the church. The bride, who carried white Fuji chrysanthemums, wore an ivory taffeta gown cut on princess lines. The short-sleeved bodice was trimmed with re-embroidered alencon lace flecked with seed pearls. Her veil, secured to a lace half-hat, fell to her shoulders.

Mrs. Nicholas Lee Swatek was her sister's only attendant. Her bouquet of pink Fuji chrysanthemums contrasted with her cocoa lace gown which she wore with a matching satin cap.

Mr. Stolwyk, son of Adrian L. Stolwyk, 472 Pasadena avenue, Webster Groves, had his brother, Carl F. Stolwyk, as best man. Ushers were Rudolf C. Valenta and Lee C. Ferrenbach.

The bride and bridegroom are motoring to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., on their wedding trip. They will live in Rock Hill.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. Stolwyk's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Breheny, Nauvoo, Ill.

bridesmaids. Their attire was similar to that of the honor attendant, except for their flowers which were Golden Rapture roses.

James E. Sprick served as best man for Mr. Webster, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hobbs Webster of Chicago, former St. Louisans. The bridegroom's parents were here for the wedding. Ushers were the bride's brother, Henry C. Griesedieck Jr.; Mr. Morrissey, Gerry Grossman, Thomas Holling, G. Randall Martin, William McCleery of Quincy, Ill., and a cousin, James R. Moore of Nashville, Tenn.

Guests were entertained later at a reception in the main dining room of the Missouri Athletic Club. Mrs. Griesedieck was in beige re-embroidered lace and satin with bronze accessories, and a corsage of bronze slipper orchids. Mrs. Webster wore a dark brown dress trimmed in iridescents. Her corsage was of chartreuse orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Webster will motor to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and then fly to Nassau on their wedding trip. They will live in Kirkwood.

The former Miss Griesedieck is a graduate of Bradford Junior College and Washington University, and is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Her husband attended Washington University and Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Ind. His fraternity is Phi Delta Theta.

Wedding in Paris For Miss Logan, Richard E. Byars

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, France, Nov. 26. MISS LOUISE ANN LOGAN and Richard Ellis Byars, St. Louisans living in Paris, were married here this evening at the American Pro-Cathedral, Church of the Holy Trinity. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Eugene Logan, 2813 Raritan drive, Rock Hill. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Loren T. Byars, 7365 Drexel drive, University City, and the late Mr. Byars. In Paris for the wedding were Mrs. Byars, a niece, Miss Rosemary Manley, Kansas City, Mo., and Mrs. F. E. Breckenridge, Webster Groves, Mo.

Dean Sturgis L. Riddle of the cathedral performed the ceremony. White carnations in large bouquets were arranged on the altar and lighted tapers set in clusters of the blossoms marked the center aisle.

The bride, given in marriage by Henry B. Radford of Paris and Wilmington, Del., was attended by Miss Jo Ann Hall, Roseland, Nebr., maid of honor. The former Miss Logan wore a white chantilly lace gown. Featuring a wide scalloped V neckline, the gown was designed with a wide skirt terminating in scallops over a finely pleated tulle flounce. Tulle leaves sprinkled with rhinestones formed a coronet to hold her veil. She carried garnet roses and ilium.

Miss Hall was in a burgundy taffeta gown worn with a matching fichu. A wreath of white roses encircled her hair and she held a bouquet of the blossoms.

Ralph M. Tandowdky, Newport Beach, Calif., stationed with the Army in Italy, served as best man while Ross P. Wold, San Francisco, in Germany with the Army, and Maurice Pezet of Paris, were ushers.

The reception was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Radford which was decorated with garnet and white carnations and ilium.

Mr. Byars and his bride will live in Paris while he studies at the Sorbonne. He recently was released from Army service in Livorno, Italy. The former Miss Logan has been associated with the United States Embassy in Paris since June 1954.

MRS. DAVID WINDWEH HOGAN

Marian Landzettel Married at Church To Francis R. Tiffin

A THANKSGIVING DAY bride was Miss Marian Eleanor Landzettel whose marriage to Francis Randolph Tiffin took place at SS. John and James Church in Ferguson. The Rev. William J. Dames performed the ceremony after which guests motored to Le Chateau for a breakfast.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Landzettel, 312 North Elizabeth avenue, Ferguson, was attended by Mrs. Alvin Schroeder, a cousin, as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert Hartwig and Miss Mary Elizabeth Kaiman. The attendants wore crimson and white taffeta gowns with waltz-length skirts. Matching bands with pink veiling were their headpieces and they carried crescents of roses, white for the bridesmaids and red for the honor attendant, interspersed with ivy.

The former Miss Landzettel wore a white shantung gown, the empire waistline finished with a petal-shaped neckline edged in embroidered lace. A jeweled cap held her veil. She carried orchids and stephanotis.

Mr. Tiffin, son of Thomas Randolph Tiffin, 222 South Clark avenue, Ferguson, and the late Mrs. Tiffin, had his twin, Thomas J. Tiffin, as best man. Ushers were Lawrence J. Landzettel Jr., Thomas Dahl, Edward Graham Jr. and Edward Stanfield.

Mr. Tiffin and his bride will spend their honeymoon in Biloxi, Miss.

Annual Luncheon.

The Nadah Club will give its annual luncheon and card party Tuesday at 12:30 o'clock at the Y.M.H.A. Proceeds will be used for the club's philanthropies. Mrs. Louis Skatoff is president of the group and Mrs. Nate Teitlebaum is chairman for the party.

was secured by a lace juliet cap and she carried white orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Abe Spirtos of Belleville served as matron of honor and Mrs. Maynard Greenberg, Oklahoma City, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Harry J. Rosen, his aunt, and Miss Miriam Phillips, his cousin, were bridesmaids. They wore emerald green taffeta dresses and half-hats of velvet studded with pearls. They carried yellow and bronze chrysanthemums.

Mr. Rader son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rader, 7337 Delmar boulevard, University City, had Mr. Greenberg of Oklahoma City as best man and Lester Seligman, cousin of the bride, and Sanford Sarasohn, Walter Tishk and Benjamin Goldstein, cousins of the bridegroom, Saunders Schultz, Albert Herson and Larry Bierman as ushers.

After a wedding trip to Miami Beach, Fla., the bride and bridegroom will live at 5528 Pershing avenue.

Ruth Armbruster Bride Of Robert F. Hohmeier

MISS RUTH ANNE ARMBRUSTER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Armbruster, 4917 Mardel avenue, and Robert F. Hohmeier were married the morning of Oct. 22 at St. John the Baptist Church by the Rev. Adolph Schilly.

Mrs. Harold Sorin was matron of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were the bridegroom's sister, Miss Jacqueline Hohmeier, and Mrs. Eugene F. Meltzer. The bride's brother, David Armbruster, was ring bearer and Cheryl Wagstaff was flower girl.

David Groeller was best man for Mr. Hohmeier who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert W. Hohmeier, 11800 Kramper lane, St. Louis county. Ushers were Ervin Meier, Frederick Bokerman, Paul W. Armbruster Jr., and Fran Bardot.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Armbruster gave a breakfast at Schober's restaurant.

Miss Schierholz Becomes Bride

MISS MARY RUTH SCHIERHOLZ became the bride Friday night of Lt. David Windweh Hogan, an Air Force dentist, at Ladue Chapel. A profusion of white autumn flowers was arranged in the chancel with woodwardia fern and seven-branch candelabra and single tapers, fastened to the pews, were adorned with white satin bows and greenery. The Rev. W. Davidson McDowell officiated.

The bride is the daughter of William Francis Schierholz, 5579 Bartmer avenue, and the late Mrs. Schierholz. For her wedding she wore a white taffeta and chantilly lace gown with a wide, square neckline, short sleeves and a full skirt overlaid with an apron of lace. A lace cap held her long veil and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley, orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. William Francis Schierholz Jr. served as matron of honor for her sister-in-law and Miss Marianne Gasen, cousin of the bridegroom; Miss Nancy Siebens, Chicago; Mrs. Harold Bradford Tukey Jr., East Lansing, Mich., and Mrs. Willis E. Stubbs, Royal Oak, Mich., as bridesmaids. They wore coral satin gowns with wide, cuffed necklines and princess skirts. They carried bouquets of pink Fuji chrysanthemums and wore bands of sweetheart roses in their hair.

The flower girl, Margaret Ann Schierholz, niece of the bride, was in white over pink and held a basket of pale pink roses.

Dr. Hogan, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Russell Hogan, 7 Lombardy Way, River Oaks, had his brother, Richard Lane Hogan, as best man. Ushers were Karl A. Jacob and the bride's brothers, William Francis Jr., James Albert and John Charles Schierholz.

The reception was given in Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride and bridegroom, after a wedding trip to Biloxi, Miss., and New Orleans, will live at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., until August when he is discharged from the service. They will then return to St. Louis.

Mothers' Club to Meet.

Delta Gamma Mothers' Club will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Roger Kipp, 8724 Washington avenue, University City, where Mrs. Eugene Lentz and Mrs. E. J. Ulbricht will be co-hostesses. Plans will be made for the club's participation in the annual Delta Gamma Christmas tree lot where sales are made for the benefit of visually handicapped pre-school children, a philanthropy of the sorority.

Phi Mu Mothers' Club will have a Christmas card party at the Junior League Tearoom Thursday evening. Mrs. Walter O. Heim is chairman.

Juanita Sassenrath Married at Church

MISS JUANITA SASSENRATH, and William Joseph Kunderer were married Thanksgiving day at St. William's Church in Woodson Terrace. The Rev. Walter M. Boul performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sassenrath, 4301 Brown road, Berkeley. For her wedding the bride wore a chantilly lace gown over taffeta. A pearl-studded crown held her fingertip veil and she carried stephanotis and ivy centered with an orchid.

Miss Betty Kunderer, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor; bridesmaids were Mrs. Joseph Jenneman and Miss Ruth Mueller. They wore deep crimson gowns with velvet bodices and full net skirts. White Fuji chrysanthemums formed halos for their hair and their bouquets. Dorothy Sassenrath was her aunt's flower girl.

Mr. Kunderer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kunderer, 8046 Madison avenue, Vinita Terrace, had Bert Hepperman as best man. Ushers were Bernard Hulling, Kenneth Sassenrath, brother of the bride, William Hindman and Ray Towser.

A breakfast was given at Medart's Restaurant and an evening reception at the Lions' Club.

D.A.R. Chapter Meeting.

Mrs. Charles C. Barnett Jr. will be hostess to Webster Groves Chapter D.A.R. Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at her home, 19 Godwin lane, Ladue. Guest speaker will be Mrs. W. Davidson McDowell who will give a talk, illustrated with motion pictures, on her trip to the Holy Land last year.

Assisting Mrs. Barnett at tea, to follow the program, will be Mrs. Charles F. Barrere, Mrs. John Daubenspeck, Mrs. Ivan Huffman, Mrs. Everett Huffman, Mrs. Lester Leitwiler, Mrs. Forbes R. McCreery Jr., Mrs. Fred Richmond, Mrs. Chester C. Walker, Mrs. Christine R. Siegmund, Mrs. June Willsockson and Mrs. Russell Williams.

Bowling Green Wedding for Miss Gentry

ST. CLEMENT CATHOLIC CHURCH in Bowling Green, Mo., was the scene Thanksgiving day of the wedding of Miss Mary Carol Gentry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin G. Gentry, former St. Louisans, to Paul Ambrose Bryant. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hall Bryant of Clarksville, Mo.

Mr. Gentry escorted his daughter to a floral setting, afforded by white chrysanthemums at the altar and along the communion rail. The Rev. John Dreisoner officiated. She wore an imported chantilly lace and tulle dress. The lace bodice, with a V neckline and short sleeves, was complemented by lace mitts. Lace inserts in diamond shape encircled the bouffant skirt, worn over hoops, and the train. A tulle veil fell to the bride's fingertips from a half-hat of pleated tulle and scalloped lace. She carried a white prayerbook topped by a white orchid with ribbons and lilies of the valley.

Miss Joy-Ann Gentry, a student at Webster College, was her sister's maid of honor wearing a dress of gold crystallette and carrying chartreuse Fuji chrysanthemums with a matching pompon tiara.

The four senior bridesmaids, college friends of the bride, wore lime green crystalette. They were Miss Evelyn Conrad, Miss Martha Ann Turpin and Miss Helen Caldwell, all of Bowling Green, and Miss Jane Anne Bucks, Frankfort, Mo. The junior bridesmaids, in coral, were Karol Ann Kutterer, St. Louis, and Rebecca Bryant, Clarksville.

Mett Bryant was best man for his brother, whose ushers were Benjamin Francis Gentry, the bride's brother; Troy Underwood and William Buchanan, Clarksville, and John Taylor, Alton. Nancy Wendel and Mary Carolyn Niemeyer, Bowling Green, were flower girls and Sidney Mitchell was ring bearer.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Gentry gave a reception at the Pike County Country Club. The many out-of-town guests included the Rev. Edmund J. Clohessy, pastor of St. Rose's Church here, and the Rev. Thomas J. Odlum, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Clayton.

Mr. Bryant and his bride will live in Vandalia, Mo., after a brief honeymoon.

Honored at Stephens College. Miss Sandra Ideson, daughter of Mrs. W. W. Thurman, 422 Mission court, University City, has been appointed publicity chairman of the Stephens Independent Association for her residence, Laura Stephens Hall in Columbia, Mo. The association, which sponsors formal and informal dances and other entertainment, will give "Frozen Fantasy," a Christmas dance Dec. 9 and 10. Miss Ideson will return home for the Christmas holidays Dec. 17.

Church Wedding For Miss Lyons

THE wedding of Miss Johanna Ellen Lyons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Lyons, 7300 Northmoor drive, University City, to Patrick Thomas Kelly took place yesterday at Our Lady of Lourdes Church. Msgr. Edward A. Rogers performed the ceremony in a setting of white chrysanthemums, pompons and greenery. Candles shielded by hurricane globes marked the center aisle.

The former Miss Lyons wore a white parchment satin gown with a bodice and long sleeves of chantilly lace embroidered with cut out flower motifs. A circlet of orange blossoms held her fingertip veil and she carried a bouquet of white stephanotis centered with an orchid.

Miss Patricia Hughes served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert D. Rhoades, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Charles A. Pons, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. James J. Bosch. Their French blue taffeta gowns were trimmed with velvet. Small velvet headpieces with tulle brims and crescent bouquets of chrysanthemums and lemon leaves completed their costumes.

Eileen Clark, cousin of the bride, was flower girl in a white frock. She carried a nosegay of French blue and white pompons and pink rosebuds. Joseph Kelly, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Mr. Kelly, son of Mrs. John J. Kelly, 2545 Bremerton road, Brentwood, and the late Mr. Kelly, had his brother, John D. Kelly, as best man. Another brother, Joseph E. Kelly; a cousin, David J. Kelly; Robert F. Deutschmann, Donald F. Lahay and Thomas B. Lyons Jr. were ushers.

The breakfast was given at Le Chateau and the afternoon reception at Bippen's Estate. Mr. Kelly and his bride will spend their honeymoon in Florida.

MISS SHIRLEY MARIE GUITAR will be married in mid-December to Marine Pfc. Donald James Gray, the exact date to be determined later. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Alexander Guitar, 6439 Pernod avenue; Mr. Gray is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gray, 3969 Parker avenue.

The ceremony will take place at Third Baptist Church with the Rev. Dr. C. Oscar Johnson officiating. Mrs. William Deane will serve as matron of honor and Miss Gail Franke, Mrs. Ralph Mueller, Miss Donna Potts and Miss Carol Faulstich, as bridesmaids. Richard Gray Jr. will be his brother's best man and ushers will be William Gray, a cousin; William Guitar, brother of Miss Guitar; Douglas Pulliam and Emil Kosmosny.

Miss Guitar is a graduate of Southwest High School and a member of Delta Gamma Delta sorority. Her fiance, an alumnus of Roosevelt High School, is stationed at Camp Pendleton, Calif., where he will take his bride to live.

To Meet Tomorrow.

The Vos Amies Club will meet tomorrow morning at 11:30 o'clock at the Gatesworth Hotel. Mrs. Joseph S. Ingram, president, will preside at the business session at which plans for the annual Christmas party will be discussed. After luncheon cards will be played.

Miss Coose Married To Charles A. Davis

MISS JO ANN COOSE became the bride Wednesday of Charles Alan Davis at Faith Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church with the Rev. Kurt J. Schmiechen officiating by candlelight.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Coose, 4464 Kenneth place; the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Davis, 5208 Waterman avenue.

The former Miss Coose wore a chantilly lace and tulle gown, trimmed with sequins, and a short veil held by a pearl and sequin headdress. She carried stephanotis and orchids.

Miss Carol McCullen served as maid of honor and Miss Jo Ann Jansing, Miss Sally Tomerline, Mrs. Robert Anderson and Mrs. Richard Tigges were bridesmaids. Renee Whaley was flower girl.

Leroy Thomas served as best man while ushers were Duane Harbin, Mr. Anderson, Mr. Tigges, Charles Bolcar, Clifton, N.J., and Ronald Davis, brother of the bridegroom.

After a reception at a hall, the bride and bridegroom departed for a honeymoon in Chicago. They will live at 5855 Roosevelt place.

VIRGINIA'S HOT SPRINGS HAS BEEN SPA SINCE 1750

What was known, back in 1750, as "The Plunge Pool" when Virginia's Hot Springs first became known as a Spa, has for several years been inclosed with an octagon-shaped stone balustrade and the water which flows at a temperature of approximately 86 degrees is used to raise the temperature in both an indoor and an outdoor pool.

This is one of the many springs that infiltrate the Virginia Alleghanies and, with others, played a prominent role in establishing Hot Springs as one of the first Spas in the country.

Legend relates the discovery of the mineral springs in the sixteenth century, when an Indian brave carrying the vote of his nation to the council fires of the tribes in the western Appalachians came into the Warm Springs valley exhausted after many long miles. He is reported to have drunk of the mineral waters and bathed in the springs, and then sped on his mission refreshed, eager to spread the news of his strength-giving discovery.

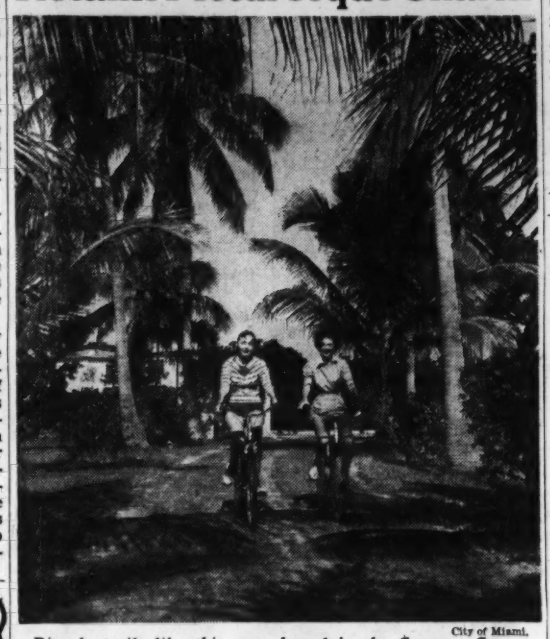
Oldest Section of Miami Retains Picturesque Charm



City of Miami.

Bicycle trails like this one abound in the Coconut Grove section of Miami. The area is a calm oasis in the modern metropolis.

MIAMI, Fla.—The Miami visitor who fails to see Coconut Grove has missed one of the city's most entrancing attractions—a calm, picturesque oasis of yesteryear in this modern, fast-growing metropolis.

It has touches of the West Indies, Greenwich Village, and society settlements of old New England (with palm trees and hibiscus added).

Its narrow, tree-shaded streets, which wander haphazardly about the landscape, bear such picturesque names as Tigertail road, Leafy Way, La Prado, Mooring Way, Greenwood drive and Coconut avenue.

Its architecture runs the gamut from board and batten cottages to sumptuous Spanish villas and ultramodern homes. English type cottages are quite common and there are homes of Georgian architecture.

Considerably older than the city of Miami, "the Grove" has steadfastly retained its own character despite the fact it has been a part of Miami proper since 1925.

Its residents take a dim view of suggestions that the streets be widened or sidewalks installed. That would mean cutting down a lot of trees. And Grove residents are staunch lovers of the huge, sprawling trees which do much to give their community its garden-like beauty.

While young compared to most places in the United States, Coconut Grove is considered old and mellow as southeast Florida cities go. It was the site of the first hotel built on the shores of Biscayne Bay. The first post office in the area was established here in 1873 — 23 years before the City of Miami was founded. The Grove also boasts of the first school, first church, first library and first yacht club in the present-day Miami area.

Since its earliest days, Coconut Grove has been the home of many nationally and internationally prominent persons. One of its earliest boosters was the late Kirk Munroe, author of many books for boys. Among its early day tourist visitors was Alexander Graham Bell.

Authors, publishers, artists and illustrators still gravitate to the Grove when settling in Miami.

The ancient Grove library—a weatherbeaten, South Seas type structure without telephone or air conditioning—is a common rendezvous for members of the village's literary colony. The Library's collection of early Florida history books is the most complete in existence, outside the state library.

The Grove has no night clubs (by choice). But it is the site of the Miami area's first legitimate theatre, giving it another "first" in the growth and development of modern Miami.

Nearby Attractions.

Within 40 minutes of downtown San Diego, California, one may reach into the mountainous backcountry with its beautiful Cuyamaca and Laguna mountains; famed La Jolla and its scenic, enchanting coves hewed out of the rugged bluffs that border the blue Pacific ocean; and Old Mexico with its quaint and charming shops, its bull fights and Jai Alai and authentic Latin way of life.

ADVICE ON CRUISES

Victor Ogley, Cunard cruise director, is scheduled to visit travel agents and various tourist organizations in the St. Louis area beginning Nov. 28 to provide answers to inquiries about the pleasures of winter cruising to the West Indies, it has been announced by Owen J. Lenihan, manager of the St. Louis office of the Cunard Line.

Ogley, who has made more than 100 cruises to the West Indies and South America, will have first-hand information and tips on the 1955-56 winter season cruise program to the Caribbean.

Largest Cave.

The largest explored cave in the world is said to be Carlsbad Caverns, where some 37 miles of underground rooms and corridors have been located. Nearly a half million people a year visit the Caverns, located in southern New Mexico.

Miss Hobbs Married In Webster Groves To R. W. Springmeier

MISS JEAN ANNE HOBBS was married Thanksgiving afternoon to Robert W. Springmeier. First Methodist Church in Webster Groves was the scene of the ceremony performed by the Rev. Wilburn S. Yoder, pastor. Afterward the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard A. Hobbs, who live at 413 South Old Orchard avenue, Webster Groves, gave a reception in the church parlor.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Her gown of white Italian silk had a deep portrait neckline and a bouffant ballerina skirt. A circlet of orange blossoms held her veil and she carried lilies of the valley, white carnations and orchids.

Miss Rebecca Hobbs was her sister's maid of honor. She wore pink velvet. Identical dresses in green velvet were worn by the bridesmaids, Miss Martha Hobbs, another sister, and Mrs. Eugene Wright of Ames, Ia. The candlelighters, Miss Barbara Dean of Cape Girardeau, Mo., and Miss May Sue Ritter of Jackson, Mo., were dressed in pink crystallette.

Edward Springmeier Jr. served as best man for his brother. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Springmeier, live at 5465 Wilborn drive, Jennings. Ushers were another brother, Roland Springmeier, William Moritz, Dale Carter of Cape Girardeau, and Harold Monroe.

Mr. and Mrs. Springmeier went South on their honeymoon. They will live in Kirkwood.

Bride-Elect

MISS MARGARET SHERIDAN WHOSE ENGAGEMENT TO WILLIAM EDWARD GEIER JR., HAS BEEN ANNOUNCED BY HER PARENTS, MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH J. SHERIDAN, 1818 GRAPE AVENUE. THE PROSPECTIVE BRIDEGROOM IS THE SON OF MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM E. GEIER, 4143 BOWEN STREET. A SPRING WEDDING IS PLANNED.

Miss Joan Izenstein Prospective Bride

THE engagement of Miss Joan Louise Izenstein to Pfc. David S. Myers has been made known by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Izenstein, 725 Leland avenue, University City.

Miss Izenstein, who attended the University of Missouri, is now a student at the Jewish Hospital School of Nursing. Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Myers of Chicago, is currently stationed with the Army in Washington. He attended Roosevelt College of Music in Chicago and the Naval Conservatory of Music, Washington. He plans to resume his college education when his tour of duty with the Army terminates next June.

Moellenhoff-Miller Engagement Told

THE engagement of Miss Marilyn Miller to Warren Moellenhoff has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Miller, 4372 Maroon court, Affton. The wedding will take place in the summer of 1957.

Mr. Moellenhoff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Moellenhoff, 7334 Sharp avenue, is in his third year at Concordia Teachers College, River Forest, Ill.

Wedding at Church For Marilou Hanlon

THE wedding of Miss Marilou Hanlon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gregory Hanlon, 5034 Durant avenue, to Edward Raymond Windish took place Thanksgiving day at St. Philip Neri Church. The Rev. Joseph Kennedy officiated before an altar adorned with white chrysanthemums and lighted by candles.

The bride's dress of chantilly lace worn over satin was fashioned with a fitted bodice, scalloped square neckline and tiny sleeves. The full skirt ended in a train. A sequin and pearl-trimmed crown secured her finger-tip length veil. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

Miss Barbara Ann Schiene served as maid of honor in a flamingo-colored taffeta dress with a matching jacket and coronet. She carried yellow chrysanthemums.

Bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Ann Austin, Miss Mary Helen Monahan, Miss Margaret Ann Burgess and Miss Ellen Christine McDermott. Their taffeta costumes, made identical to that of the honor attendant, were in rainbow shades. Susan Marie Windish, the bridegroom's niece, served as flower girl.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Anthony Windish, 1644 Grape avenue, had Francis Aloysius Kohn as best man. Ushers were Donald John Boland, Francis Robert Moran, Richard Patrick Schwartzmeyer and John Edward Hanlon, brother of the bride.

The day's festivities included a breakfast at Le Chateau Restaurant followed by an evening reception for additional guests.

Miss Carol Pfaff Married at Church

MISS CAROL ANN PFAFF was married yesterday to Robert Alan McIntyre at St. Louise de Marillac Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund R. Pfaff, 6348 Lucille avenue; the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. McIntyre, live at 5932 Pershing avenue.

The former Miss Pfaff wore a white satin gown with a lace bodice. A crown of apple blossoms held her fingertip veil and she carried white pompons and orchids.

Mrs. Raymond Mertens served as matron of honor wearing an emerald green velvet and taffeta gown and matching headdress. She carried yellow chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids, Miss Patricia Berry, Miss Carol Ann McIntyre, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Betty Blell and Miss Marilyn Taszarek, were in apricot and held bronze chrysanthemums.

William C. McIntyre was his brother's best man. Ushers were Barry Rosen, William P. Barry Jr., William J. Whalen and Mr. Mertens.

Miss McCoy Bride Of Robert W. Horan

soms and the small tables were centered with more of the flowers.

Mrs. Moran wore for her daughter's wedding a sheath of brown chantilly lace over champagne taffeta. A cocoa-tinted velvet hat, brown accessories and a cluster of white orchids accented her costume. The bridegroom's mother was in deep brown broadcloth trimmed at the neckline with aquamarine. Her accessories were in the dark brown shade and her flowers were white orchids.

Mr. Horan and his bride will visit New Orleans on their wedding trip. They will live in Evanston, Ill.

MRS. ROBERT E. HEBRON JR.

Miss Gangloff, R. E. Hebron Jr. Are Married

THE marriage of Miss Jean Marion Gangloff, daughter of Raymond Francis Gangloff, 4625 Hampton avenue, and the late Mrs. Laura Gangloff, to Robert Emmett Hebron Jr. took place yesterday. The morning ceremony was performed at the Church of St. Gabriel the Archangel by Msgr. Harry E. Stitz, in a setting of white chrysanthemums and lighted tapers.

The bride was gowned in white satin with alencon lace, and carried a white prayer book overlaid with orchids and lilies of the valley. Her short veil was held in place by a pearl-studded crown.

Mrs. Richard Roche was matron of honor. She was dressed in emerald green velveteen, waltz-length. Bridesmaids were Miss Janet Ambs, cousin of the bride; Mrs. Patrick A. Hebron and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Kathleen Hebron. They were gowned in heather green velveteen and held white fur muffs.

Mr. Hebron's sister, Consuelo Hebron, was flower girl wearing burgundy velveteen and carrying a white fur muff.

The bridegroom had his twin brother, Patrick A. Hebron, as best man. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Hebron, live at 4937 Nottingham avenue. The bride's brother, Richard Gangloff; a cousin, William Hebron; James Alabach, Peter Hummell and Joseph Dierker were ushers.

The Gangloffs gave a breakfast in the Congress Tower, and that afternoon there was a reception in the Caribbean room of the Congress Hotel.

Miss Massud Bride Of James J. Norwood

MISS PAULINE MARY MASSUD and James Joseph Norwood were married last Sunday, the twenty-fourth wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Raymond Massud, 4180 Tyrolean avenue, at St. Louis King of France (Old Cathedral) Church. The Rev. James Hoflich officiated at the service, which was followed by a breakfast at Edgewater Club.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a satin gown embellished with sequin and pearl-embroidered alencon lace on the sleeves and bodice. More of the lace formed panels on the full skirt, which ended in a train. Her veil of illusion was secured by a cap of lace. She carried a white prayer book covered with white orchids.

Miss Jacque Kuhlman was maid of honor while bridesmaids included Miss Dorothye Dent, Miss Delores Ceriotti, Miss Mary Ann LaMantia, and two cousins of the bride, Miss Mary Ann Sarkis, and Miss Jacqueline Slay. Miss Virginia Daly was junior bridesmaid. Their strapless white satin dresses were accented by red tulle used over their shoulders and as panels down the back. They wore red satin bandeaux and carried prayer books covered with garnet roses, the same flowers used for their wrist corsages.

The bridegroom, whose grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John Bellers, 3805 Bates street, had Joseph Nesser as best man. Ushers included the bride's brother, John Gregory Massud; Cletus A. Werner Jr., Dale Junghans, Bernard Huster, Jack Nesser, William Robinson and Don La Plante. Her cousin, Raymond Sarkis, was junior groomsman.

Miss Meyer Married To William W. Sant II

Heirloom lace from her mother's wedding dress, bordering the deep square neckline, provided the only trimming. The tightly molded bodice featured long sleeves. The skirt, full and bell-shaped, extended into a train.

Her Brussels lace veil, brought from Europe by the Meyers on a recent trip, was arranged in madonna style, falling over a long billowing tulle veil in the blush shade. The bride carried stephanotis and lilies of the valley.

Her attendants were gowned alike in American beauty peau de soie. The dresses, with scoop necklines, taut bodices and elbow-length sleeves terminated in waltz-length skirts draped to the back to suggest bustles. Hats of the same material also featured back fullness. They carried armsful of pink aristocrat roses.

The reception was given at the Meyer home at 4 Deacon drive, Huntleigh Village. Tall arrangements of pink roses adorned the living room where guests were received. Mrs. Meyer wore a light navy gown with a chantilly lace bodice and peau de soie skirt. A tiny matching lace hat and a corsage of orchids completed her costume. The bridegroom's mother was in Dior blue peau de soie cut on princess lines and worn with a jacket and a matching hat. Her flowers were white camellias.

A marquee with white walls and a pink ceiling, covered the terrace opening with wide windows over the formal garden, planted with evergreens. Small tables were centered with hurricane lamps and white flowers, while the U-shaped bridal table in the dining room was adorned with silver candelabra, lilies of the valley and stephanotis. Gardenias and greenery were arranged in garlands.

Mr. Sant will take his bride to The Cloister, Sea Island, Ga., for their honeymoon. They will live in an apartment in Clayton.

Guests here for the wedding from out of town included Mr. and Mrs. James K. Vardaman, Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. Otto L. Spaeth, and their daughter, Miss Mimi Spaeth, New York, all former St. Louisans, and Mrs. Edwin Bookmiller, Cleveland Heights, O., an aunt of the bridegroom.

Anniversary Party.

The St. Louis Auxiliary of the American Medical Center will celebrate its forty-eighth anniversary at a luncheon tomorrow at noon at Shaare Emeth Temple. Mrs. Philip F. Lichtenstein is auxiliary president.

Mrs. Rubin H. Frank, special affairs chairman, assisted by Mrs. Maude Heyman, Mrs. Milton Haas and Mrs. Grace Stiffelman, will be in charge of the luncheon. Chairmen are Mrs. Harry Goffstein, Mrs. Samuel Stern and Mrs. Samuel E. Gross, reservations; Mrs. Paul Lakub, hospitality, and Mrs. Harry Goffstein, decorations. A feature of the afternoon will be a fashion show by Leppert-Roos. Mrs. Walter Berkman will sing.

Mrs. Morris L. Friedman, first president of the auxiliary, is now serving as chaplain. She was recently given a plaque by the board of trustees of the Medical center, which is in Denver, for almost 50 years of service. Mrs. Charles Kaufman will conduct a board meeting the same day at 10:30 a.m.

THURSDAY TO BE SAFE-DRIVING DAY

Effort to Be Made to Reach Every St. Louisan in Advance.

A safe-driving campaign designed to reach every St. Louisan by Thursday, Safe-Driving day, will reach its peak early this week, city and county safety officials said yesterday.

Goal in the drive is to have the nation observe Thursday as a death-free day on the highways. President Eisenhower, in proclaiming the second annual S-D day, pointed out last year automobile fatalities took 36,000 lives.

Schools in the St. Louis area are co-operating in the project. More than 110,000 leaflets are being distributed for children to take home to their parents. Parents will also be asked to sign safe-driving pledges.

Streets in some sections of the city will be enlivened by groups of parading high school youngsters, bearing posters specially prepared in school art classes to emphasize the importance of cutting down accidents involving mechanically safe cars and unsafe drivers.

The St. Louis Fire Department will conduct a special refresher course for its employes on driving fire department equipment as a special contribution to the drive to cut the death toll on the country's streets and highways.

Police have been asked to report all vehicle accidents, even those not involving police calls, during the 10-day period from Nov. 21 to Nov. 30. Accident totals will then be compared with those in the 10-day period following S-D day, in order to assess the effectiveness of the campaign.

Last year there were no auto fatalities on S-D Day in Missouri, although there were 51 traffic deaths in the nation. A total of 46 accidents causing 14 injuries occured in St. Louis and St. Louis county on that date.

All Catholic Cub, Boy Scout and Explorer leaders have been invited to attend.

A mass meeting to demonstrate uses of Boys' Life magazine, official Scout publication, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at United Hebrew Temple, 225 South Skinker boulevard. Each unit of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council has been asked to send an adult representative to the meeting.

Speakers will be Lloyd S. Eberhart, circulation manager of the magazine, and James Lee Johnson, member of the local council's executive board. Local units will stage demonstrations of things their members learned from the publication.

J. P. Duffy, British consul in St. Louis, will be guest speaker at the annual recognition dinner of Midland district at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Warson and Ladue roads. Six other such dinners will be held this week.

Circuit Judge John A. Wittmaus of St. Louis county will speak at Old Trails district dinner at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow at Ritenour High School. Speaker at North Star district dinner at 7 p.m. tomorrow at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, 2131 John avenue, will be Joseph E. Vollmar, member of the local council's executive board.

The dinner of Northwest district will be at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at St. Ann's Catholic Church, 7530 Natural Bridge road, Normandy. Aubrey Hamilton, an attorney, will speak at the Southwest district dinner at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Wright Lodge of Beaumont Scout Reservation.

The Rev. Robert Raymond, assistant pastor at First Presbyterian Church of Kirkwood, will address leaders of Pioneer district at a dinner at 7 p.m. Wednesday at Wright Lodge. Alfred Fleishman, president of Fleishman-Hillard Inc., will speak at the Grant district dinner at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Jefferson Barracks Community Center.

H. L. Rush, former assistant Scout executive here, has been appointed to serve as Scout executive of the National Capitol Area council at Washington, D.C.

Explorers of the St. Louis council have been invited by Air Squadron 90 of Shaare Emeth Temple to participate in an air encampment Friday through next Sunday at Scott Air Force Base. Those interested should call adviser Lloyd Watell, MI 5-7564.

James Hesse, 3329 Cambridge avenue, Maplewood, will receive Eagle rank at a ceremony of Troop 333 at 8 p.m. Thursday at Lyndover Junior High School. Bob Klepper of Union will be awarded an Eagle badge at a ceremony of Explorer Post 422 at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Union (Mo.) High School.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

The thirty-first annual Gift Festival of the Girl Scout Council of Greater St. Louis will be at 2:30 p.m. next Sunday in Kiel Auditorium Convention Hall. About 14,000 Scouts, leaders and friends will take part in the event which for the second year is sponsored by Stix, Baer & Fuller department store.

Various gifts made by the girls will be assembled in the traditional "March of Toys." They will be given to agencies approved by the Social Planning Council. The theme for this year's festival is "International Friendship" and the Girl Scouts will present four tableaux on "Festival Around the World."

There will be a series of radio and TV broadcasts in conjunction with the Girl Scout Gift Festival. A story by Mrs. Janie Paschall will be given over KWK-TV at 12:50 p.m. Wednesday by Kathy Featherstone of Troop 77; Mrs. J. M. Schoenberger, leader of Troop 756, and Marsha Graham of Troop 1237.

Two members of the Senior Girl Scout "March of Toys" committee will be interviewed by Louise Munsch on WEW at 9:15 a.m. Thursday. On Friday Troop 363 from Our Lady of Sorrows School will be on Gil Newsome's TV program to show their toys, and there will be a preview of the Festival on the KTVI-TV show "For Men Only."

There will be a 7:30 to 8 p.m. Sunday show direct from Kiel Auditorium during the Gift Festival over KWK with disc jockey Ed Wilson as master of ceremonies. KSD-TV will handle movies of the festival on Sunday and Monday.

Eleven Girl Scout Troops will have a gift festival in the Bel-Nor Neighborhood 2 of Nor-Co District at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Bel-Nor School Auditorium. Troops taking part are: 650, 648, 68, 746, 972, 516, 450, 633, 334, 414 and 799.

Six troops from Neighborhood 3, Three Rivers District, will have a Neighborhood Gift Festival from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Wednesday at the Affton Junior High School.

Mrs. Holton R. Price Jr., has been appointed first vice president of the Greater St. Louis Girl Scout Council until April 1956. Mrs. Price, regional chairman of Region VIII of the Girl Scouts of America, will fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Louis Hetlage, it was announced by Mrs. Walter A. Gantner, council president.

Twelve Intermediate Girl Scouts from Troop 298 of District 6 will go camping from Friday through next Sunday in Winter Cabin at Camp Cedarledge, near Pevely. They will be accompanied by Mrs. E. O. Sporleder and Mrs. Henry Diehl, both licensed campers.

WEST GERMANY SEEKS TO EXPAND TRADE WITH ITALY

ROME, Nov. 26 (AP) — West Germany's Economics Minister Ludwig Erhardt is in Italy seeking to expand further Italian-German trade, already the greatest between two European nations.

Last year Germany's booming industries sold more than $330,000,000 worth of goods to Italy. In the first eight months of this year more than $280,000,000 in German goods have been imported by Italy.

This was in the face of a substantial reduction of German coal exports. The United States cut into the Italian coal market this year when Germany needed an increasing amount for its own industry. Italy's expanding iron and steel industries also are absorbing considerably more coal than a year ago.

The United States outsold Germany by approximately $20,000,000 in the first eight months of 1955 and became the largest exporter to Italy. The exports were primarily in cotton, wheat and coal.

Italy exported nearly $200,000,000 of products to Germany last year, about $133,000,000 less than imported.

He loves to putter about the garden!

One of Sir Winston Churchill's favorite pastimes now that he's retired from pubic life is puttering about the garden. Another interest is animals. He has a stable of race horses and even a pet lion! Learn many more interesting facts about how Churchill lives and what he does since his retirement last April. Read the second article in a series about "Winston Churchill in Retirement," by George W. Herald, in Monday's EVERYDAY MAGAZINE.

Here's Sound Advice For "Tubby Hubbies"

JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Life insurance statistics prove that men who are overweight are flirting with real trouble. And it's especially true in the middle age and older group. Monday in her column, "Why Grow Old," in the EVERYDAY MAGAZINE, Josephine Lowman discusses this important problem and what should be done about it. She offers her "Tubby Hubby" diet to readers who send in 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. It should help men lose from seven to 12 pounds in just 12 days.

BASKETBALL TAKES THE SPOTLIGHT

Washington U. opens its cage season against South Dakota here Friday night. On Tuesday, the pro St. Louis Hawks play host to the Philadelphia Warriors. The basketball season's on its way, and you'll keep up to the minute through the sports pages of the daily Post-Dispatch!

She's Met Such Interesting People

Interesting things that happened to interesting people are the making of Helen Worden Erskine's new column in the EVERYDAY MAGAZINE. Mrs. Erskine recounts with a dramatic flair experiences from her career as a newspaper and magazine reporter.

When Gray Clouds Scud Across Sky

By Leonard Hall

ALONG in November there comes a day when winter reaches down with a cold hand to touch the land. Gusts of wind swirl through our valley to send the fallen leaves dancing and we note that the oak trees have turned suddenly from bright russet to solemn brown. Gray clouds scud across the sky and in early morning when the alarm clock rings, there is no sign whatever of sunrise above old Buford. On such a morning you put an extra piece of toast in the oven and linger over breakfast for a second cup of coffee and then hopefully drain the pot to the dregs, putting off for as long as possible the ordeal of going out to meet the biting cold. The radio announces 14 below at Icecake, Wyo., and 55 in St. Petersburg and you shiver sympathetically for the residents of these far-off places.

Along about this time, hard-driven raindrops strike the kitchen windows and enough light sifts through the clouds so you can make out the steers huddled in a tight bunch in a corner of the hedge near the barn. And your conscience bothers, for you know there are many hungry mouths waiting to be fed. So you bundle on boots and extra wool shirt and blanket-lined jumper, turn down the ear-laps on your cap and take the leap out into the cold. Once there, however, you decide it isn't so bad after all. The air has a keen tang to it, as though snow might follow the rain. And if it comes, the wind will drop and the day won't be too unpleasant.

Fifteen minutes suffices to take care of the chores in the stable-yard behind the house. And then, without stopping to let the glow of this first activity wear off, we warm the engine on the tractor and head for the big barn where the main job of feeding awaits us. A few days ago we brought all the cows and calves in from the bottom fields so they'd be handy to the barn when bad weather really strikes and we start feeding them inside. We remember too well the time several years ago when one November morning brought a four-foot fall of snow with the herd scattered all over the farm and it was 48 hours before we could reach some of them with a load of hay. So far this autumn, however, we're still feeding out on the ground which is a mighty easy way to spread the manure and also do a little pasture renovation with seed that shatters out of the hay.

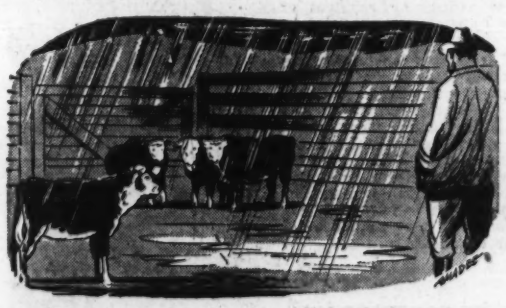
● THE LITTLE BLACK STEERS are also close to the barn, though in a separate pasture. They make a strange contrast to the Herefords after seeing nothing on the farm for several years except white faces, but certainly have the advantage that we can distinguish them at a glance from the breeding herd and can count them at any time without difficulty. We always worry for a few days when we bring in young feeder steers, especially when—as in the case of these—there were a dozen to be weaned. Matt went out with Red Day to haul them in by truck and as soon as we unloaded them, Ern Stricklin came with Ray and Lovell



Hatridge to help us vaccinate. We found the calves unusually tame and quiet for youngsters that had come in from a wildwoods pasture and Ern and Matt ran them through the chute with no trouble. Here each one's head was caught securely in the stanchion by Ray while Lovell gave them their inoculation for blackleg and shipping fever and I clamped an aluminum name tag into each right ear. A half dozen with slightly runny noses were given a good shot of antibiotics as extra precaution.

These calves spent their first few days closely confined in a pen at the house where they soon got used to cleaning up a small feed of grain and all the hay they wanted. Next they went into the small pasture between the house and the big barn and from here, when we're sure they are all acclimated and safely on feed, we'll move them out to the woods pasture where they'll spend the winter. Here they will be fed their hay and a light ration of protein supplement each day and find ample protection in the cedar thickets against rough weather.

● YOU'D THINK THE TIME would eventually come on the farm when you were caught up with all the chores—but somehow it never does; at least, not on a livestock farm. It seems to me, in fact, that this should be the real gauge of whether a farm is large enough to make an efficient and modestly profitable economic unit: its ability to supply full-time, year-round employment for the owner and his family or others who work with him. I often recall, in fact, what young Peterson—the German boy who came from Hamburg to work for us—used to say over and over again: "Just think what we could get done, Mr. Hall, if there were four or five of us working here at Possum Trot."

Last week we had the pleasure of talking to a group of farmers whose work is really never done, when we attended the annual meeting in St. Louis of the Missouri Holstein Association. These dairy farmers are like all farmers we meet, a wonderful group of men and women; faced with just as many problems in earning a living under today's distress conditions in agriculture as are we beef cattle folks, but sticking at their job because it is the way of life they want to live. Put into a sentence, what I had to say to them was that any farm program which is going to work must be a program that helps all farmers: not just a few farmers in certain limited categories of American agriculture.

He Still Has Capacity for Enjoying Life Even if He Has Had to Give Up His Beloved Cigars — "It's Amazing How Much He Can Still Pack Into Day"

Churchill in Retirement

(This is the first of a series of articles on Sir Winston Churchill in retirement. The author is an American foreign correspondent.)

By George W. Herald

LONDON, Nov. 26

WHEN a fellow octogenarian recently asked him what cure he recommended for lumbago, Sir Winston Churchill answered gruffy:

"Ignore it!"

These two words sum up the philosophy which enables the retired statesman to enjoy life as much as ever before. He will be 81 years old next Wednesday.

Winnie makes no pretense of being a tower of physical strength. Ever since he suffered a light stroke in June, 1953—to which he refers as "that accident"—he has had to husband his forces carefully. But he makes the most of what's left and pays no attention to minor ailments.

"It's amazing how much Sir Winston can still pack into one day," one of his doctors told me. "He may be a great leader, writer, painter, heaven knows what—but for my money his biggest achievement is the way he has organized his personal life. He remains without doubt the world's foremost expert in the art of good living."

As Churchill detests schedules, there is no such thing as a "typical day" in his existence. He varies his activities according to his moods. He still likes to act at the spur of the moment. The only rituals he observes wherever he goes are those which help him keep in the pink.

His valet John, who accompanies him on all his trips, will invariably call him over the phone at 7 a.m. in summer and 8 in winter. Thereupon Churchill dons a scarlet dressing gown and gets ready for the first ritual of the day: breakfast.

Sir Winston has a whole theory on breakfast. For him it is the most important of all meals. Served by Edward, his personal cook, it absolutely has to consist of porridge, bacon, eggs, toast, marmalade and large cups of coffee. All these items have to be of a certain kind. When he recently sojourned on the French Riviera, cases of his brand of oatmeal, jam, etc., were shipped to him from England by plane.

The rite's whole solemnity is stressed by the fact that no one—not even his wife—has ever been allowed to watch Churchill take his morning bite.

"If a man is to preserve his health and marriage," he proclaimed long ago, "he must have breakfast alone."

AFTER coffee, Sir Winston lights one of his daily six to eight cigarettes. That's correct: cigarettes.

Since last May, the man who has done more for the world's cigar trade than any other living human being has given up Havanas for good.

"Makes me feel like an awful sissy," he complains, but his doctors are intractable.

"The best we can do for the Old Man is to let him sport his famous trademark in public," they said. "Make no mistake though: he doesn't smoke them, he merely chews them."

While Winnie looks through the morning papers, John prepares his first bath for him. That's ritual No. 2. He takes three baths a day—and all of them have to be boiling hot. When John hardly dares dip two fingers into the water for fear of burning himself, he knows he has hit just the right temperature to make his master hum arias with delight.

From the bathroom, he goes right back to bed which has been freshly made in the meantime. There he reads, writes and dictates until noon when John returns for ritual No. 3: getting dressed for lunch.

At his age Sir Winston feels he has earned the right to wear only what makes him comfortable. Thus his wardrobe no longer bears much resemblance to anything worn by ordinary city folks. It mainly consists of "rompers"—a large collection of zip-up suits copied after the air-raid wardens' costume in World War II.

Churchill's closet abounds with rompers for the summer, rompers for the winter, rompers out of silk, dacron, wool and camel-hair. Even at parties where everyone else wears formal garb, he will show up in velvet rompers over an open white shirt.

"The record was beaten when he was host to Ambassador Luce in Sicily last spring," a United States diplomat confided. "Winnie made his entry in bright red velvet pajamas matched by a pair of black velvet slippers on which his initials, WSC, were embroidered in gold over the big toe."

The first time in the day Sir Winston meets his wife Clementine is usually at lunch. When they are at Chartwell, their country house in Kent, where they spend eight months of the year, they are often joined by their daughter Mary Soames, who lives on the estate.

The day's ritual No. 4 consists in a catnap after lunch. He only has to stretch out on the couch in his study and put a black satin bandage over his eyes to drop off to sleep like a baby. When he wakes an hour later, he will look at least 10 years younger than he is.

"This power of recuperation is God's special gift to Sir Winston," one of his doctors said. "It explains better than anything else why he is still around and kicking."

HE spends the afternoon working, telephoning and going on a half-hour's walk to get exercise. Now and then, as he strolls through the countryside wearing a gray tweed coat and a battered felt hat, he will swing a thick hockey stick to whack balls for his little poodle.

But he carefully cuts out all superfluous effort. Each time he calls someone, for instance—and he is as phone-crazy as a bobby-soxer—he will first lie down on a sofa to talk in comfort.

Around 7 p.m., Sir Winston goes through ritual No. 5 of the day — another hot bath — and puts on an entirely fresh set of clothes. He nearly always has guests for dinner, as he likes table talk and needs an audience he can dazzle. Later, plunged in a deep lounge chair, he will go on talking over a glass of whisky and smoke his sixth and seventh cigarettes.

By 11 o'clock, after his third and final bath of the day, he goes to bed in the firm conviction that thousands of similar days lie before him, provided he sticks to his health regime. His doctors agree, but the body isn't everything. What keeps Churchill young, they say, is the zest with which he occupies his mind.

At heart, Sir Winston is delighted to let people benefit from his accumulated wisdom. He has an answer to any problem—political or personal—and thereby goes on wielding great influence behind the scenes.

Churchill's main efforts are now concentrated on his forthcoming book "A History of the English-Speaking People." This is a work of tremendous scope which will deal not only with Great Britain and Ireland but with all the nations of the Commonwealth and the United States.

The volume was nearly completed in 1940 when the statesman had to put it into a drawer to attend to more urgent duties.

When he vacationed on the French Riviera this past summer, a messenger brought him each morning a large gray envelope sealed at the four corners with red wax carrying the arms of Britain. The letters contained top-secret day-to-day summaries of Foreign Office and other government business. Sometimes there also was a brief note from Prime Minister Eden which was burned immediately after perusal.

OFFICIALLY, Sir Winston had no claim to such service. He was merely a Conservative M.P. for the district of Woodford, Essex. He had made a point of staying away from most sessions of the House of Commons so as not to divert public attention from his chosen heir.

Fellow members were still waiting for his first major speech as a backbencher. He did not wish to give advice unless he was expressly asked for it.

But his advice was still needed. There were many aspects of foreign and domestic politics where his 50-year experience remained invaluable. That's why Eden had granted Churchill the unprecedented privilege of keeping him—a mere MP—briefed on the doings of Her Majesty's government.

In the late 1940s he was busy with his war memoirs and in the early fifties he was voted into office again. Thus he could get back to the script only after he retired last April.

He did so right away. A week after he left office, he met with U. S. publisher Henry Luce in Syracuse, Sicily. Referring to the passage of 15 years, he told Luce: "My work on the book was briefly interrupted but I am now going to finish the job within less than 12 months."

A contract was signed and publication scheduled for early 1956. Since then, Sir Winston has devoted a minimum of four hours a day to the text. His favorite working periods are from 10 to 12 and 3 to 5.

In the morning, he dictates in bed to his private secretary, Miss Iris Pugh, who takes his sentences into a silent machine. He will start out slowly, weighing every word, but soon, stimulated by the sound of his own voice, the flow of his prose will become a mighty torrent sweeping over forgotten areas of history. According to Miss Pugh, there are days when his output comes close to 6000 words.

In the afternoon, he dictates again for a while, then goes over the typewritten copy and discusses next day's work with his two collaborators, Anthony Muir and Montague E. Brown.

Muir is an archivist of the British Museum Library. Brown formerly was Secretary General of the Foreign Office. Both have the task of preparing the reference material for future chapters and checking all data for accuracy. Muir, who with his colleague and Miss Pugh joined Sir Winston on the Riviera, explained:

"Nothing like this work has even been attempted. It will be a classic of its kind and, coming from Sir Winston, a controversial one, of course. But it carries the stamp of his genius. Had he never done anything else in his life, I am sure his 'History of the English-Speaking People' would be enough to assure him lasting fame."

"WELL, what about my paintings?" Churchill would have asked rather peeved if he had heard that appreciation. He feels indeed that his merits as a statesman and historian should not obscure his achievements as an artist.

Originally, painting was just a hobby for him, as it is for President Eisenhower and Anthony Eden. When Princess Margaret asked him one day why he did nothing but landscapes, he answered with a twinkle in his eyes:

"Because neither the trees nor the stones have to resemble their models."

Of late, though, he has been taking his brush-and-easel exercises more and more seriously. First in Sicily and then in the South of France, he has terminated eight new canvases. One of them shows rocks gleaming in the light of a limpid Mediterranean day, another one a group of olive trees against the background of the deep blue sea.

Altogether, Sir Winston has produced more paintings than many recognized masters have left behind. His total output is estimated at close to 500 canvases.

Nothing could have elated Winnie more than what happened at a recent Paris art sale. Five oil paintings signed Charles Ardoin were sold for $80 apiece to people who liked them and put them on the walls of their living-rooms. They didn't know that Charles Ardoin was in reality that great if somewhat underrated French impressionist of the 20th Century: Monsieur Winston de Churchill!

Farewell To Spying In Vienna

By Art Buchwald

VIENNA.

NOT everyone in Vienna is happy that the Franco-British-Russo-American occupation is over. For the past 10 years Vienna has been the spy capital of the world. But with the departure of the Big Four, the spy industry collapsed and 10,000 informers, or spitzels, as they are called in Austria, were put out of work.

The spitzels earned their living not only by spying, but by counter-spying and triple-spying. There were spitzels who were double-crossing so many people at the same time that there were moments when they forgot whom they were working for.

The cafe spitzel, who was the lowest paid spy, used to read Iron Curtain newspapers, from which he culled items that he presented to Allied agents as top-secret information. At the same time he read American and British aviation magazines from which he offered to turn over to the Russians, sketches of the latest military planes. Everyone used the cafe spitzels, if for no other reason than to fill up dossiers to prove that as intelligence agents they were on the job.

THE MORE DANGEROUS spitzels engaged in kidnaping, which at one time was an important Viennese pastime. The kidnaping spitzel either fingered the victim for the Russians or engaged in the event himself.

The third type of spitzel used to penetrate the Iron Curtain, delivering and picking up information, traveling from West to East and East to West, confusing all sides, who weren't quite sure whom he was working for.

In one memorable case the Vienna police arrested a man who screamed he worked for Western intelligence. Western agents identified him as an employe, but expressed surprise that he was in Vienna, as they had been receiving daily reports from him as to what was happening in Budapest.

For a long time spitzels were paid off in grapefruit juice, nylons and other items that were in demand. But as living got better they demanded hard cash.

On the average the pay on both sides was low, which forced the spitzel to find as many employers as possible. The spitzel might go to the West and say he was working for the Russians. The Western agents would then advise him to double back and spy on the Russians. If the Russians discovered the spitzel was doubling back they would talk the spitzel into tripling back to the West.

AT A WESTERN DP CENTER, a janitor confessed he was a Hungarian penetration agent and was supposed to supply important waste paper to the Russians. The Western agents gave him phony waste paper, but discovered the janitor was swiping real trash as well (the triple-back play). So the West planted some paper in the trash indicating the janitor was a Western agent. The janitor was kidnaped and sent to a jail in Budapest, where he managed to smuggle out a message to the Western agents which said:

"You still owe me a week's pay."

"Do you think spying will ever come back?" we asked a man in the know.

"Not on the scale it was during the occupation. There is a lull now, but I think we will see Vienna as a great economic intelligence center for both the East and the West.

"Now that Austria is neutral it may be the economic gate to the Iron Curtain and both sides will be interested in the trade going in and out.

"The cafe spitzel is finished, but the high-echelon agent will be more in demand. It's obvious that Vienna will still be a mail drop for East and West, and there should be a certain amount of penetration agents going back and forth. But Vienna can not longer be called the spy center of the world."

Further proof of what the man said was given to us by an American correspondent working in Vienna who said: "Last week a Viennese came in and wanted to sell me a new version of the Mayerling story. We haven't been offered a version of the Mayerling story in years. It shows how low the spitzels have sunk."

Helen Traubel on Eve of New Career

By Cynthia Lowry

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP).

NEXT Wednesday night Helen Traubel of Wagner and Strauss will face a first-night Broadway audience as Madam Fauna of the Bear Flag "Cafe" and star of the new Rodgers and Hammerstein musical "Pipe Dream."

HELEN TRAUBEL . . . ALWAYS READY FOR A LAUGH.

The transition of a St. Louis woman with a diamond voice from Brunnhilde of the Met to the keeper of a low cafe on the legitimate stage has taken less than five years. Helen has loved every busy minute of it. But in a few weeks, the imposing, 52-year-old dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera seems almost to have disappeared.

"About a week after rehearsals started," said Bill Bass, her husband of 17 years and manager, "she started being Fauna 24 hours a day. She hasn't stepped out of character since. She drops her G's, makes big gestures and acts kind of slam-bang and she's been doing a little mild cussing—that's the kind of a dame Fauna is.

"I worried some before rehearsals started, because Helen's never had anything like this to go through before and I didn't know about the strain of the rehearsals. I was a fool to worry, though. She's eating the whole thing up."

Preliminary reports from New Haven and Boston where "Pipe Dream" has been on its shakedown cruise, indicate Helen's acting debut is sensational and that the Rodgers and Hammerstein lightning which struck Ezio Pinza, another Met veteran, in "South Pacific" has hit the statuesque, redhaired daughter of a midwestern druggist.

● JOHN STEINBECK, from whose book, "Sweet Thursday," the musical was adapted, might have had Helen in mind, physically, for the gusty, lusty, shrewd, warm, tough and sentimental Madam Fauna, even though his original Bear Flag was a house something less than orderly. (Its conversion to a cafe represented a minor bow by the adapter to convention).

Not only did Helen have lines to learn, but she also plunged into dancing lessons and new songs. "Only one thing really stopped me," she remarked, "and that was a direction in one of my songs. It said 'mild grind.' Now I ask you, how do you do a mild grind?"

Chances are that her emergence on Broadway will not outrage and upset the long-hairs anywhere near as much as her determination two years ago to hit the nightclub circuit. At the time, she was the undisputed queen of the Met's German wing. Rudolph Bing, general manager of the Met, in presenting Helen's 1953-54 contract suggested that operatic and popular singing "do not really seem to mix very well."

Miss Traubel promptly tore up the contract. She accused Bing of "rank snobbishness," and wound up by saying that "artistic dignity is not a matter of where one sings." Then Miss Traubel, who had already knocked critics and audiences off their chairs at the Ches Paree, romped off for a season of concerts and nightclub appearances.

● AS A METROPOLITAN OPERA STAR, she had been knocking off some $250,000 a year before taxes. In the year after she left the Met, according to educated gusses, she doubled her income.

As a young singer, Miss Traubel made musical history. At 23, with an exciting reputation on the strength of some concert appearances, she was offered a contract with the Metropolitan Opera. She turned it down.

"I'm not ready yet," she said—and went back to St. Louis to continue her studies. She kept on studying for another 13 years, singing in churches and occasional recitals. It wasn't until 1939—when she was 36—that she felt she was ready to move. Within two years she had taken over the Met roles of the great Flagstad—Brunnhilde and Elisabeth—as the Norwegian soprano returned to her Nazi-occupied country.

Helen is a big woman—almost 6 feet and around 185 pounds when in singing trim. None of this weight is wasted—her feet and legs are slim and shapely. Most of it is concentrated in the rib cage, the area containing her extraordinary singing apparatus.

● WHAT QUICKLY ESTABLISHED Miss Traubel with the great American public was her relish for clowning. She's appeared five times with Jimmy Durante, indulged in endless horseplay—and each time changed the pace by singing "good music" without mutilating the music or the mood.

Her contract with Rodgers and Hammerstein runs for 18 months—and the advance ticket sale of the show indicates that win, lose or draw it is bound to last a minimum of a year. This means that for months to come her life will be almost a vacation—no tearing about the country concert and cafe schedules; no hotel living. But also no pleasant stop-overs at the Basses' beloved ocean front home at Laguna Beach, Calif., where Helen enjoys looking, entertaining and relaxing. Helen and Bill will settle down in their New York Park avenue apartment, a spacious and handsome place which for several years they have used only when Helen was working at the Met or in town for television appearances. They wonder if they'll like it, for they are both restless and energetic.

"I feel," said Helen, "that this show is right. I feel it's right for me. I just hope people will like it."

She laughed.

"Anyway, I'm having a wonderful time. It's stimulating and it's all new. I'm not in a rut."

Girl Scout Project

Cheer, Sunshine To Elderly People

Adopt-a-Grandparent Program Growing Fast in New York Area — For Old Folks Tucked Away in Hospitals, Institutions

By Virginia Irwin
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.

GIRL SCOUTS in the New York area are busy these days on a fast-growing project. Called the adopt-a-grandparent program, the project is designed to bring cheer and sunshine into the lives of old folks in hospitals and homes for the aged.

Started on a small scale five years ago when a Girl Scout troop began visiting the residents of a home for the indigent aged on New York's Welfare Island, the adopt-a-grandparent movement has mushroomed into a major Scout activity. In the city's five boroughs alone, some 8000 Girl Scouts have adopted grandparents in 43 old-age homes.

As adopted grandparents, folks in homes and hospitals for the aged, are finding their bleak lives cheered in countless little ways. An adopted grandmother finds her birthday and various holidays remembered with little greeting cards; Easter marked with perhaps a little bunch of posies; Christmas remembered with some such little gift as a box of Girl Scout cookies or a piece of costume jewelry the Girl Scout "granddaughter" has made out of plastic or acorns.

The adopted grandfather finds his Girl Scout remembering him with pipe tobacco, a hand-knitted muffler, a box of razor blades, or some other small gift that costs little but means much because it came from a "grandchild."

Sometimes adoptions are on a group basis. A Girl Scout troop may adopt all the residents of a certain wing of a home or ward of a hospital. Sometimes a whole troop will concentrate on just one old person. In nearby Paterson, N. J., one Girl Scout troop singled out a former slave for their special attention. Last December they gave her a big party on her 105th birthday. They presented her with a 105-candle birthday cake and a four-foot candy cane to help her "get around." She died shortly afterward, mourned by the Girl Scouts who had made her last days happy.

Girl Scout officials believe that, in addition to the happiness that the adopt-a-grandparent program brings to the lives of old people, there is inestimable benefit in the project to the Girl Scouts themselves.

"Life is a continuity of many ages and all of us can profit from knowing one another," Mrs. Joy B. Roy, New York psychologist and special consultant to the Girl Scout Project Development Division, pointed out. "The gayety and spontaneity of children, the ideals and experience of adulthood, the wisdom and understanding of old people, make the mixture of life complete.

"Because there has been a trend in the United States to segregate old people in homes by themselves, many families have little or no contact with the older generation. It would seem that we owe it to ourselves to get to know old people, not simply because they are our responsibility, but in order better to understand the sequence of our own lives."

In these days of small homes and apartment living, there is, too often, no room for grandma and grandpa within the family circle. Families separate and children grow up rarely seeing their own grandparents in cities thousands of miles away from their own homes.

"MANY a child these days is left without the ready ear, the comforting arms, the affection and attention that only a grandparent can bestow," New York State Senator Thomas C. Desmond, chairman of the New York State Joint Legislative Committee on Problems of the Aging said recently in indorsing the Girl Scout adopted-grandparents program. "Wisdom, tolerance, unhurried loving companionship, the sense of continuity of the life cycle, these are things that old folks used to give children in the family circle. Today, where grandma and grandpa are not available, some substitute is needed."

The Girl Scout "substitute" grandparent program answers not only a youngster's need but also an old person's craving to belong, to feel useful, to be appreciated. Visits from the young people to homes for the aged provide a break in the deadening monotony of institutional life. The youngsters often stage little entertainments for the old folks. Sometimes they just talk about their school or their Scout work which gives the old person the sense of sharing in a younger life.

Often it is the grandparent who does most of the talking. Girl Scout officials say that, although it may seem somewhat surprising, the youngsters love to listen to older people talk of the days long ago.

"When it comes to adopting grandparents," said an official in one old people's home where the Scout program has worked with outstanding success, "Girl Scouts pay no attention to size, shape, color or religion."

ONE adopted grandmother is a native Armenian who speaks no English, but language has proved no barrier in the mutual devotion that has developed between her and her Girl Scout "granddaughter."

Recently news has begun to come into the National Scout Council of increasing activity in the adopted grandparents program in other cities. One of the most active programs is being carried on in Norwalk, Conn., where some 200 Girl Scouts have adopted grandparents in eight convalescent homes for older people.

With more and more people living to a ripe old age, thanks to the advances of medicine, the population of our homes for the aged will increase if the present trend to segregate old people in homes by themselves is continued. Many of them will lead lonely lives, neglected by their families.

In a survey of one city-financed home and hospital in New York, a heart-breaking fact was established. Out of some 1800 old people living in the institution nearly 1000 were never visited by relatives or even remembered with cards at Christmas time.

It is to such lonely old folks that the Girls Scouts adopted-grandparents program is bringing light and laughter. And while the Girl Scouts are doing the good deed of their Scout Promise, they themselves are benefitting. Through association with their adopted grandparents, they are learning to better understand the sequence of their own lives.

Marriage

Explaining Divorce To Child

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

CHILDREN naturally love both their parents, and one of the most difficult and dangerous aspects of divorce is the attempt on the part of these parents to explain to the children why they can't live together any longer. Intelligent husbands and wives recognize that they must not put the child in the middle of the fight. Each must resist the temptation to appeal to the child for sympathy and make it appear that the spouse is an intolerable person to live with. But in actual practice, this is not an easy trick to perform. Mrs. C. is practicing it, however.

"I have made up my mind to get a divorce," she writes me. "I have been thinking about it for two years, and nothing in the world can stop me now. Yet my husband is in many ways a wonderfully fine man. He has been a good father. He is just as devoted to our two children as I am. Why am I going to divorce him then? That's too long a story to tell in a letter. I hope you will believe me when I say I have thought and prayed about this night and day, and I am convinced I must do it.

"I'm going to try to prevent the children from being injured by it. I'll never say a word against their father to either of them. I'll tell them he is a good father and a fine man, only we can't live together any longer. If I always stand up for him before them, don't you think I'll do the best I can to protect them from emotional damage?"

I THINK you'll certainly demonstrate that you are a remarkable acrobat, Mrs. C. The French psychologist Maurice Porot wrote about this recently. "How can we ask a divorcee year after year to perform this continual and difficult feat of gymnastics which consists in teaching a child to love a person whom you yourself have stopped loving?" he asks.

I doubt if anyone can do this with complete success. If the child is small he will merely be confused and perhaps frightened. If the child is older, I'm afraid he'll merely put you down as a hypocrite and fraud. Teenagers in particular are quite able to see through this sort of trick. They are smart enough to recognize that if you are telling them the truth, it is a reflection on your own character. If father is as good a man as you make him out to be, there is certainly something seriously wrong with you that you could not get along with him.

OF COURSE, I know nothing about your motivation in this, Mrs. C. You take pains not to tell me, which is perhaps an indication that you don't think the story would be very convincing to anybody but yourself. But, on general principles, I'm sending you the name and address of a competent and trustworthy marriage counselor near you. A few talks with him might do your children more good than all the noble sentiments you are rehearsing to tell them after the divorce.

Answers to Questions.

Q. Do you think it is a good thing for parents to talk to children about their own childhood?

A. Yes; grandparents too, provided they don't become bores. Children gain a stronger feeling of family solidarity by knowing about their parents' early successes and failures.

Q. Should children be paid for the duties they perform at home?

A. No. Write me (with stamped, self-addressed envelope) for reprint "What About Children's Allowances?" They should do their full share in the home as partners, not as paid employes.

Q. I sometimes think that my mother really enjoys being sick. . . .

A. Many people do. It gives them a feeling of importance from being the center of attention, and relieves them of responsibility for doing anything for others. It's one of the most dangerous tendencies in human nature.

Q. Do older people become more tolerant, have fewer likes and dislikes, as they become aged?

A. No—on the whole there is little difference. In many instances they become less tolerant, more easily irritated.

Movie Newcomers—Kim Novak

Only 22 Years Old and on Her Way to the Top

By Edward A. Harris

FIFTH OF A SERIES

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 26.

KIM NOVAK is a hot butter blonde with creamy complexion, emerald green eyes and no pretensions. She's also a little dizzy—from her swift ascent in Hollywood.

"Everything happened so fast," she told me, "that I'm still in a whirl. I've got to get my bearings before I make up my mind about some things—get more oriented and mature a little."

She sat before a mirror in her portable dressing room at Columbia Studios, getting ready for another scene in "The Eddie Duchin Story" in which she co-stars with Tyrone Power. She had on a winter green overcoat for the next bit of shooting.

"I play Eddie Duchin's first wife," she said. "I die in the picture. It's real sad."

She got back to her career. Now only 22, Kim came to Hollywood three years ago on a cross-country tour advertising an electric washing machine. She was a model at the time. An actors' agent met her, arranged for a screen test at Columbia, and she was signed to a long-term contract.

Since then she's played in "Pushover," her first movie; "Phffft," with Judy Holliday and Jack Lemmon; "Five Against the House," and "Picnic," the movie version of the stage hit by William Inge. "Picnic," in which Kim has her first important dramatic role, is destined to raise her to real stardom, according to studio critics. It will be released next year, as will the Duchin film.

Recalling her screen test, Kim said: "I was lucky. There was no smog that day." She was so doubtful that anything would come of it that she didn't bother to stick around her telephone. When she did come back to her hotel room late in the evening, the phone was jangling. When she was told the good news she had a sudden but overwhelming impulse to share it with a man she had recently met but had never dated—Mac Krim, a tennis-playing theater-chain owner.

SINCE THEN she and Krim have dated steadily. And one of the things Kim is so uncertain about, as she is being borne starward at a jet-propelled pace, is marriage.

There's not the slightest doubt in her mind about Krim, or her feelings about him. But she feels marriage now might be too distracting.

It isn't that Kim is career-happy or overly ambitious. When the studio first signed her, it had to deploy some of its most persuasive and persistent dramatic coaches to convince Kim acting is worthwhile and important. "I was lazy," she noted matter-of-factly. "But they kept telling me about the theater and art, and finally I awoke to it."

In making "Picnic," Kim was on edge, nervous, doubtful of her ability to play so vital a part opposite William Holden. But the rushes were promising, and the completed film real theater. Kim at once gained much poise and assurance, both evident in the new film.

This brings up the old Hollywood issue—whether brilliant coaching and direction can make a star out of anyone, or whether a measure of talent is essential in the first place. Kim is modest about her abilities, and would be the last to say that she sensed any acting talent in herself when she was approached about a screen test.

She was given two tests by the studio. In the first she wore a frilly frock and spoke some dialogue from "The Moon is Blue." In the second she wore a black, skin-tight low-cut gown. "The first was more the real me," Kim recalled, "but the second was the one that clinched the contract."

From pure sex appeal, Kim has gone on to serious roles, but she didn't always have the sex allure that's now taking second place.

KIM NOVAK . . . HER CLIMB HAS BEEN SWIFT.

"In my teens I was tall, skinny and gawky," she said. "It hurts just to think about those days, even now, because I was so miserable."

She was born in Chicago Feb. 13, 1933, of Bohemian parentage. Her father, Joseph Novak, works in a railroad office; her mother, Blanche, was a history teacher before her marriage. Kim was christened Marilyn Pauline Novak. She let the studio change her first name, but insisted on retaining the Novak.

AS A CHILD she felt rejected and lonely. "I was very self-conscious. The boys ignored me, and those who didn't teased me until I cried. Boys chased girls and girls chased boys in my neighborhood. But nobody chased me."

Her father called her Mickey, because he had wanted a boy so badly—one reason she may have felt so rejected. "For a long time I thought being a boy was about the greatest thing in the world," she said.

In spite of her inferiority feelings she prevailed on her mother once to let her go to a teenage dance in a Loop department store. "The other girls had bobs and I still had my awful braids," she related. "But the minute I entered the ballroom I felt like a princess. A boy asked me to dance. I came home later floating on air."

This was her turning point in gaining confidence. She learned to dress more attractively and she blossomed. Soon she had won a $400 scholarship to a modeling school, and that led to modeling for as much as $10 an hour. When she came to Hollywood as a model promoting the washing machine she had no idea of crashing filmland, but now that she's in it she's glad.

Kim lives at the Studio Club in Hollywood, former home of many stars. She scribbles poetry a lot but won't let anyone see the verses; often jumps rope before breakfast to keep in trim, and clutters up her dresser with musical dolls that go off at odd hours. She plays table tennis rather well, likes miniature golf and biking, like to cook exotic and new dishes, doesn't drink or smoke. Neither does Mac Krim. And speaking of Krim, Kim got off some strong notions about men in general.

"It's dangerous to be taken in by a man's looks," she said. "What's within is what counts. You can be with a man half an hour and he's either ugly or handsome, depending on his character."

If that sounds like sensible psychology, it should be noted that Kim took up psychology as well as dramatics at Wright Junior College in Chicago—but at the same time she learned much from the well-known school of hard knocks. To help pay her way in school she worked as a clerk in a five-and-ten, a dental receptionist and an elevator operator. She's never been self-centered or egocentric.

That's Kim Novak's basic charm—her naturalness and her humility.

NEXT SUNDAY—Jack Lemmon.

Blonde at Sammy's

By Helen Worden Erskine

SHE wanted to please—this tarnished blonde with the overlapping curves. But the way everybody went on talking, drinking, eating and clattering dishes said louder than words, "This is just a has-been singing 'The Last Rose of Summer' at Sammy's on the Bowery."

HELEN ERSKINE . . . VISITED BOWERY.

Gavin Gordon, the actor, happened to be with me that night. As her song ended he looked at me. "Come on, let's give the old girl a hand."

Somebody behind us also applauded loudly. Presently we saw the blonde going from table to table. Again Gordon sympathized. "Sit down," he said, "and order what you want."

"Cheese on rye and a big pot of black coffee," she said promptly. "I gotta stay awake till 4 a.m."

This, it seemed, was her first appearance on the stage since 1926. "I used to be front row girl at George White's Scandals," she explained. "Quit to marry a Curb broker. He bought me diamonds, a mink coat and a French poodle."

The waiter produced the sandwich and coffee. "You got only one slice of cheese?" she complained, raising the top slice of bread.

"Two will cost more," he warned.

"Okay," said Gordon.

● SHE POURED HERSELF a cup of coffee. "Things stopped being good for us. 'Never mind, Mabel, we'll pull out,' Benny would say. And I'd tell him, 'Benny, let me go back to work.' We had a fight over that but, I pawned my diamonds, sold my mink coat and we moved to a cheap hotel.

The waiter returned with the extra slice of cheese. Deftly, she inserted it in the sandwich, then sunk her teeth into it like a hungry animal. "Gee, I'm starved! These customers aren't the buying kind."

● ONCE SANDWICH AND COFFEE had been consumed, she resumed her story. "Today, we was down to our last dollar. I put on my hat and Benny says, 'Where are you going:' And I says, 'I'm gonna get a job.' When the Broadway agency guy sees me he says, 'You belong at Sammy's on the Bowery.' I didn't know Sammy. I'd never been to the Bowery, but I'm here this afternoon singing for Sammy and he says, 'Okay, Mabel, you start tonight. Five dollars and tips.' I call Benny and say, 'I gotta job.' And he says, 'Where?' And I says, 'Sammy's on the Bowery.' And he says, 'Oh, God!' "

At this point a little man in shabby clothes strolled over to our table. He was the one I had seen clapping so vigorously.

"You were swell, darling!" he slipped his arm in hers.

"Benny! You came all the way down here?"

"Sure. I work here!" His voice was low, but I could hear every word. "I wasn't going to let the girl I loved take this alone." He grinned. "I'm a bus-boy."

Bowling Along With the Carters

St. Louis Couple's Life Revolves Around Tenpin Game and They Are Just About Best in United States

By John Keasler

THE setting up of wooden pins in a precise geometrical pattern and subsequently endeavoring to knock them galley-west by rolling a ball at them is a pursuit a great many folks enjoy to the utmost. Bowling is gaining in popularity all over and, when it comes to bowling towns, St. Louis is among the bowlingest.

And just about the bowlingest man and wife team around here, or anywhere else, is Mr. and Mrs. Don Carter, the couple that just kegled off with the St. Louis match game championships, thereby becoming the first husband-wife team to win that honor.

Don, with a 211.7 average and with his usual unorthodox bowling form, and La Verne Carter, averaging 183.5 and with a fine form indeed, took the titles early this month, the latest in an alley-long list of bowling victories for both of them.

So we went out to talk to them about bowling. Here's a family whose life is so tied in with bowling that the occupation is not only sport—it is also hobby and livelihood.

It's even a way to stop thumb sucking among the Carter children. Little Catherine Lucille Carter, 5 years old, reformed thumb-muncher, quit the habit only after she was promised her own bowling ball as a reward.

"Now she carries her duckpin ball everywhere and lives up to her promise," said Mrs. Carter. Don hopes his baby, Little Don, will go for the same form of bribery if the subject ever comes up.

CARTER makes his living bowling and teaching bowling. The fact he doesn't know how to bowl doesn't bother him a bit. He knows he doesn't know how to bowl because experts have pointed it out.

Experts have pointed it out until they are blue, and sometimes red, in the wattles and chops—pointed out his form is all wrong, that he gets all twisted up and low to the floor and looks like a man with a recalcitrant elbow joint.

Delighted sportswriters have dubbed him "Scoop Shovel" and "Ole Kiss-the-floor" while, in the past, the experts were busily stating there was really no such animal.

"Flash in the pan," was what Carter was called once — but that was some time ago, before he went on to win the National Match Game championship in 1953 and 1954, becoming the second man in history to win that title two years in succession. In 1955 he finished third and now, all over the country, many authorities are saying he is the man to beat in the next tournament.

He was also voted bowler of the year in 1953 and 1954, was All-Star Elimination champion in 1952 and 1953; has won many other top events throughout the country.

All of which is right good for a Wellston lad who appears as if he's fixing to fall down kerflop on the foul line.

AS for Mrs. Carter, she won the 1951 all-events title of the Woman's International Bowling Congress, won many California championship awards, was a 1953 National All-Star finalist, and is a bowler known nationally for her enthusiasm and competitive drive. She's also recognized, by us anyhow, for her skill in getting floors carpeted with a bowling ball.

She won wall-to-wall carpeting for her entire home in a Chicago match not long ago.

"The men should be here with it anytime now," she said proudly, the other day. We hope it will muffle the sound of that duckpin ball.

Carter doesn't lag behind in the house furnishing department, either—in the same series of Chicago matches he managed to win a little gimcrack, a color television set valued at $1000.

One time, with a brand new automobile offered as prize for a perfect 300 game — roughly equivalent to a hole in one for a golfer or to a royal flush for less athletic sportsmen — he missed by one heart-breaking, stubborn pin. (In his career he has rolled an even dozen perfect games.)

One of Carter's most unusual bowling jobs will be today—he's bowling with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. Andre Kostelanetz is conducting, and in "Hudson River Suite" the sound of clattering tenpins is needed, we are solemnly assured, for the part where Rip V. Winkle wakes up. So Don, as sound effects man, will have a specially-made bowling alley and doubtless will knock the pins for a row of press agents.

ALTHOUGH Don and La Verne are bowling in blithe co-operation now, and their home at 4260 Stambough court, Bel-Ridge, profits thereby, things didn't used to be on such a teamwork basis. They met, appropriately enough, at a bowling alley, but they were matched against one another.

La Verne came here from California—she's a native St. Louisan but moved west as a youngster—to roll an exhibition against Carter and the competition turned out to be scorching.

The Mrs. Carter-to-be bowled a whopping 227.6 average in the five-game match, leaving Carter his choice of pulling out every trick in his basket or being whipped on his own home grounds by a blonde from California. He chose the former, managed to beat her with a 239 average. That was in 1952.

They were married in August 1953. (Catherine Lucille is La Verne's daughter by a previous marriage.) Champion Carter, with a champion for a wife, manages to be gallantly diplomatic about comparing their bowling scores.

"She outbowls me pretty often," he said.

"Ha!" observed Mrs. Carter. "Ha."

"Well," he said, "she would beat me, but she tries too hard when she's bowling against me."

In any case, they bowl together excellently — together they recorded the record mixed doubles score of 1376. (Don shot 693; La Verne 683.)

However, when both Don and La Verne are in serious match play, she finds herself in the peculiar position of not being able to watch her husband's game.

"I get so nervous rooting for him I go all to pieces in my own game," she said.

How does bowling affect the home life of two champion bowlers? Well, for one thing it does away with weekends together. Bowling is Carter's business, and business is brisk.

To start with, he's one of the instructors of the Budweiser Bowling Clinic, sponsored three days a week by Anheuser-Busch, Inc., at various local alleys—a clinic which is attracting full houses as bowling interest continues to climb here.

Combined with that are the league games he rolls nights with the Budweisers. On weekends, the team engages in out-of-town exhibitions in the Midwest and as far away as Texas and California.

"MONDAY is about the only day I rest," Don said. He averages about 50 games a week, but much more when important match game competition is close—as many as 16 games per day. He's a great believer in constant practice; says a bowler's legs can't stand up in championship play without it. An opponent once said about Carter:

"He's the guy you have to beat, probably for many more years, because he's always in top physical shape. He would rather practice than eat, he has no thumb trouble like most of us do, he apparently has no nerves and no temperament whatever and he loves to win. That's most important of all. You want to win, or you won't."

The numerous trophies Don has won fill an entire room at the home of his mother, Mrs. Gladys Carter, 6239 Lenox avenue, Wellston. She exhibits them with pride and is an enthusiastic keeper of Don's scrapbooks. She loves to bowl, herself (150 average).

DON as a boy wanted to be a professional baseball player, later played pro ball for a year. He was a top all-around athlete at Wellston High.

He rolled his first bowling ball when he was 13, but really didn't regard the game seriously until the late '40s, after a stint in the Navy. He worked at a couple of jobs around town, found during this period that his interest in bowling was growing.

His style, in the early days, provoked more mirth than anything else—until it became starkly apparent that young Carter, scoop shovel or not, did indeed manage to knock down an awful lot of tenpins, which after all is the basic idea.

His record grew more and more impressive. St. Louis almost lost him at one point. He moved to Detroit shortly after his marriage, to work as a bowling instructor. After he won national honors he came back to accept the Anheuser-Busch deal. He considers himself fortunate in that he is one of the relatively few bowlers in the country who, through his clinic sponsorship, a tie-in with a bowling supply firm and, lastly, tournament prize money, can make his living solely through his bowling activities.

The "big money" associated with top tournament victories is far from as impressive as most folks think, he said. The figures publicized range around $25,000 or $30,000.

Don laughed. "I guess they figure royalties and all sorts of commercial tie-ins. Maybe some folks get that much—I never get it or anything near that amount."

His actual top prize money was $2000, and that wasn't Carter's all clear. Of course, the championship prestige is what brought him the job of "advisory staff member" of a bowling supply firm.

The prestige, and resultant cash-in value, is just dandy, but Don amended that this way: "There's not a bowler in the country who makes a living solely through prize money—without a good sponsor behind him a bowler is lucky to break even, no matter how good he is."

CARTER, now 29, a six-footer who weighs 193 pounds but looks far lighter, thinks bowling interest is going to continue to boom and he credits television to a large degree. With topflight games being telecast these days, he said the advertising value of such telecasts is bound to send a lot of people out to try to knock down some of those pins themselves.

And it is common knowledge that few people ever quit bowling once they become addicted.

More and more women are becoming bowlers. In one of his scrapbooks is a cartoon depicting two 1890 dowagers with noses in air and wearing looks of disdain as a young woman nears them. One of the dowagers is saying, "Just ignore the uncouth hussy, m'deah—she bowls!"

"What a change since then," Don laughed. "These days bowling doesn't even give a man a night out—his wife goes with him, and half the time beats him."

He recently gave an exhibition at a country club which is having its bowling alley section done in wall-to-wall carpeting, chosen, we like to feel, by staid dowagers with a good hook.

AS for Mrs. Carter, she began bowling as a high school sophomore out in Tucson, Ariz., after her family moved from St. Louis. She went on to a list of awards which takes up two pages in a record book; has whipped many male stars of the country.

She can't complain about being a bowling widow on weekends. "I knew what I was getting into when I married a bowler," she said.

La Verne will bowl under the Budweiser colors in exhibitions; also will be entered by Anheuser-Busch in the national championship matches in Chicago in December.

Lots of local fingers will be crossed for Don—and for La Verne—when he will try for his third title, again, as he has been described, "loping up to the line like a marathon skater making a turn, and practically kissing the floor."

What's the ambition of the Carters? Discard the first two guesses. Correct. Someday they would like to have their own bowling alley; give instructions.

Then La Verne, the stylist, can take over in answering the first question every tyro bowler asks of a champion: "What am I doing wrong?"

All she would have to do is point to her husband. He bowls entirely wrong. Everybody could agree on that. If he didn't knock over such a disconcerting number of pins.

DON AND LAVERNE CARTER IN ACTION. HE WILL DEMONSTRATE HIS TECHNIQUE THIS AFTERNOON, OF ALL PLACES, AT THE KOSTELANETZ CONCERT. —By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

HE HAS A STIFF-ARMED, SCOOP SHOVEL BOWLING STYLE WHICH IS "ALL WRONG," BUT WINS HIM CHAMPIONSHIPS.

MRS. CARTER INSTRUCTS CATHERINE LUCILLE IN THE PROPER HANDLING OF A DUCKPIN BALL. THE BALL HAD BEEN GIVEN TO THE LITTLE GIRL BY HER MOTHER FOR STOPPING THUMBSUCKING.

CATHERINE LUCILLE, SURROUNDED BY THE REST OF THE CARTER FAMILY INCLUDING LITTLE DON JR., TAKES A LESSON IN KEEPING SCORE.

TV Preview

Wide World Views Carlsbad Caverns

AN estimated 30,000,000 persons will see New Mexico's famed Carlsbad Caverns this afternoon through the eyes of NBC's Wide Wide World television cameras. That's more than four times the number who have seen the caverns since they were discovered many years ago. The theme of today's Wide Wide World, on KSD-TV from 3 to 4:30, will be "Our Heritage." Among personalities to be pictured will be Grandma Moses, surrounded by her most famous paintings; and Gary Cooper and Dorothy McGuire, shown at work on a motion picture in California's San Fernando Valley. There will be visits to San Francisco Bay, the French Quarter in New Orleans, Vancouver, B.C., and the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor.

GRANDMA MOSES . . . TO BE VISITED ON TODAY'S WIDE WIDE WORLD.

KWK-TV at 9 Thursday night will telecast the appearance of former President Harry Truman before the annual convention of the National Youth Council at the Statler Hotel in St. Louis.

Guest stars for Variety Hour on KSD-TV at 7 tonight will include Eddie Fisher, Bob Hope, Lana Turner, Anna Maria Alberghetti and Gordon MacRae. Also on hand, for a national magazine's awards party, will be Claudette Colbert, Rock Hudson, Debbie Reynolds, John Wayne and others, with Louella Parsons and Kirk Douglas presenting the awards.

Eddie Cantor will be the special guest on the Milton Berle Show on KSD-TV at 7 Tuesday night. Perry Como's guests at 7 Saturday night on KSD-TV will be Tom Ewell and Arnold Stang. Peter Lorre will be a guest on the Red Skelton Show on KWK-TV at 8:30 Tuesday night.

'Christopher Bean' on KWK-TV

Thelma Ritter and Gene Lockhart will be starred in a comedy-drama based on Sidney Howard's stage play, "The Late Christopher Bean," on KWK-TV's Television Hour at 9 Wednesday night. The story is about a shy housemaid whose love for a young, struggling painter comes to a dramatic climax years after his death.

THELMA RITTER . . . STAR OF "CHRISTOPHER BEAN" ON KWK-TV WEDNESDAY.

Richard Boone, star of the Medic series, will play the role of Heathcliffe in Matinee Theater's "Wuthering Heights" on KSD-TV at 2 Wednesday afternoon.

Picks the Few From Among the Many

St. Louisan Bob Martin Heads CBS-TV Casting Department

By Virginia Irwin
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.

THERE are some 8000 TV actors registered with the actors' union in New York and the gimmicks some of them think up to get the attention of TV casting directors are pretty novel.

Bob Martin, native St. Louisan who heads the casting department at CBS, recently received a small box in his day's mail. Inside the box was a gaily painted little turtle with the name and phone number of an aspiring TV actress printed on its back. Another actress sent a homing pigeon in a crate. The idea was to have the bird carry back to the actress Bob's agreement to an audition.

"Gimmicks are okay," says Bob who knows another ambitious young lady who makes the rounds of the casting offices accompanied by a pet rooster. "But the only thing that really works is ability."

An able actor himself, Bob spent 18 months before the television cameras playing leads on such shows as Lux Theater, Studio One, Kraft, Danger and The Web before going into the executive end of TV.

BORN on DeTonty street in St. Louis, Bob began life as Robert Nachtman but changed his name to Martin when he started his professional career. The son of Mrs. Effie Nachtman, who now lives on a farm at Wentzville, Mo., and the late F. X. Nachtman, a mining engineer, Bob attended Immaculate Conception school in Maplewood, Holy Redeemer in Webster Groves, Christian Brothers, and graduated from Webster High where he was active in school dramatics. To earn money for college, he carhopped hamburgers and malted milks during his spare time at the Parkmoor at Clayton and Big Bend and in 1934 entered the drama school of the University of North Carolina.

BOB MARTIN . . . SUPPLY OF ACTORS FAR EXCEEDS DEMAND.

Graduated in 1938, he had already picked up solid acting experience in the summers with various groups around the country, including the Globe Shakespeare repertory theater in San Diego. During his first season in New York, he landed roles in several Broadway shows, including he last 12 weeks of the Broadway run of "You Can't Take It With You."

HE then returned to the University of North Carolina to work toward a master's degree in drama on a Rockefeller fellowship. Pearl Harbor interrupted and he spent four years in the Cruiser St. Louis. Discharged in 1945, he went back to the University of North Carolina to finish his M.A. work. The next year he started his own summer stock company at Flat Rock, N.C., then spent four years directing community theaters in the South. In 1950 he was a stock actor with the Muny Opera in St. Louis.

Married in 1945 to the former Janice Martindale of Webster Groves, Bob was the father of three children by the time he made up his mind in 1951 that it was either then or never to make the break for New York and television. With $1800 borrowed from friends he bought a car, loaded up the family and headed for New York without even a job in sight. But he had "amazing luck." He did well on various big-time television shows for 18 months and in September was offered the job of casting supervisor at CBS. Last May he stepped up to head of the department.

BOB signs his official mail as Robert Dale Martin but prefers being called just Bob. As casting director of CBS, he sees some 25 actors and actresses a day; figures his whole department sees some 80 more.

"There's a great disparity between supply and demand in TV," he says somewhat wearily. "The supply so far exceeds the demand that it makes for rough going for a youngster trying to break into the business."

For would-be television actors and actresses, he has some sound advice:

"First," he says, "the best insurance for surviving in New York is past experience at home on local radio and television. Be honest with yourself about your real aptitude. You may want to be an actor more than anything in the world but it might be you'd make a better set designer. Finally, when you're ready to make the break for New York make up your mind that you probably won't make a living out of acting for at least two years and maybe not even then. Know how to type or do something that will buy your cakes and coffee during the long struggle."

Occasionally in TV, as in the movies and on the stage, an unknown seems to click overnight. "It happens," says Bob, "but not often. The struggle is usually a long, hard one. It's an exception to the rule when an actor out of the mass turns in a brilliant performance and shoots to the top. Stars are built in desperation, not by design."

Now 39 and the father of four children, Cynthia, 9; Jill, 8; Timmy, 5; and Nick, 2 his family is his only hobby. A casting director's life leaves little time for outside interests. Bob has to spend endless evenings scouting Broadway plays and night clubs for talent.

"That may sound like getting paid for having fun" he says. "But after just so much of this, it's work like any other business."

Keenan Wynn Star of KSD Play Today

KEENAN WYNN will star in "Clown," a drama of circus life, on Your Radio Theater on KSD at 4:05 this afternoon. The play is about a man who, while he provokes laughter for millions, is in conflict with himself and vanishes from the circus in an effort to find a balance between his real life and his professional life.

Singer Yma Sumac will be a guest on Monitor on KSD at 1:30 this afternoon. Other guests during the afternoon and evening will include Jeannie Carson, Nat King Cole, pianist Rosa Linda, actor Pierre Aumont, and singer Helen Forrest. Features on Monitor will include a report on tricks used by aliens to enter the United States, at 2:30 this afternoon; a description of Chicago's celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of Maxwell Street, at 3:30; and the Gettysburg postmaster's report on how mail is affected there by the President's purchase of a Gettysburg home, at 6:30.

Jack Benny will be a guest on the Edgar Bergen Show on KMOX at 6:05 this evening.

STARS ON THE What's New in Music program on KMOX at 1 this afternoon will include opera and concert singer Gladys Swarthout, concert pianist Stan Freeman, and singers Johnny Desmond and Lu Ann Simms.

Family Theater on KWK at 9:30 tonight will star Jimmy Durante and Mae Clarke in "The Leading Lady," about a self-centered actress who calls in a detective to guard a diamond tiara, and loses her heart to him.

Television Letter Box

"THE DEVIL'S DISCIPLE" on KSD-TV was pleasant Sunday afternoon fun for our whole family. We found the commercials not too intrusive nor distracting in enjoying this tongue-in-cheek classic of the Irish wit, George Bernard Shaw. We have come to expect the best in entertainment from Maurice Evans, and he certainly did not disappoint us on this memorable occasion. While praising this NBC-TV production, I want to add my thanks to CBS and KWK-TV for the Saturday night triumph, "The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial." With these two fine productions, the weekend was indeed complete. J.K.W.

Every time KSD-TV has something special to put on, it's always in the place of Eddie Fisher. It seems to me another time could be purchased for these special programs once in a while.

How anyone could possibly criticize those Matinee Theater plays, as someone did in Sunday's Letters column, is beyond me. Even John Crosby has only good to say about Matinee, and when he quits knocking long enough to praise something, it must be good.

As Crosby Sees It

TV Breaking Away From Set Formulas

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.

EARLIER this season Robert Saudek, director of the Ford Foundation "Omnibus," stated the cautious hope that television might this year break through the barriers which had confined broadcasting some 20 years. What he meant was that the set formula—a program had to be comedy, drama, quiz, or audience participation and that was about it—is beginning to crumble.

It looks as if he's right. The boldly experimental type of programming is murdering the timorously conventional type. This does not mean that networks and ad agencies are suddenly staffed with courageous intellectual adventurers. They are not. It's just that the boldly experimental has paid off.

It's hard to say when this started. Ed Sullivan should be given some credit for giving it a boost. Sullivan didn't simply repeat next week what was successful last week. One week you got straight variety, the next a little ballet, the next maybe a bit of opera, the next a sort of living biography and then possibly a salute to a film. Sullivan's continuing success showed that constant change not only did not scare the people away, it kept them there.

THEN PAT WEAVER, president of NBC, began scheduling the irregular show—a 90 minute opus every five weeks, let us say. In the old days, this would have been heresy. Now irregularity — irregularity of length, of personalities, of type of show—is almost the order of the day.

"Omnibus" made its own valuable contribution toward unfettering television by presenting bits that ranged in length from five minutes to the whole 90 minutes. And what they presented defied easy classification. One day they'd have Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy reading children's classics, the next, Leonard Bernstein explaining how Beethoven's Fifth Symphony got written (and more recently the evolution of jazz), and the next, 90 minutes of the Renaissance.

Television, in short, has a remarkable range and it has been used remarkably. In part, this has been an accidental discovery. The Kefauver hearings were an accident, not planned on by anyone, the impact surprising everyone.

BUT LATELY, the qualities of TV discovered accidentally have been used deliberately. NBC's "Wide Wide World" is a good example. On the latest "Wide Wide World" the entertainment — if that's quite the word for it — varied from a christening in Bennington, Vt., to a gymkhana out west someplace to kids' hockey in Toronto.

It wasn't all good but it was all fairly unusual. Unusualness used to scare a sponsor out of his wits. "We want something with a track record," used to be the cry. Now, even controversy—which used to be a dirty word and to a large extent still is—has been discovered to be not nearly so lethal as everyone thought. Alcoa, which sponsored the Ed Murrow show about Senator McCarthy, conceivably the most controversial telecast of all time, reports that sales didn't drop or fluctuate one way or another a single bit after the show, and that public opinion about Alcoa continuously improved while Murrow was putting on one controversial show after another.

Igor Gorin To Be Guest Of Voorhees

BARITONE IGOR GORIN will be the guest soloist with the Donald Voorhees orchestra on KSD at 8 tomorrow night. He will sing two arias, "Sommi, Dei" from Handel's "Radamisto" and "Zaza, Little Gypsy Girl," from Leoncavallo's "Zaza."

Igor Gorin.

Two Metropolitan Opera singers, soprano Nadine Conner and tenor Eugene Conley, will be guests on the Howard Barlow program on KTVI and KXOK at 7:30 tomorrow night. Together they will sing "O Soave Fanciulla" from Puccini's "La Boheme" and "Give Me One Hour" from Friml's "White Eagle."

French pianist Robert Casadesus will be a guest soloist on Pierre Monteux's New York Philharmonic-Symphony program on KMOX at 10:30 tonight. The program will feature Vincent D'Indy's "Symphony on a French Mountain Air." Casadesus also will play Mozart's Concerto for Piano in C Minor.

"THE ITALIAN RIFLEMEN'S March" and "Our United States March" will be heard on the Paul Lavalle Band of America program on KSD at 8:30 tomorrow night. Other selections will be the Andante and Finale from Tschaikovsky's "1812 Overture."

In the Boston Symphony Orchestra program on KSD at 7:15 tomorrow night, Charles Much will direct the orchestra in Robert Schumann's "Symphony No. 2 in C Major." This work is in four movements.

From 1 to 4 Saturday afternoon KXOK will broadcast the first in the new season's programs of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Jacob Avshalomoff's "Sinfonietta" will be featured on the Oklahoma City Symphony Orchestra program on KWK at 8:30 tonight.

Sports Programs This Week

THE 15-ROUND world championship bout between welterweight champion Carmen Basilio and Tony DeMarco, from whom he won the title, will be telecast by KTVI at 9 Wednesday night. At 9 Friday night, KSD-TV will telecast the bout between welterweights Isaac Logart and Virgil Akins of St. Louis. The recent bout between lightweights Bobby Courchesne and Miguel Barrios will be shown on film on KTVI at 9 tomorrow night.

The football game between Duke and North Carolina will be telecast by KSD-TV Saturday, with a 12:45 p.m. starting time. This afternoon's professional game between the Bears and Cardinals, both Chicago teams, will be carried by KTVI, starting at 1 o'clock.

'The Infancy of Christ'

By Thomas B. Sherman

ASIDE from traditional hymns and carols, the programs performed by the St. Louis Bach Society in the past have been devoted entirely to the works of Bach. The Christmas Concert to be given on the afternoon of Dec. 11 will be an exception. A 12-part chorus by Gabrielli and a generous number of excerpts from "The Infancy of Christ," by Hector Berlioz, will be included in the program. Bach will be represented by the Christmas Cantata No. 63 and a chorus and chorale from Cantata No. 65; and the seasonal nature of the concert will be further celebrated by the singing of Christmas songs, sacred and secular, as in recent years.

There is no reason, of course, why the works of other important composers should not figure in these concerts. One hopes that the society's main energies will always be concentrated on the B Minor Mass and the two Passions, for the good reason—if there were none other—that this music cannot be heard elsewhere in St. Louis. As there is little danger of any such deviation, the incorporation of works by Handel, Mozart and others could add a desirable variety to the general artistic program of the Society.

IN ANY CASE, the performance of important parts of "L'Enfance du Christ" is peculiarly appropriate for a Christmas concert. The subject matter—the passage of the Holy Family into Egypt—is always relevant to the Christmas story, and the music is pervaded with an extraordinary tenderness, tranquility and spiritual exaltation.

Many persons regard it as the composer's greatest work. Berlioz himself did not quite agree. Taking note of the spontaneous approval heaped upon it after its first performance, Berlioz said: "Now I am writing like everybody else."

IF THERE WAS a rueful and ironic tinge to this remark it could have been caused by the fact that his more daring scores, which were decidedly unlike "everybody else" had not brought him the success he deserved. True enough there were practical obstacles that stood in the way of an achievement of his ideals. He thought in terms of a mammoth orchestra and chorus, although not many of his works required more than a conventional assemblage. His "Requiem" demands a string choir of more than 100, four brass bands and an enormous chorus. And even when dealing with resources of normal size his way of orchestration calls for brilliant and massive effects which in many minds are regarded as his distinguishing attribute.

Devotees of Berlioz, however, are tireless in pointing out that his true greatness lies in the power and beauty and viability of his ideas which always find an appropriate means of expression whether massive or otherwise. Others, not quite so devoted, believe that his best and truest nature comes out in such writings as the "King of Thule" aria from "The Damnation of Faust" the Love Scene from "Romeo and Juliet" the Queen Mab scherzo, the atmospheric third movement of the "Fantastique" symphony and practically all of "L'Enfance du Christ." And in these examples the apparatus is relatively modest.

THE SIMPLICITY APPARENT in "L'Enfance du Christ" is not of course, the reason for its poignancy. Music can be simply vulgar as well as simply beautiful. Simplicity is an indicated means, but what transpires is a recaptured innocence of childhood together with a naïve but ethereal mysticism which has been described as a "kind of unforeseen 'nostalgia for the divine.'"

The Bach Choir and the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will be associated in this concert, and William B. Heyne will direct. The excerpts to be performed are the last two scenes of Part I and all of Part II. The latter includes the transcendently beautiful tenor aria "The Repose of the Holy Family," which will be sung by the Hungarian tenor, Leslie Chabay, now associated with the Department of Music at Washington University. The Berlioz melodic style, notable for its avoidance of the square-cut sentence, is apparent in this passage and its orchestral introduction. Other soloists who will take part in this and the remainder of the program are Frances Bible, mezzo-soprano and Paul Ukena, basso.

The Players to Do 'Dial M for Murder'

The Players, amateur group, will present "Dial M for Murder," suspense drama by Frederick Knott, Tuesday and Wednesday for members and guests at the Artists Guild, 812 Union boulevard. There will be another performance Friday night for members and guests of the Artists Guild. The cast includes G. Walden Porter Jr., Arthur Greditzer, Ann Pidgeon, John Vierling, William Krummel and John Knox Nimock.

'Can-Can' Goes Into Second Week at American

RAY KIRCHNER AS THE SNAKE AND RONNIE CUNNINGHAM AS EVE IN THE "GARDEN OF EDEN" BALLET IN COLE PORTER'S CAN-CAN, NOW AT THE AMERICAN.

COLE PORTER'S musical comedy hit, "Can-Can," goes into its second and final week at the American Theater at 7 o'clock tonight. It will end its run Saturday night. There will be a matinee at 2:30 o'clock Saturday.

The cast is headed by Rita Dimitri, John Tyers, George S. Irving, Ronnie Cunningham and Ferdinand Hilt. The book, by Abe Burrows, tells how a crusading Parisian judge in 1893 visits the Montmarte night club of La Mome Pastiche to obtain evidence that the notorious can-can is being danced there by laundresses and their consorts, and how he falls in love with the saucy proprietress. Burrows also directed the show. The dances, including the explosive can-can, a satiric Garden of Eden spectacle, and a burlesque Apache dance, were staged by Michael Kidd. Porter's songs include "I Love Paris," and "Allez-Vous-En."

Efforts to obtain "Anniversary Waltz," and "Anastasia" for the two weeks following "Can-Can" have failed. "Anniversary Waltz" is closing in Chicago, and "Anastasia" will move into Chicago around Dec. 5. Manager Paul Beisman hopes to book it when it leaves Chicago. Appearances are the theater will be dark until William Inge's comedy, "Bus Stop," opens Monday night, Dec. 26, for a week.

"Bus Stop," Inge's third hit in five years, is now in its thirty-eighth week on Broadway. The national company, to be seen at the American, will include Peggy Ann Garner, Albert Salmi, (who was with the Broadway company) Winifred Ainslee and Glenn Anders.

Dance Theater-Berlin To Be Here Dec. 13

Dance Theater-Berlin, a company of 14 ballet artists brought together by choreographer Tatjana Gsovsky and on its first American tour, will appear at Kiel Auditorium Opera House at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 13, as the second item in The Civic Music League's season.

The group, which stresses the theater in ballet, will offer Mme. Gsovsky's choreography of "Hamlet," set to an original score by Boris Blacher. Other numbers will be: "Souvenirs," based on Schnitzler's comedy, "Reigen," "Orphee" and "Labrynth," drawn from Greek legend, and "Ballade," a romantic interlude set to the music of Mendelssohn.

Loewenguth Quartet Here Tomorrow

The Loewenguth String Quartet of Paris will open the Ethical Society's twenty-sixth series of chamber music concerts at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in Sheldon Auditorium, 3648 Washington boulevard.

The program will consist of these quartets: D Major, K.499 by Mozart; F Major, Op. 96 by Dvorak; and A Minor, Op. 132 by Beethoven. The quartet originated with students at the Paris Conservatory in 1929. It is composed of Alfred Loewenguth, first violin, Maurice Fuerl, violin, Roger Roche, viola, and Pierre Basseux, cello.

JANE WYMAN AND CHARLTON HESTON ARE STARRED IN "LUCY GALLANT," ADVENTURE ROMANCE LAID IN A TEXAS OIL TOWN, WHICH IS BOOKED NEXT AT THE ST. LOUIS. IT IS IN VISTAVISION.

At the Movies

By Myles Standish

GOOD MORNING, MISS DOVE—A completely touching and honestly sentimental film about a grim and meticulous grade school geography teacher, who finds out when she is about to have a serious operation that the whole town loves her for her integrity. With a beautifully restrained and penetrating performance by Jennifer Jones. ST. LOUIS.

THE TENDER TRAP—The hit stage comedy about a Manhattan bachelor who is beseiged by designing women and just loving it has been given a bright CinemaScope production, and is good for a lot of laughs. With Frank Sinatra, Debbie Reynolds, David Wayne, Celeste Holm. LOEW'S STATE.

THIS ISLAND EARTH—An egg-head from the planet Metaluna kidnaps two American scientists in his flying saucer and takes them back to Metaluna to try and help out in a war with another planet. Its scientific execution is bizarre and imaginative, although as drama it doesn't soar into space. With Faith Domergue, Rex Reason, Jeff Morrow. Also FOXFIRE, boring account of the quarrelsome marriage of a mining engineer and an heiress. With Jane Russell, Jeff Chandler. FOX.

FRISKY—Sequel to the Italian comedy, "Bread, Love and Dreams," with the same cast, headed by Gina Lollobrigida and Vittorio De Sica. It has the same charm and humorous warmth, but it suffers from the usual sequel fate; it is too much like its predecessor and spins its plot wheels. SHADY OAK.

THE AFRICAN LION—Alfred and Elma Milotte, camera team for Walt Disney, have done a superb job in giving us the savage animal life of the vast Central African plateau. It took 30 months of patience and daring to get these fascinating and unusual shots. ORPHEUM.

I AM A CAMERA—Seventh week for John van Druten's graceful and humorous slice of life about Bohemian Berlin in 1930. Julie Harris gives an incandescent portrayal of a well-bred English trollop. RICHMOND.

DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE—Return of the hilarious English comedy about a London medical school. With Dirk Bogarde and Kenneth More. Also another recent British job, TO PARIS WITH LOVE, which is not up to Alec Guinness's comedy standards. PAGEANT.

CINERAMA HOLIDAY—Sights and sounds of Paris, Switzerland and American points in the revolutionary depth process. AMBASSADOR.

Art and Artists

Contributions Of Controversy

By H. S. Derrickson

FROM time to time, organizers of art shows exhibit in themselves symptoms of an occupational illness akin to cold feet or stage fright. Then they are prone to suggest or request exclusion of adverse comment from reviews and from reports of crowd reaction. These efforts, knowingly or not, attack a basic reason for reviews of all kinds—the public's right to be warned.

Aside from the transcendent truth that such attempts, if successful, would contravene the free-press principle, they seem misguided on other grounds. Normally they are prefaced by a tortured analogy between the exhibition organizer's occupation or hobby of esthetician and the calling of the physician or priest.

In the interest of art itself, this argument runs, layman and Philistine had better be kept in the dark when art experts differ. For all such museum personnel, jurors, artists, art organization officers and interested by-standers, recommended reading is an authoritative $15 Princeton University Press book—"American Painting From the Armory Show to the Depression," by Milton W. Brown, professor of history and art at Brooklyn College.

In 154 plates and 244 large pages, Prof. Brown covers with cogency and wit even more than the area of thought and history suggested by his title. A scholar of notable objectivity and catholic sympathy, he insists on claims and limitations of the developing school of American realism that the Armory show cut short and also of the post-depression currents of social realism, regionalism and today's increasingly personal art.

HIS CENTRAL CONCERN is with the origins, nature and development of modernism in America from 1913 to 1929. Unlike some of the New Criticism's principles that have been applied to poetry, the theses of this book are always nailed to fact.

Thus it deals not only with the esthetician's esoteric topic—evolution of struggling styles—but with the dynamic social conditions that determined artistic change. In criticism of styles ranging from Alexander Brook's to John Marin's, Prof. Brown is trenchant and terse. Connoisseurship here and his knowing choice of reproductions show he has attained the New Critics' virtue of keeping the eye on the object.

But his presentation of the whole picture of interplay of artist, social thinker, collector, reviewer, museum, industry and government entitle him to additional rank as historical critic. What distinguishes him further is that his success has been gained in a field so new that until now it has been left mostly to art writers whose subjectivity parallels attitudes of the New Critics in literature.

HIS BOOK has been called "a pioneer work" by Lloyd Goodrich, associate director of the Whitney Museum of American Art, which itself publishes most of the first-rank books and pamphlets in this field. In comment on Brown's contribution, Goodrich continues:

"It uncovers much valuable original material which will be the sources for all future histories of the period."

The reason this sound study should be taken seriously by would-be stiflers of art controversy is its insistence on viewing the total phenomenon of art as communication not only to the few but to the increasingly large public that now supports art.

This sector of the population, Brown shows, was vastly widened as a result of clamor attending the Armory show, which brought America into the modern movement for the first time. He writes:

"Critical controversy which arose out of the Armory show served not so much to clarify esthetic thought, since it was not conducted on a very logical or informed plane, as to extend the area of conflict.

"THE CONTROVERSY over modern art became a free-for-all, and every added attack helped boom not only modern art, but art in general. Even some of its greatest detractors realized the Armory show had performed an immeasurable service in publicizing art."

The good done by this publicity, in Brown's opinion, cannot be over-estimated. "It was the opening wedge for all later exploitation of modern art," he says. Although an individual starving artist may go on painting, he points out, "an entire art movement cannot advance on an empty stomach."

In an intimate account of influences between individuals, Brown shows that American artists were instrumental in forming such modern collections as those of Albert C. Barnes and Lillie P. Bliss. It was artists—less fearful of controversy than collectors or museums—who brought the news of modern art to America and organized the Armory show.

Changing circumstances, of course, modify conclusions that may be fairly drawn from any analogy. But it seems reasonable to suppose a closer parallel between American art in 1913 and in 1955 than between art today and either religion or medicine.

Jascha Heifetz To Play Brahms's Violin Concerto

JASCHA HEIFETZ, world-famous violinist, will be soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in concerts at 8:40 p.m. Saturday and 3 p.m. next Sunday in Kiel Auditorium Opera House. Vladimir Golschmann will conduct.

Soloist and orchestra will play the great Brahms Concerto in D Major. The orchestra will play two works for their first performances here—George Antheil's "The Capital of the World" suite and Max Reger's "Variations on a Theme by Mozart."

Heifetz, who is planning to take a long sabbatical after this season, was born in Vilna, Russia, and made his debut at the age of 7. His family fled the country during the revolution in 1917, and Heifetz made a sensational American debut that same year at Carnegie Hall.

The Antheil suite is drawn from music written for a Spanish ballet about bullfighting, based on a libretto by Ernest Hemingway. The composer was born 55 years ago in Trenton, N.J., toured extensively as a concert pianist, and has done a lot of composing for the movies in recent years. Reger composed his Mozart variations in 1914, two years before his death, and conducted the first performance at the Berlin Opera House in 1915. He was regarded as something of a revolutionary because of his disregard of conventional harmonic limitations. The theme was taken from the Piano Sonata in A Major, K.331.

Kostelanetz to Conduct St. Louis Symphony Today

Andre Kostelanetz, making his first St. Louis appearance since 1951, will be guest conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at a special concert in the Opera House at 3 p.m. today.

He will offer the first St. Louis performance of Ferde Grofe's "Hudson River Suite." In the "Rip Van Winkle" section, there will be sound effects of gnomes playing at ninepins made by former national bowling champion Don Carter of St. Louis on a special alley in front of the orchestra. A repercussion instrument will make the sound of Rip's barking. In the "New York" section, there will be the blast of a police whistle. Other sections of the suite are "The River," "Henry Hudson," and "Albany Night Boat."

Hidemairo Konoy's "Etenraku," an orchestration of Japanese Imperial Court music, will be performed for the first time in the United States. "Cambodian Suite," by Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia, will be played for the first time here. Also on the program will be Kabalevsky's overture to "Colas Breugnon," Offenbach's "Gaite Parisienne" suite, three Gershwin songs, and Kern's "Showboat Scenario."

'My Three Angels'

The Southtown Players will present the comedy, "My Three Angels," which was a Broadway success, at the Dakota Theater, 4557 Virginia avenue, at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 2:30 and 8:30 p.m. next Sunday. The cast includes LeRoy Crouther, Marvin Mueller, Robert Ellis, Evelyn Pfeiffer, Maury Bozarth, Patricia Bauer, Marilyn Boggs, Bud Schmaltz and Frank Ligon. Carl Traynor is directing.

'The Last Resorts'

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—Cleveland Amory, who recently made headlines as a result of his controversy with the Duchess of Windsor over "ghosting" her memoirs, has sold stage rights of his best-seller, "The Last Resorts," to Frederick Brisson, Robert E. Griffith and Harold S. Prince.

Broadway Complaint—Business Too Good

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—Broadway producers, actors and directors are going around with long faces these days—because business is so good. The theater availability situation was tight when the season opened, but veterans predicted it would relax when some "turkeys" opened and closed in short order.

Instead a wide selection of hits have opened, including "No Time for Sergeants," "The Diary of Anne Frank," Tiger at the Gates" and a "A View From the Bridge."

Even Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine due to open on Jan. 4 in "The Great Sebastians," will have to use the ANTA Playhouse temporarily.

A new Rodgers and Hammerstein musical will open next week, with Helen Traubel and William Johnson starred. The show, "Pipe Dream," is a put-to-music version of John Steinbeck novel, "Sweet Thursday."

Gallery Notes

A CHRISTMAS SALE and Exhibition, "Collector's Choice," will open to the public next Saturday at City Art Museum and will run through Dec. 18. Included are recent works of art by exhibitors who have won prizes in the museum's last 10 annual Missouri shows and other pieces of all kinds chosen in New York by Charles Nagel, director of the museum, and his assistant, William N. Eisendrath Jr.

Purpose of the sale, Nagel said, is to demonstrate the fact that "museum worthy" objects are obtainable in many price ranges. The 400-odd pieces offered for sale by the museum are priced from $5 to $1000.

Roscoe Misselhorn, Sparta (Ill.) artist, will open a 10-day one-man show today at 3 p.m. at the Artists' Guild, 812 Union boulevard. Very much a member of the St. Louis art community, Misselhorn belongs to the Friday Nighters and the Society of Independent Artists in addition to the guild. He studied at Washington University here under Fred Green Carpenter and Delos C. Nicholson.

An exhibition of serigraphs, or silk-screen prints, from the Western Serigraph Institute of North Hollywood, Calif., will open Thursday in the south wing of Brookings Hall on the Washington University campus. It wil close Dec. 22.

What Price Materialism?

Wife Works, Couple Is Growing Apart

By Martha Carr

Dear Martha:

MY husband and I are both employed. In fact, I have a better job than he has and I earn more money. He has wanted me to quit ever since we married but we couldn't have much on his salary and we both like a nice home and good clothes and a good car. But even though our home is very pretty he seldom is there. Lately, he has started going out in the evening, just saying he'll be "back later" and then he wanders in after midnight. I love him, Martha, and I don't want to break up our marriage but we are growing further and further apart. What is your advice?

ELIZABETH.

I think the answer is fairly obvious. He wants you at home, not out working, and he'd like to have the privilege of supporting you instead of being made to feel inept and inferior because of your higher salary. Think over seriously how you might be able to get along on his salary. See where you can cut down on living expenses, then ask him for his help in planning a new budget. It's better to give up a few luxuries than to lose your husband.

Dear Martha:

● WHY DO women bosses have to be so mean? I'll never work for one again. I was assigned to a certain department in our company with a woman superior. I never could get along with her. I kept asking her to give me a different kind of work but she always found some excuse. Finally, I just got disgusted and asked to be transferred. Now the girl who took my place in the old department is doing the very work that I asked the supervisor to let me do. I think she just didn't like me. WILMA.

Apparently, the feeling is mutual. Isn't it possible that she had some good reason for refusing your request and letting the new girl do that work? Maybe she thought you weren't qualified for it. But, be that as it may, don't make the mistake of judging all women bosses by this one. Maybe she was unfair—but that doesn't mean all of them are. Now, try to forget your grievance against her and make sure you do a good job in your new assignment.

Dear Martha:

● MY HUSBAND AND I are past 60 years old. We have four married children who have three or four children of their own, but every Sunday some of our children come to our home for dinner. We do love our children and would enjoy having them once in awhile but we feel we have reared our family and should have some rest. We also think they should have dinner in their own homes but one daughter says she hates to cook for her family on Sunday. We don't want to hurt them by telling them to stay away and often have thought of selling our home and moving to some other state. Other parents have told me they have moved to an apartment to keep from being baby sitters and cooking for their families every week. I have heard that my daughter said her parents enjoy cooking for them and it's some place to spend the day without having to cook.

TIRED PARENTS.

It seems pretty drastic to me to have to sell your home just to keep from being imposed on, although I realize that many parents find it easier to do that than to assert their independence and say no occasionally. Why not just tell the family that you're sorry but you'll be going out on Sunday and can't have guests? Then make a point of going out for dinner for several weeks—I have an idea you could use that rest anyway—and let the children fend for themselves. Naturally, you want them to visit you, but I see no sense in permitting yourselves to be slaves to them, just because they want to get out of the kitchen one day a week.

PUZZLED.

Dear Martha:

● AT THIS POINT I am quite puzzled. I have been going steady for two years with a boy who has been considerate in every way. Last week we had a date and parted on the best of terms. Since then I haven't heard from him although I have called him three times. Each time he wasn't home. Must I try to reach him or wait until he calls me?

I can't imagine why he would suddenly stop calling unless you inadvertently hurt or offended him. If you know that he received your telephone messages, don't call again. The next move is up to him. If you think he might be waiting to hear from you, you could write him a brief casual note asking if you have hurt him in any way and offering your apology. But beyond that, you will just have to wait the turn of events and hope you will have an opportunity to talk it over with him some day. If he doesn't want to go steady, he should be gentleman enough to say so and not just walk out of your life.

Dear Martha:

● IS IT CUSTOMARY for a man to give his secretary a Christmas present? If so, what would be proper for my husband to give to his secretary? PEGGY.

Yes, an employer customarily remembers his secretary at Christmas, especially if she has been associated with him for some time. It should be an impersonal gift, of course, and there is no reason why you and he both could not sign your names to the card if you know the employe. You could select monogrammed handkerchiefs, a record album or book (if you know her tastes) or an attractive but not overly elaborate bottle of perfume.

Dear Martha:

● I AM 15 YEARS OLD and very much in love. I met this fellow about a year ago and fell in love with him at first sight. Since then we have gone together and broken up constantly. Each time we break up he talks about me and says that he can come back to me at any time. Could you please tell me how I can keep him from taking me for granted, or do you think I'm foolish to see him at all?

TROUBLED.

The best way to keep him from taking you for granted is to stop running back every time he snaps his fingers. No wonder some boys are conceited boors. They start a fight, leave a girl in the lurch, and know she'll come trotting back whenever they say so. Why don't you turn the tables and say no? He might come crawling back himself for a change.

Martha Carr is glad to answer your questions. If you wish a personal reply, please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. She cannot answer problems of a medical or legal nature.

Prints Headed for New Peak of Popularity

Winter Resort Collections Soon to Be Featured Here Give More Attention to Them Than in Many Seasons

LEGER'S STAINED GLASS WINDOW DESIGN IS USED BY JACK HORWITZ IN INTERPRETING ONE OF THE MODERN MASTER PRINTS INTRODUCED BY FULLER FABRICS.

CLAIRE McCARDELL'S GINGHAM EVENING DRESS IS PLAIDED IN RED, WHITE AND BLACK AND SASHED WITH RED WOOL JERSEY. SKIRT PLEATS CLUSTER AT BACK.

SILK BROADCLOTH DRESS FROM HERBERT SONDHEIM'S RESORT COLLECTION IS PRINTED WITH CABBAGE ROSES, HAS DRAPED SHOULDERS AND BACK FULLNESS.

DOTTED IN WHITE ON PALE BLUE THIS SILK SATIN SHIRTWAIST DRESS BY BRANELL HAS THE WIDE-PLEATED SKIRT THAT CHANGES THE SILHOUETTE.

A BATHING SUIT AND A MANDARIN DRESS IN BRIGHTLY COLORED BOUSSAC COTTON ARE TYPICAL OF THE CO-ORDINATED THEMES AND NOVEL FABRIC DESIGNS.

By Sylvia Stiles

THERE will be something printed in every woman's wardrobe before the new year is well on its way, if the New York designers have anything to say about it. Winter resort collections introduced recently in the nation's fashion capital and soon to be featured in the St. Louis stores give more attention to prints that has been apparent for many seasons.

Added to this general enthusiasm for the fabrics with designs is the launching of a modern art collection with famous painters interpreting their favorite themes in a series of fabric motifs. Paintings by world-renowned Pablo Picasso, Fernand Leger, Joan Miro, Marc Chagall and Raoul Dufy and fashions by leading American designers have been merged in an alliance by Fuller Fabrics. This is believed to be the first time that a group of painters have directed their combined talents toward the fashion fabrics field.

While the modern art prints are the most spectacular of the many used for the new apparel, they have plenty of competition from polka dots, floral patterns, and whimsical themes. Cottons patterned after Japanese gift paper are numerous. The polka dots are seen extensively for shirtwaist dresses, for blouses and for coat linings. Silks that are splashed with cabbage roses are liked for late-day and evening dresses. Many of the full-skirted cocktail and short dinner dresses are combined with coats of corduroy or velveteen, or with hooded capes made of silk taffeta or satin. Most elaborate of the printed styles are slim, moulded dresses that sparkle with allover embroidery outlining the figured patterns.

Sixty different patterns are included in the fabrics derived from modern paintings. Picasso's brush strokes trace bright red and blue fish on a ceramic plate that Claire McCardell has used for a full-skirted sun dress. Roxane of Samuel Winston likes the same idea for a column-cut evening sheath topped by a short back-buttoned jacket tied with a narrow string sash. Jonathan Logan selected Leger's bold painting of a horse's head in black against daubs of gold and orange for a beach blouse. One of Chagall's landscapes appears in a printed silk in deep green and violet tones that Mollie Parnis has used for a long-torso dancing dress. Another interpretation of the handsome print is given by Ceil Chapman in a long evening dress with a moulded long bodice and a front-draped skirt.

Children's clothes are being made of the fantastical abstractions and figure symbols of Miro that have been transplanted to new cotton materials. Adele Simpson selected Raoul Dufy's watercolor of garden flowers on a spun rayon fabric for a graceful evening dress elaborated with jewel embroidery. The high-stepping race horses that this artist painted so graphically have been imprinted on some border fabrics that are especially striking for three-piece beach dresses.

Although the gaily printed fabrics are the highlight of the new resort and cruise fashions, other style trends are noteworthy. Silhouettes vary from the smooth and beltless to full-skirted ones, but the modification of the slim lines by means of pleats or back-swept fullness is most significant. The Oriental emphasis is evident in the clothes designed in New York as it is in the fashions originating in California and St. Louis. The idea is seen in the mandarin accents on dresses and the kimon patterns of cottons, in the gilded embroidery for evening wraps and the brilliant colors.

While there are many sleeve less dresses in the resort collections, there also are many cover-up themes. Wool knit or cashmere sweaters are matched to dresses and the sports separates. These sweaters and boleros are trimmed with the linen, cotton, or silk of their dresses. Stoles have returned to popularity and are made of many different materials. Wide wool jersey stoles that accompany bathing suits and silk satin stoles to cover evening dresses are examples of the mode. Capes are increasing in popularity as little wraps as well as a decorative feature of dresses.

Evening dresses created in New York have new hemlines as well as decorative materials for their principal interest. The long-short evening dress which is mid-calf length is sponsored by many designers. The longer-in-back length is another that gives evening silhouettes different appearance.

Love Is Where You Find It

Marna Is Furious and Hurt When She Discovers Pierre Kissing Lisa

Synopsis

LISA MORTON lives with her mother, MARNA, who operates a dress shop in California. Marna had divorced Lisa's father nine years before. Marna, in New York on a buying trip, sends PIERRE LA MONTE, whom she has met in New York to help Lisa celebrate her eighteenth birthday. Lisa and Pierre have a wonderful time. Meanwhile Lisa's father sends a congratulatory telegram from his home in Missouri and says he hopes to see her when he attends a convention there later. The divorce agreement had been that he could see her after she was 18.

After being out with Pierre, Lisa, helping run the shop in her mother's absence, is late coming in. She continues to see Pierre regularly and just as regularly comes to the shop late each morning. Meanwhile, Lisa is falling in love with Pierre. He, in turn, admits he is falling in love with her but seems to be fighting it, worried about her mother. After a movie date, they are in her apartment when he takes her in his arms and kisses her.

WITH A CRY LIKE A WOUNDED ANIMAL MARNA RAN TO HER BEDROOM AND LOCKED THE DOOR BEHIND HER.

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER SEVEN

THE silent spectator of that prolonged kiss was Marna. Her voice, when she was able to speak, was outraged.

"And I trusted you," she said addressing Pierre, whose face was white with shock. He hadn't intended to kiss Lisa. He should have left her at the door and waited until he had time to clear up the confusion in his own mind before he saw her again.

It was too late now. The thing he feared had happened. And Lisa flew to his defense, making matters worse.

"Mother!" Lisa cried. "Don't say anything until we've had a chance to explain!"

"Be quiet," Marna said as if she were a child. "I'm not talking to you."

"But Pierre is not to blame any more than I am. We're in love."

"In love," Marna repeated as if even the sound of it nauseated her. "There isn't such a word in Pierre's vocabulary."

Realizing that there was more to Marna's wrath than the protest of an indignant mother, Lisa waited for Pierre to explain. He was walking toward Marna.

"Sit down, dear, you must be very tired. Why didn't you tell us you were coming?"

Marna moved away from him. "Because, heaven help me, I wanted to surprise you. What a joke. I finished up my business and took the first plane I could get . . . after I discovered Lisa hadn't gone to the shop this morning."

"Then it was really because you were worried about Lisa," Pierre said logically. "It's Lisa you've been considering all the time. Lisa first, the shop second and me, Pierre La Monte third. When I asked you to marry me you refused until I had met and become friends with your daughter. Whose idea was it that I precede you to California?"

"I didn't expect you to make love to her," Marna retorted.

MARNA was smartly dressed in a dark silk suit. Her brown hair was waved, nails delicately polished and her skin fresh, but she looked her 41 years and more. There is nothing which ages a woman more than to have the iridescent bubble of a new romance burst in midair.

For the first time since leaving her husband, Marna had found a man she could love. So far as she was concerned she would have married Pierre immediately, as he requested. It was the effect it might have on Lisa which had made her refuse. The girl had suffered too much already having been robbed of her father. It wasn't fair to marry anyone without giving her a chance to know him.

Being a professor Marna thought would qualify him as a stepfather. Pierre was accustomed to dealing with young people and might be helpful. If Lisa liked him she might give up the idea of going to Walnut City to live with her real father who had remarried. If she still insisted upon going Marna would have a devoted husband to comfort her.

Marna's eyes filled with tears as she admitted that Pierre was not first in her heart. In time he might be but not yet. Nevertheless she had trusted him with the most precious person in her life, but any love she had for him had disintegrated at the sight of him kissing Lisa.

As for Pierre, he did not know what to say to mollify both of them. The situation might have been coped with if he had been permitted to talk to either alone. Any explanation he attempted to make at the moment would be like gasoline poured on the fire of Marna's wrath.

In fact, the sooner he removed himself the better. His masculine dignity had been shattered and could only be repaired by solitude. Besides he honestly didn't know which of them, if either, he wanted.

The inexperienced mother, whose life had been devoted to her business, or the youthful but more sophisticated girl.

It was necessary that one be realistic about marriage, Pierre reminded himself. Love was a temporary emotion, but the income from a flourishing dress shop added to his salary would mean he could stop teaching long enough to write a book about his impressions of American women.

A bachelor by nature, Pierre was in a way relieved that now he was free again of emotional entanglements. These things were managed more wisely in France. No wonder he had been confused.

"Pierre," Lisa cried, as he walked toward the door. "You're not going now? Leaving me to explain."

"Let him go," Marna said. "No explanation is necessary for what I've seen with my own eyes."

"It's very late," Pierre sighed. "It will be better if we do not attempt to solve our problem tonight. I shall telephone."

"No problem," Marna said bitterly. "Just go away and don't come back. Ever."

PIERRE'S glance was reproachful but his strongest desire at the moment was to escape the emotional tensions for which he was responsible.

It was not the first time he had been caught between the fury of two women but never before had they been mother and daughter. He would have married Marna if he had not fallen in love with Lisa. But to marry either now would be in bad taste. And this to Pierre La Monte was unforgivable. One must be discreet. Even in L'amour a gentleman must be discreet.

As the door closed behind him Pierre sighed with relief. He would keep his promise to telephone but he doubted if Marna would see him. And while Lisa was less vindictive she was also deeply hurt. No doubt she would be more so after Marna had related the facts.

It has been a mistake to become involved with any one when he needed to concentrate on his work. After the university opened he would be too busy for romance. It would have been wiser, Pierre told himself wryly if he had crossed the ocean on a later ship. He had spent too much since his arrival. As a result he would have to live on a limited budget.

The handsome professor threw back his shoulders and breathed the jasmine scented air. It was probably for the best and he wouldn't be surprised if he never saw either of them again.

Meantime in the apartment Lisa stared at her mother with disapproval. In the nine years since her parents' divorce Lisa had never seen her mother interested in a man.

Absorbed in her own interests it had not occurred to the girl that her mother might be in need of masculine companionship. Lisa had blamed Marna for depriving her of a father. Her affection for him grew as it diminished for her mother and Marna did not attempt to defend herself.

She had never discussed the reason for the divorce but Lisa had a vague impression that Marna, who had inherited more money than her husband could make with his small newspaper, had wanted to move to a larger place.

YET it was Marna who had put the silver framed photograph of Lisa's father on the girl's dressing table. Stephen Morton was a handsome man with undeniable charm. In many ways Lisa resembled him and all her memories of him were happy except the last one. Tears were in his eyes as he kissed her and reminded her to be a good girl. He would have kissed Marna too but she drew back as if he had insulted her.

After they were on the train Marna sat staring out the window until Lisa said she was hungry. Marna rang for the porter who brought sandwiches and cocoa to their room but Marna did not eat anything and Lisa was not as hungry as she had thought she was. . . . She hadn't recalled this memory for a long time but suddenly it came rushing back to her and she knew why.

The expression in her mother's eyes was the same as it had been nine years ago. Marna was staring at something Lisa could not see.

Lisa was sorry for her but sorrier for herself.

When Marna said suddenly, "I'm not blaming you," Lisa retorted, "I shouldn't think you would. A woman of your age should have known better."

"It was my fault for suggesting that he become friends with you," Marna conceded.

"That's because you think of me as a child. Pierre was amazed when he saw how grown up I was."

"I told him it was your eighteenth birthday but of course, nice girls of that age in France seem younger than they do here."

"There's no use talking about girls in France. What are we going to do? About Pierre, I mean."

MARNA'S voice was cold. "Nothing. I never want to see him again. And you shouldn't either."

"But what shall I say when he telephones? He may still want to marry me."

"You wouldn't marry him now would you?"

"I don't know," Lisa admitted. "Theoretically I suppose one couldn't expect much happiness married to a man like Pierre. But some women aren't satisfied under any circumstances."

Her heart was so sore that she wanted to hurt Marna. And Marna knew what she meant. "I suppose you mean me," she said.

"I certainly do. If you hadn't left my father this could never have happened."

With a cry like a wounded animal Marna ran to her bedroom locking the door behind her.

Popular Wrap

The black velvet or velveteen coat is a popular wrap to have in the winter wardrobe. It is worn not only as an evening wrap but with late-day dresses. One model that is lined with white satin has a white ermine collar of the mandarin type. Another coat with a swinging back features the cardigan neckline and sleeves that may be worn short or long, depending upon the adjustment of deep cuffs.

Synthetic Fabric Coats

Coats that look like fur but are made of new synthetic fabrics are popular with college girls. Warm but lightweight these coats look most striking in the pale beige shade. Dark brown and black models also are attractive, especially in the full-length models.

Brown Costumes

Brown daytime costumes are taking fashion honors this season. Both the caramel tones and the dark chocolate brown shades are popular, and usually the accessories are chosen in the same tone. Charcoal brown ensembles call for lighter-toned accessories, and the new cork shades are being recommended as a flattering contrast.

Hip-Length Fur Coats

Hip length fur coats are among the fashionable ones this season. These are liked in the light tones that are suitable for wear for daytime and for evening. Beaver is a favorite fur, especially in the boxy type and in the sheared treatment. Some very pale tones of beige and of gray also are being featured extensively this season.

Back Fullness

Back fullness continues to be an important fashion feature of many coats. Typical of the newest trend is a coat that is slim at the front but has a box-pleated back. The pleats start at the shoulders and are stitched down to yoke depth, then released to be caught again with a belt at the lowered waistline.

—What's the Use?—

Nobody Believes Our Hero

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP).

THE SUREST way to lose all faith in human nature is for a man to get a black eye or a broken hand in a small household accident.

Nothing turns an optimist into a cynic faster. The reason: no matter how simple or logical your tale of woe is, neither friend nor foe will believe it.

In fact, if you do hurt yourself at home, you might as well tell a great big whopping fib about it. Most people may still regard you as a liar—but they'll at least credit you with being an imaginative liar.

I'm in a position to know. Recently I received two tiny chip fractures in my starboard flipper while supposedly safe in the refuge of my rented castle. The injury was a small one, but 10 days, two X-rays and three doctors later I found myself wearing an aluminum splint—"might as well be on the safe side"—and a bandage big enough for a wounded elephant.

In my office a friend who I am sure would readily lend me $1000 if I really needed it took one look at the bandage and asked what had happened.

"Oh, just a little household accident," I told him, feeling I shouldn't upset his day with worry.

"You mean a little household argument," he replied heartlessly. "Maybe that'll teach you not to talk back to your wife."

I made a dignified mental note never to borrow $1000 from him, even if he begged me on his knees.

WHEN THE SECOND FELLOW solicitously inquired about my injury, I murmured something about "falling off a ladder."

"I'll bet you got it falling off the wagon," he remarked.

The third man didn't even bother to ask. He felt he already knew.

"Don't tell me you caught it in a door," he said, "unless it was a swinging door."

After a number of others stopped me to find out the reason for the bandage, I gave up hoping for sympathy. I realized that people don't want the real truth in such cases. They are looking for entertainment.

The wilder the tale you tell the more they respect you.

I told one man a fellow stepped on my hand when I bent over to retrieve a woman's handkerchief, and he nodded his head and said, "I'll bet the woman didn't even thank you."

I told another inquisitor I had hurt my hand merely by sitting down on it, and he answered, "you know I heard of a guy who did that and actually broke five bones in his hand. Imagine it—five bones."

STILL ANOTHER QUESTIONER was satisfied when I told him my hand wasn't hurt at all—I was just wearing the bandage to pay off a bet.

"How did I break my hand? Why, defending a lady's honor, but please don't ask me whose," I crisply informed a middle-aged secretary. I felt a little guilty when she patted my shoulder and said:

"Bless you, there aren't many men like you left in this world."

Well, the truth is, I banged my hand against the wall deliberately—so I'd have an excuse to get out of carving the Thanksgiving turkey this year.

Cantinflas Making First Hollywood Film

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 26 (UP).

ONE of the world's greatest comedians is making his first Hollywood movie with Marlene Dietrich and Red Skelton as "supporting players," but in the cinema capital the comic goes quietly unnoticed.

He is Cantinflas, and he is to Spanish-speaking countries what Charlie Chaplin is to the English-language world and Fernandel to France.

For 15 years Cantinflas, his droopy pants, nightshirt and battered felt hat in Mexican movies have been a big draw in Latin countries. After years of turning down Hollywood offers, the little comedian at last was lured here for "Around the World in 80 Days," which follows "Oklahoma" in the Todd-AO big screen process.

Producer Mike Todd predicts the motion picture will make Cantinflas as big a star around the world as he is in Mexico. In Mexico City I have seen crowds press around him with adoration that even Clark Gable doesn't get here. But so far Cantinflas's entrance to Hollywood has been a quiet one.

"Yes, I miss the people around me," the comic said in his soft, halting English. "But in the meantime, I can relax and have more privacy.

"I go no place in Hollywood. I stay in my hotel and read my lines."

In "Around the World" Cantinflas and David Niven portray two characters of the old Jules Verne classic who make the trip. Their travels take them to India, France, Colorado and points between.

Some of the world's biggest stars play bit parts in this travel epic. In one saloon scene Marlene Dietrich is an entertainer, accompanied by Frank Sinatra. Skelton is a drunk tossed to the street by bouncer George Raft. Noel Coward, Fernandel, Humphrey Bogart, Bea Lillie and Joe E. Brown are among other stars who flash on for brief bits.

Randolph Singers at Principia Friday

The Randolph Singers will present a program of madrigals and carols at 8:15 p.m. Friday at Howard Hall, The Principia, 5539 Page boulevard. The program will be repeated on the Elsah, Ill., campus at 8 p.m. Saturday.

The group, directed by music of tenor Geoffrey Moore, sopranos Anna Louise Kautz and Harriet Hill, contralto Mildred Greenberg and bass Bert Spero.

The madrigals will be in four groups—English, by Morley, Cavendish and East, Italian by Weelkes and Gesualdo, French, by Jannequin and Bonnet, and contemporary, by Avery Claflin, Daniel Pinkham and Judith Dvorkin. There will be six Christmas carols.

'Much Ado About Nothing' at Maryville

Shakespeare's comedy, "Much Ado About Nothing" will be presented by Players, Inc., in the Little Theater of Maryville College, 2900 Meramec street, at 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

The troupe is the traveling repertory company of Catholic University, Washington, D.C., under the direction of Father Gilbert V. Hartke, O.P.

Show Child That He Is Important

By Angelo Patri

IN education we learn to discriminate between principles and devices. A principle is regarded as a rule that is not changed, but remains steadfast under all circumstances. It is like the rock upon which the wise man built his house.

A device is a method by which a principle—often difficult to establish—is approached. It is used to make acceptance of the principle easier. This is necessary in teaching the young ones, whose characters must first be seasoned by protective ways and means.

ONE OF THE PRINCIPLES of education that should be accepted by all parents and teachers is: show the child that he is important. He must be important to himself; fell important to his family and to his group. Only when he feels that what he is, what he does and the way he does it means something to those he cares about, can he put out his whole effort in growth. In short, people must care enough about him to show him they do. Then his whole being will be lighted by the power of his spirit.

It takes so little on the part of a father or mother or teacher to create that glow and the power it indicates. A caressing touch as he passes, a smile, a word of praise—and the thing is done. He knows he is liked, approved and in that atmosphere of spirit, he can do wonders.

I saw this work many times, but there was one occasion that marks the idea with a red letter. Rex was a handsome boy whose father and mother were so busy about their own concerns that they overlooked their son's need of them. They saw that he had the best of things, but they gave him so little of themselevs as to starve his spirit. They scarcely knew him. In their presence he was a polite, aloof stranger and that, too, they scarcely knew.

IN THE FINE SCHOOL he attended, provided by his parents because it was the right thing to do, there was a gray-haired Irish matron who acted as a sort of mother to the lonely boys—and there were several of them in that school. In the presence of Mary Martha, Rex was a different boy. He had that inner glow. He laughed, he teased, he showed her his work and his reports, and she beamed on him with the warmest affection. She guided him, corrected him so gently in that soft Irish voice that while he accepted the criticism, he never felt a sting. Every chance he caught, he visited Mary Martha in her office and in her nearby cottage. One day his parents learned about the relationship, and there was a row. "You're to drop that association at once. The idea . . . etc." Rex's glow died. Classwork went down and the spirit failed. The Head said, "He needs Mary Martha and she needs him. It's that . . . or else." It was that.

Love is the stimulant to child growth — to any worthwhile growth. It is the first principle in education.

'The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker' by 'Y'

"The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker," comedy by Liam O'Brien which had a successful Broadway run in 1954, will be given by the "Y" Players of the Downtown Y.M.C.A. at the Y.M.H.A. Building, 724 Union boulevard, at 8:30 p.m. Thursday and Saturday and 3 p.m. next Sunday. The play, about a man who has sired large families in both Wilmington and Philadelphia, each unknown to the other, will be the group's first major production of the season.

Pastel Shades

Pastel shades are scheduled for popularity during the winter resort season. Shades of blue, pink, and pale green are noteworthy and look especially interesting in linen. Many of the cottons are printed, the all-over patterns on white or pastel backgrounds looking dainty and flattering.

Gondolier Jacket

The Italian look that is seen in sportswear continues to be a popular trend. A boldly striped "Gondolier" jacket made of sailcloth is co-ordinated with fitted pants. Striped cotton knit slacks and sweater add a low-necked sailcloth jacket.

Answers to Housewives' Questions

By Dorothy Brainerd

"MY son is in service in Germany, and I know very little about the packing and keeping qualities of goodies to send over," writes Mrs. R.J. "I would like to have recipes for cookies, and advice on how to pack them. Also, is it possible to send fruit such as apples and oranges?"

Hope that you are not inquiring about a Christmas package, Mrs. J., as it is doubtful whether one would reach your son in time if shipped at this late date. Nov. 15 was the last date of shipment to guarantee delivery by Christmas.

But of course boys enjoy boxes at any time of the year. Fruit cake and applesauce cake would be wise choices. Cookies such as lebkuchen would be welcome, and need not be limited to holiday enjoyment. It is a good idea to wrap each cookie in foil so that if they do crumble the flavors won't mix. (Don't worry, he will enjoy the crumbs, too.) Incidentally, it also is wise to wrap fruit cake in foil after it is placed in the tin in which it is to be shipped.

The Post-Dispatch leaflet of Christmas cookies contains several recipes for delicacies which would ship well. The fruit cake cookies are ideal for this purpose; the rum cakes and bourbon balls are sure to be a success; the date-oatmeal cookies are very good indeed. The booklet is obtainable without charge if you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Cookies" P.O. Box 822, St. Louis 1, Mo.

Such things as cheese crackers and hard candies are welcome, canned shrimp is very popular with most of the boys.

No, it would not be advisable (or possible, for that matter, under postal regulations) to ship fresh fruit. But you might consider dried, packaged fruits.

"CAN YOU SUGGEST any way to change the color scheme of my bathroom?" asks Mrs. W.H. "It was stylish 20 or 30 years ago, but I am tired of it. It has orchid and green tile, with the top of the walls painted green; green curtains and green shower curtain. The floor tiles have turned a sort of pink."

Orchid and green is a delicate combination—one which can be either dainty or insipid, depending upon the way it is handled.

Since you have tired of it, I would suggest that you use a deeper tone for a change. A purple which has a definite pink (not blue) undertone would be very effective. My choice would be bath mat and towels of this tone. White curtains and a shower curtain of white background with a pattern of violets would make a most attractive room.

WITH TODAY'S smaller kitchens putting a premium on every inch of storage and work surface, manufacturers are combining several appliances into one. Latest addition to this category is an electric mixer-blender-knife sharpener, which has one basic power unit. Set the base upright and it holds a mixer; turn it on one side and it holds the knife sharpener; turn it upside down and it holds the blender. The base takes only five and one-half inches of work space.

BAD NEWS, WE FEAR, for Mrs. H., who advises that she spilled some household bleach on the front of her sink. The bleach was undiluted, right out of the bottle, and left a dull streak on the surface which she has been unable to remove.

Better learn to love that streak, Mrs. H. Looks as though you were going to live with it. I discussed this matter with an expert in the plumbing fixture field, and was told that apparently this was not an acid-resisting sink, that the glaze had been taken off by the bleach, and that there was nothing which could be done to restore the glossy finish. Sorry—and let this be a warning to other homemakers to either buy acid-resisting sinks or handle those bleach bottles with utmost care.

FROM R.J. comes a request for a recipe for Salzburger Nockerln, a famous Austrian dish made from eggs. Since we did not have a recipe in our files we wrote to the Poultry and Egg National Board, and are indebted to Kathryn B. Niles, home economic director for that organization, for the recipe.

Just mix these three ingredients together: Three egg yolks three teaspoonfuls sugar; three teaspoonfuls flour. Separately beat the egg whites and mix with the above ingredients. Pour into a greased, hot frying pan and fry on both sides—that's all there is to it. Serve plain, or with some of your favorite jelly or sauce.

IN ANSWER TO L.M., Willow Springs, Mo.: I would suggest that you write to the manufacturer for advice. The address is Club Aluminum Products Co., 1250 West Fullerton avenue, Chicago 14, Ill. You might direct your inquiry to Edna Gaul, director of the home economics department.

Any homemaking problems bothering you? If so, write to Dorothy Brainerd in care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. She will answer your questions or publish them and see if other readers have the answers for you.

Wall Paneling

Installing any type of wall paneling in a room where the floor is uneven can be a problem. The way to get around this is to install a baseboard and make this perfectly level and then set the bottom ends of the paneling on the top of the baseboard. The crack between the bottom of the baseboard and the uneven floor can be covered with a strip of quarter-round molding.

Sausage Pastries

Two cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons paprika, dash of cayenne, one-third cup shortening, two-thirds cup milk, two and one-half dozen cocktail sausages or frankfurters.

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or two knives until mixture is as fine as coarse cornmeal. Stir in milk, making a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board. Roll lightly, as thin as possible, and cut into one-inch rounds. Place small frankfurter or sausage on each round. Fasten each sausage to round with narrow strip of dough. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Yield: about 30 to 32 pastries.

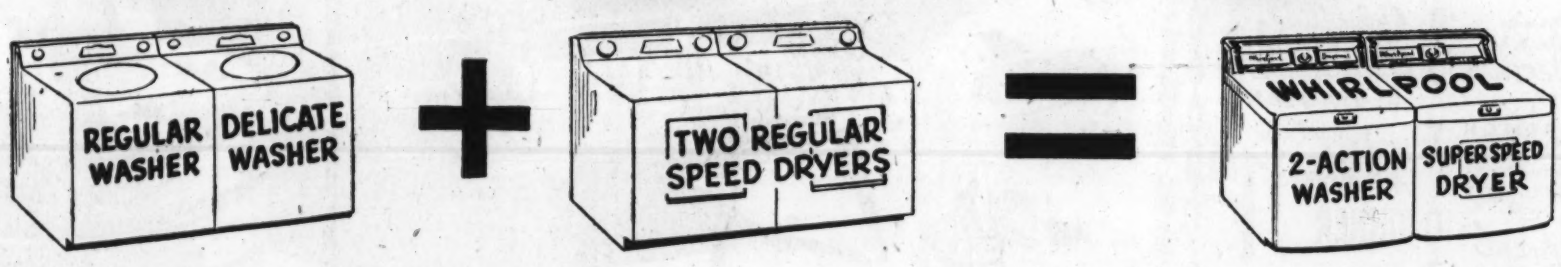
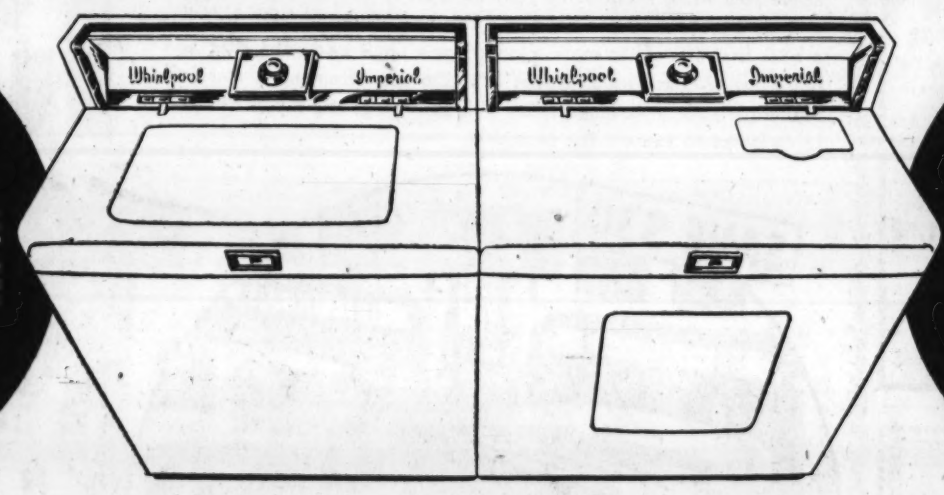
WANT THINGS? WATCH THE WANT ADS!

2 plus 2 equals 2?



It would take 2 separate washers and 2 separate dryers to duplicate Whirlpool's new washing & drying action!

Whirlpool's AUTOMATIC WASHERS HAVE 2 SEPARATE WASHING CYCLES!



Whirlpool's "SUPERSPEED" GAS DRYERS DRY CLOTHES TWICE AS FAST!

1. GENTLE CYCLE

Not just a shorter time cycle—Not just a part of the regular washing cycle—BUT A COMPLETELY SEPARATE WASHING ACTION incorporating a shorter time cycle and a 33⅓% slower action that really duplicates hand-laundering gentleness.

2. REGULAR CYCLE

Whirlpool's regular cycle really goes to work on everyday fabrics. This regular washing action gives regular fabrics the thorough, vigorous yet gentle washing and spinning they need. Come and see this new kind of automatic washer.

NEW WHIRLPOOL NOW DRIES CLOTHES AS FAST AS YOU CAN WASH THEM!

With Whirlpool's Super-Speed Gas Dryer you can dry two loads of clothes in the same time one load dries in the fastest regular-speed dryer! Super-Speed dries faster than a load of clothes is washed. It's a real time-saver and Super-Speed costs no more to operate than regular-speed dryers. Yes, Whirlpool dries faster AND 34% FLUFFIER, TOO!

LOOK AT THESE EXTRA FEATURES:

• Guide Lite Control • 3-Level Water Selector • 3-Temp Water Selector • 7 Rinses With Less Water • Germicidal Lamp • Dual Cycle-Tone Signal • 5-Year Transmission Warranty • Nudge-Open Door

Questions of Social Usage

"ABOUT a year ago, my husband started to work for a construction company. He was just out of college and being quite young all the secretaries and stenographers started calling him by his first name. He has just been promoted and now has an executive position with the company and a great deal of responsibility. In spite of his promotion, the women in the office continue to call him by first name. I don't mean to be snobbish, but I think it is belittling to his position to be called by first name especially in front of other businessmen. Is there a polite way in which he can tell them that he does not wish to be called by his first name?"

My answer to this is a very serious one: I hope this point of view is yours and not his! To spoil appraisal by pomposity, would be tragedy indeed. There should be a rule made by the head of the company that no one is to be called by his or her first name in the hearing of strangers.

DEAR MRS. POST: Aren't sympathy cards which people sometimes send to the bereaved, supposed to be acknowledged? My mother thinks it necessary only to thank for flowers, spiritual bouquets and handwritten notes. She thinks sympathy cards rank with get-well cards and other greeting cards which require no special handwritten acknowledgement. Please settle this difference we have.

Answer: Personally, I agree with your mother. But I know that there are many self-centered unreasonable people who are seemingly unable to understand the distance between the depth of grief and acknowledgement of a ready-bought card.

DEAR MRS. POST: I have just recently broken my engagement and I would like to know what to do with the many presents I received from my fiance's family and friends. Should I pack them up and return them to him so that he may dispose of them, or is it my obligation to return them?

Answer: It is your obligation to return each to its giver with a note of appreciative regret.

Extra Sandwich

Make an extra sandwich when you are packing a lunchbox for Dad or one of your youngsters. Wrap the sandwich in waxed paper and refrigerate it. At noon, when you are ready for lunch, spread the top surface of the sandwich bread with soft butter or margarine and toast under the broiler; turn, spread other side of sandwich with soft butter and toast. Almost any filling—cheese, egg or tuna salad—takes to this sandwich treatment.

Breaded Fish Fillets

Know how to bread fish fillets? Beat an egg with a couple of tablespoons of cold water. Dip the fillets into the egg, then into fine dry bread crumbs.

Salmon Casserole

Flake canned salmon and arrange in a casserole with well-drained canned or sliced fresh tomatoes. Top with buttered bread crumbs and grated cheddar cheese. Bake in a moderate oven until heated through. Delicious with a green salad and hot biscuits for lunch or supper.

Melting Ice

Rock salt is fine for melting ice off walks and drives but it's tough on plants and lawns so keep it off planted areas and be careful not to use it where it can be washed onto planted areas. Also, to prevent it damaging concrete surfaces, mix it half and half with sand.

Sweet Muffins.

Add a half teaspoon of vanilla and some nutmeats to a regular sweet muffin batter. Serve hot for 4 o'clock tea.

Pie Crust Suggestion

If the top crust on your pies doesn't brown the way you would like it to, try brushing the pastry with milk before it goes into the oven.

Bloused Crown

The hat with the bloused crown continues to represent an important trend in millinery. Many of these hats are made of sheer materials such as maline to give them a lightweight effect in spite of their added size. Royal blue maline is striking in the design of one new hat that has a moderately wide brim. Pink roses and green leaves decorate a brown maline hat that also follows this new silhouette.

Red Satin Dress

A red satin sheath dress embroidered in white is among the new designs created by Oleg Cassini. One shoulder of the dress is left bare while the other is covered. This dress has a higher waistline in keeping with the trend toward Empire silhouettes.

Fred Conway's Mural for KETC A Rich Jewel Symbolizing Hope

Exuberant Optimism Over Educational Television's Potentialities Suggested by High-Keyed Colors of Dawn.

By HOWARD DERRICKSON

Fred Conway, advanced painting instructor at Washington University, was putting finishing touches yesterday on his 15-by-8-foot mural, "Education Through Television." The radiant canvas, full of high-keyed lyric passages, is now in his Bixby Hall studio. It is to be installed in January in the waiting room of the new KETC (Channel 9) television station building on campus.

Commissioned by Arthur B. Baer last spring for an undisclosed amount, the monumental work has undergone constant change of outline and color as the artist has worked on it. "I never know what's going to happen from one day to the next," he said.

Evolution has been from the particular to the general in symbols, from the detailed to the broadly simplified or semi-abstract in representation and from the relatively simple to the vastly complex in interplay of color.

Conway's first emblem for the message the station has for its public was the Brookings Hall towers, conventional symbol of an engineering school. This he has replaced with an open book as more broadly significant of the station's mission of extending to the people an invitation to learning of all kinds.

The Lure of Learning.

A towering figure within the television studio is shown lifting the curtain on this alluring realm of knowledge. Actual mechanics of transmission are suggested by parabolic lines of movement, like those of sound waves reflected from an 'out-door orchestra's shell. These lines and areas of color sweep out to engulf four figures standing for families of all sizes—father, son, mother, daughter.

Expressive abstract composition and chromatic orchestration are strongest at the base of the picture, which spectators will find in their line of sight and will therefore see first of all.

Here and in more naturalistic areas higher up, there is a consistent emotional appeal in hues conveying a sensation of buoyant, exuberant optimism, of the dawn of a new day in the artist's own primary occupation —teaching.

A bird, a recurrent motif with Conway, is depicted winging its way through a roseate sky with a message of hope in its bill. Here the form is vaguely delineated.

A Comment From Conway.

Symbols are less important in the painting than are colors, Conway indicated. "It's really just a great big piece of jewelry," he said.

A kind of vision developed by the cubists of Paris permits suggestion of gem-like facets in iridescent and opalescent tones. There is constant alternation of balance and unexpected asymmetrical pattern among a profusion of passages in colors of garnets, emeralds, opals and diamonds.

An occasional area of multiple glazes and vibrating patches brings to mind crushed jewels, polished marble, onyx and chalcedony.

"It's an emotion, a mood, not a story, that I have to tell," Conway said. "I'm still enriching the surface and keying it up to try to suggest high hopes about potentialities of educational TV.

"I just hope those people waiting in that little waiting room find it worth looking at for as long as they may have to wait. You know how waiting rooms are. Sometimes the minutes you have to wait seem mighty long!"

Works by Conway in 3 Exhibits Out of Town.

Conway's "Dancer," an oil-and-encaustic (wax) painting owned by Kansas State College at Manhattan, is part of "Art From Midwest Collections," a show being held this month in connection with the American Federation of Arts convention in Des Moines, Ia. The exhibition comprises European and American painting and sculpture from 1835 to 1955.

Frontispiece in the catalogue is George Caleb Bingham's "Self-Portrait," owned by City Art Museum. Also chosen for the exhibition was "Carnival," a triptych, or three-panel painting, by the late Max Beckmann, instructor of fourth-year painting in 1947, 1948 and 1949 at the School of Fine Arts here.

"The New King," Conway's oil-and-encaustic that was part of City Art Museum's last Missouri show, is included in a new two-week group display at his New York gallery, Grand Central Moderns.

Drawings by Conway and two of his faculty colleagues, Werner Drewes and William Fett, are reproduced in "Seeing Art Through the Eye: 1955 Graphic Gala," an interesting publication obtainable from The Artists' Gallery, 851 Lexington avenue, New York.

The gallery, which has helped many noted artists gain their first public recognition by showing their work without charge, is a non-profit organization supported by voluntary contributions.

5 St. Louisans in Peoria Print Competition.

Five St. Louis artists are represented in "The Sixth Annual National Bradley University Exhibition of Prints," which opened Nov. 6 and will close Dec. 4 at the Peoria (Ill.) Art Center. Jack Sonnenberg, a Washington University School of Fine Arts graduate now living in New York, won a prize for a color woodcut.

St. Louisans taking part include Fred Becker, Washington University print-making instructor, who as a juror of the show contributes to it two engravings; George Mallett, librarian of the School of Fine Arts here, and Saunders Schultz, St. Louis muralist, both showing woodcuts; E. F. Hebner, a linoleum cut, and Billy M. Jackson, an engraving.

Becker's "Insectivore," another engraving, is part of the current "First Annual National Graphic Arts Exhibition of Texas Western" College, El Paso. This display, in which Jackson won a prize, will close Wednesday.

'New Collectors' Show' to Open at Schweig Gallery.

A "New Collectors' Show" will open with a public reception next Sunday at the Martin Schweig Gallery of Modern Art, 4657 Maryland avenue, it was announced yesterday by Miss Margery Dodson, painter, sculptor and director of the gallery. This will be the new gallery's first exhibition opening with a reception to which the general public is invited.

On view will be three works by each of the following artists: Conway, Werner Drewes, Siegfried Reinhardt, Charles Quest, Becker, Tanasko Milovich and Edward Boccia, all teaching this year at Washington University; Walter Barker, a faculty member now painting in Paris, and William Fett, painting in Spain.

All of the pictures—mostly water colors, drawings and prints—will be priced from $5 to $150 to attract the young or the beginning collector.

OFFICERS OF ALUMNI CLUB

George S. Graff, 70 Stony Side lane, Olivette, was elected president of the Metropolitan St. Louis chapter of the University of Detroit alumni at the group's first meeting last week.

Other officers elected, all of whom will serve for one year, are John W. Demmitt, vice president; Sam B. Coffier, treasurer, and Frank H. Fischer, secretary.

Producing 7500 M.P.H. Winds In Tunnels King-Size Problem

Designers Find Air Liquefies at Half That Speed — They Say They Will Overcome Obstacles.

By DAVID R. WALLIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TULLAHOMA, Tenn., Nov. 26—When the Air Force decided to go ahead with construction of an elaborate series of high speed wind tunnels for aeronautical testing five years ago, they handed designers both a challenge and a king-sized assortment of problems. There were virtually no guideposts to follow for the generation and careful control of streams of air up to 10 times the speed of sound, or more than 7500 miles an hour, and at simulated altitudes of 80,000 to 100,000 feet.

The Arnold Engineering Development Center here, where the tunnels are being constructed, has now started functioning. While the engineers don't claim all problems have been solved, they feel they have enough experience to be reasonably sure no insurmountable obstacles will be encountered to prevent the center's fulfilling its mission. This is the development and evaluation of aircraft, propulsion systems and guided missles. It will not eliminate flight testing, however.

One of the troubles encountered when tests were started at speeds around five times that of sound, or about 3800 miles an hour, was that the air itself started to liquefy in the test chambers. The fine mist resulting interfered with both the tests and the recording of results.

Cause of Trouble.

In explanation of the cause, in high velocity testing, air is blown at a specified speed past a stationary model of an airplane, a missile, in some cases a full-size plane section, or through operating jet, ramjet or other types of engines. If the test results are to have any value the conditions and the speed of the air stream must be held within extremely close limits.

As a practical matter, engineers at the center say, it is virtually impossible to hook enough powerful blowers together to keep a large stream of air moving at much more than the speed of sound. This varies, ranging from about 760 miles an hour at 59 degrees Fahrenheit at sea level to about 650 miles an hour at temperatures encountered at around 35,000 feet and above.

The speed above that delivered by blowers is gained by feeding the airstreams through a "nozzle." This is a polished steel-walled chamber with a narrow slit at the exit end. As the air forces through the slit, under high pressure, it accelerates sharply. By varying the size of the slit and the shape of the nozzle, air speed and turbulence in the test section of the wind tunnel can be controlled.

Air Temperature Falls.

The release of a high-pressure gas into a low-pressure chamber through a small opening is the principle of the mechanical refrigeration system. At Mach 10, or 10 times the speed of sound, the pressure leading into the throat of a 40-inch-wide test chamber will be about 2500 pounds per square inch. Even with the amount of heat generated in such compression, the release of the pressure through a one-sixteenth of an inch slit would drop the temperature of the air to about 400 degrees below zero. This would cause oxygen and nitrogen in the air to condense separately as drops of liquid, the engineers explained.

In order to avoid this, the air entering the throat is to be heated to 1500 degrees. This would, of course, distort the carefully-controlled shape of the steel-walled nozzle. High pressure water jackets are being installed to take a good part of this excess heat away. This, and other cooling problems, account for the fact that about 150,000 gallons of water a minute will be used by the center at times—enough to supply Washington, D.C.

The water is drawn from a reservoir 12 miles long in the dammed-up Elk river, and as much as possible is reclaimed and returned to the reservoir. It is so hot, however, that it has to go through a series of basins so that fish in the lake will not be killed.

Huge Steel Tunnels.

The tunnels themselves are huge reinforced steel tubes, laid above ground. In order to minimize the problem of air leaks, joints are welded. Miles of joints have been welded, with many more to go. Under current schedules, there are to be 15 tunnels in operation eventually and only five are operating at present. None of the Mach 10 tunnels are yet operating.

When completed, the largest of the tubes will be more than 1500 feet long and laid in a closed rectangle. It is to have a test section 16 feet square and 40 feet long and furnish air traveling at five times the speed of sound, an unprecedented combination. The heat of the air inside will cause the tube to expand, so the corners are not anchored. Engineers expect them to slide outward four feet in specially designed grooves, without causing any loss of air.

Many of the tunnels are to handle full-size engines during test runs. Jets and ramjets use huge quantities of air. In the closed circuit tunnels part of the air is circulated back past the blowers again, but the contaminated exhaust air is drawn out so that tests results will be constant. To replace it, fresh air, dehumidified and then conditioned to match the other air in the tunnel, is fed in. Dehumidification is done by refrigeration, after which controlled amounts of heat and moisture are introduced and the proper speed built up.

Glass viewing ports, optical systems and remote control closed-circuit television cameras are used for observance of the tests as they are in progress. The permanent records, however, are obtained by from 250 to 500 electrical connections, thermocouples and other instruments attached to objects being tested. The electrical impulses from them are fed to a computing department where they punch a paper tape.

This tape can be run through a scanner repeatedly to activate any of the three Univac computers at the center, which furnish test results in written form through automatic typewriters. At the same time the tape is punched the written results also can be produced, giving a reading on the performance of the test item in many cases while the test is still in progress. A maximum of 30 minutes is taken for the most complicated mathematical computations.

All of the tunnels, including those still in an early stage of backlog of work. In order to reduce "down time" to a minimum, large items such as engines or plane parts are mounted on interchangeable test beds in shops near by. These are slid into place in the test sections of the tunnels and locked. The recording, air intake and exhaust connections are made and the new test can then be started.

Power Available.

One of the reasons the center was located here was the availability of large amounts of electric power from the Tennessee Valley Authority. Capacity operation of the largest of the continuous flow tunnels, for example, requires electric motors with a total of 416,000 horsepower. The peak demand of the center will be about the same as the power consumption of Memphis, so the heaviest tests are to be run only in late night and early morning hours.

The Air Force already has spent $199,000,000 on the center and has presently approved expenditure of $54,000,000 more as necessary to expedite the development of high-performance aircraft and engines.

The center was designed by Sverdrup & Parcel, Inc., of St. Louis, and is operated by Aro, Inc., a subsidiary of Sverdrup & Parcel, Inc. It now has 1900 employes, and eventually will probably have at least 1100 more.

BRITISH CONSUL TO SPEAK AT MARK TWAIN DINNER

J. P. Duffy, British consul in St. Louis, will be guest speaker at a dinner celebrating the 120th birthday anniversary of Mark Twain at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Chase Hotel. The meeting is sponsored by the Mark Twain Memorial Association.

The estate of Mark Twain, who was Samuel Clemens in real life, was paid $21,009 last year by publishers and literary agents, it was reported. The author died 45 years ago. His only survivor is a daughter, Mrs. Clara Clemens Samossoud of San Diego.

COUNTY Y.W.C.A. TO FORM CLUB FOR OLDER PERSONS

A special club for older men and women will be organized by the County Branch Young Women's Christian Association, 140 North Brentwood boulevard, at a 1:30 p.m. meeting Thursday to which senior citizens in the county area are invited.

Combined with the meeting will be a general county Y.W.C.A. membership party beginning at 2 p.m., and featuring a talk on "Theater—1955-56," by Dr. William G. B. Carson, professor of dramatics at Washington University.

ORGAN RECITAL AT CHURCH

An organ recital will be given at 4 p.m. today at St. John's Methodist Church, Kingshighway and Washington boulevard, by Robert Glasgow, teacher of organ at MacMurray College for Women, Jacksonville, Ill.

John Huston, organist and choirmaster of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, N. Y., will give an organ recital at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow at Christ Church Cathedral, Thirteenth and Locust streets. The program is sponsored by the St. Louis Chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

THREE CONVENTIONS OF CATHOLIC YOUTH

Address by Frank J. Sheed Tonight; Talk by Truman Thursday Evening.

Three Catholic youth national conventions are to be held here this week, beginning today with the fifth annual Conference on Catholic Youth Work at Hotel Statler. Frank J. Sheed, author and publisher, will give the keynote address at the opening session at 8:30 p.m. today.

Former President Harry S. Truman will speak at a banquet closing the third annual convention of the National Council of Catholic Youth, Diocesan Section, at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Hotel Statler. Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter also will address the dinner meeting.

On Friday the third annual convention of the National Catholic Camping Association will begin. The convention, which will end Saturday, also will be held at Hotel Statler.

Panel discussions during the three meetings will include youth work; military service; problems of liquor and narcotics; indecency in literature, movies, radio and television; the psychology of youth; developing leadership and professional training.

The Camping Association sessions will be devoted to discussions on organization and expansion of camping facilities; training of personnel, and programs and other subjects designed to assist leaders to meet demands in outdoor activities.

A pontifical mass will be celebrated by Archbishop Ritter in Kiel Auditorium at 4:30 p.m. Thursday. About 15,000 youths from area schools are expected to attend.

The Youth Work conferences will end Tuesday and the Council of Catholic Youth meetings will begin Tuesday evening and end Thursday.

HEARING ON FLOOD CONTROL TOMORROW

House Unit Studying Hoover Group's Proposals to Hear Witnesses Here.

A House subcommittee which is studying the controversial Hoover Commission report on water resources and power will hold a public hearing tomorrow at 10 a.m. in Room 759 of the Federal building, Market street and Twelfth boulevard.

Leaders of Missouri rural electric co-operatives and representatives of groups concerned with flood control and navigation are expected to testify. The subcommittee, headed by Representative Robert E. Jones (Dem.), Alabama, recently held hearings in the South and in New England.

REA leaders will attend a three-day meeting on power use, which opens tomorrow at Hotel Chase, to be conducted by the Inter-Industry Farm Electric Utilization Council. Private electric utilities and public REA groups are represented on the council.

SIX CADETS TO GET AWARDS AT WASHINGTON U. REVIEW

Six Washington University students will receive distinguished cadet awards at the annual chancellor's review of the Army R.O.T.C. tomorrow at 4 p.m. at the Forsyth parade grounds on the university campus.

The awards, given for exceptional ability in both military and academic studies, will be presented by Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley.

The recipients are John S. Bowers Jr., 2012A Russell boulevard; William C. Cowdery, 6604 Waterman avenue, University City; Donald J. Mayhew, 5416 North Kingshighway; Jerry McManus, Kansas City, William M. Moxley Jr., 5735 Pernod avenue, and Edward M. Peek, 4243 Russell.

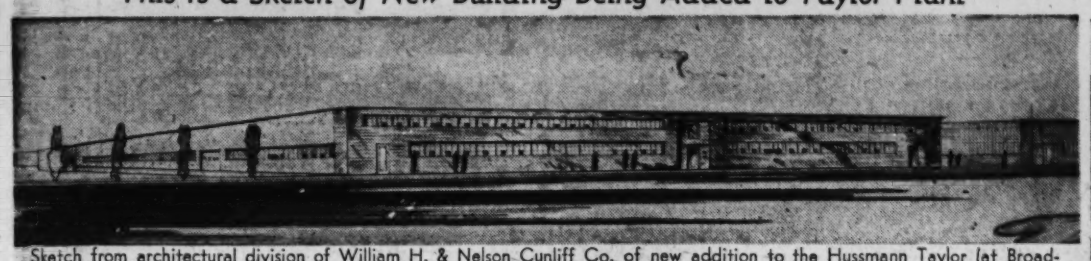
This Is a Sketch of New Building Being Added to Taylor Plant



Sketch from architectural division of William H. & Nelson Cunliff Co. of new addition to the Hussmann Taylor (at Broadway) plant in North St. Louis which the Cunliff organization has started building. Newest addition to plant will contain 85,000 square feet of floor space, clear way for additional employment.

Expansion By 85,000 Feet Begun

The Hussmann Refrigerator Co. reports work has been started on an 85,000 square-foot building on the company's 21-acre industrial site at Taylor Avenue and Broadway in north St. Louis. Completion next February is anticipated.

W. B. McMillan, Hussmann board chairman and president, said the new facilities will represent additional investment of more than $600,000 for the company. He estimated the expansion will create jobs for an additional 200 administrative and production workers. Hussmann employees in St. Louis alone will then total more than 2200.

McMillan pointed out that this is the fifth addition to the firm's Taylor avenue industrial site since the original plant for Hussmann Aircraft Division was built in 1950.

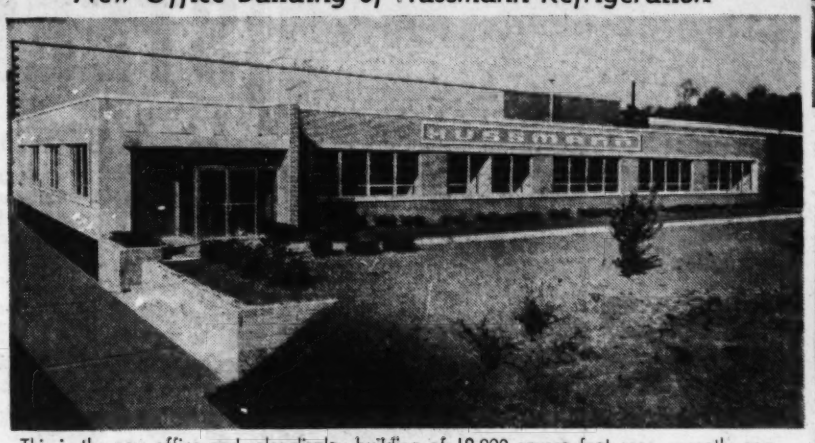
The new building is the third "six figure" structure to be erected on the Taylor site within a period of 12 months. A $200,000 contemporary office building for Hussmann Refrigeration, Inc., world-wide sales organization and wholly-owned subsidiary of Hussmann Refrigerator Co., was completed only two months ago.

The building now under construction was designed by the architectural and contracting firms of Wm. H. & Nelson Cunliff Co. It will extend out to Taylor avenue form the $600,000 shelving production building which was completed last February.

McMillan said the new structure represents another step in the company's rapidly developing expansion program. He indicated the firm expects to add additional items to its line of food store equipment and to further expand its facilities and operations. It now claims to be the largest manufacturer of food store equipment in the nation.

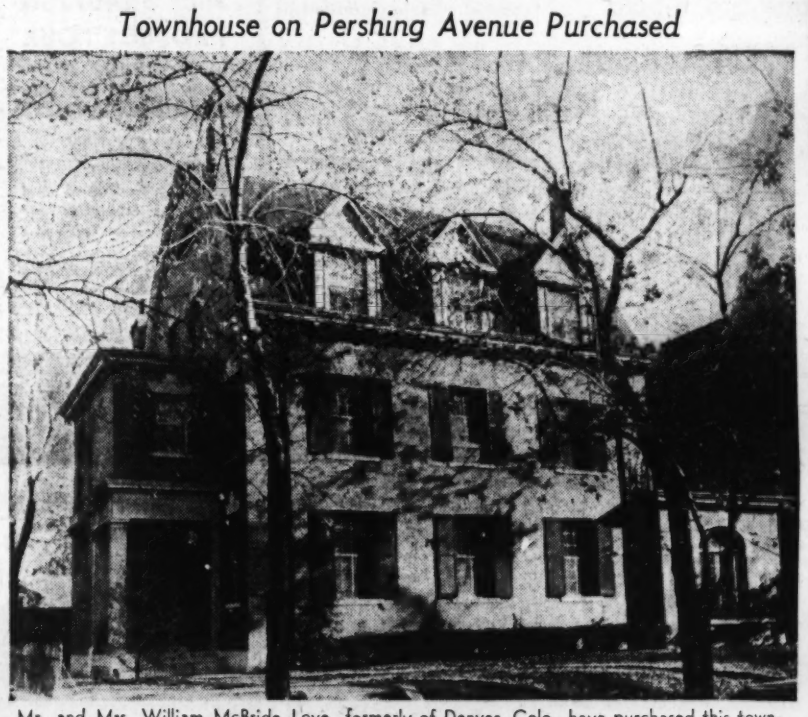
Hussmann has manufactured food store refrigeration equipment since the turn of the century. The first major addition to the line was made in 1954 when Hussmann dry grocery shelving was introduced. McMillan said the company now manufactures all major equipment required to set up a food store of any size.

New Office Building of Hussmann Refrigeration



This is the new office and sales-display building of 19,000 square feet area, recently completed and put into service on 22-acre plant site at Taylor avenue and North Broadway in St. Louis. W. B. McMillan, president of Hussmann Refrigerator Co. and chairman of the board of Hussmann Refrigeration, Inc., said the new structure will house world-wide sales organization of Hussmann Refrigeration, Inc., which is a subsidiary of the other (50-year-old, parent) company. The parent organization is expanding into space vacated by personnel sent to the new building. President of the subsidiary is William Stelpflug. Both $500,000 shelving plant completed earlier this year on Taylor avenue site, and the newest building are planned for expansion; the office to 60,000 feet when required. Also on site are a warehouse built in 1952, aircraft plant in 1950. Company's main office continues at original Leffingwell-North Market plant site.

Townhouse on Pershing Avenue Purchased



Mr. and Mrs. William McBride Love, formerly of Denver, Colo., have purchased this townhouse at 4967 Pershing avenue from Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall. Marshall is president of the Granite City Steel Corporation. This is one of the most recent transactions involving property on Pershing avenue, a section of which recently has been designated a private place. The transaction was negotiated by Margaret Caradine Wright and Mary Potter Love, Inc.

Home Builders Select Labor Committeemen

The labor committee of the Home Builders Association of Greater St. Louis for 1956 was named last week by Gene Vescovo, president. This Committee, deemed to be one of the most important by the Association, is composed of: Gerald Borgschulte, president of the Borgschulte Realty Co., chairman; Richard C. Higginbotham, president of Higginbotham Brothers, Inc.; Adrian Koch, who heads a building firm of that name; N. V. Bussmann, president of his own company; C. J. Sweeney, vice president of Joseph H. Vatterott Realty and Building Co.; Clarence T. Wilson, who heads the C. T. Wilson building firm; and Vescovo.

In addition to being a general liaison group for builders and members of the building trades unions, the committee also actively assists in labor negotiations and is instrumental in culminating labor contracts. Its job is to keep abreast of all information relative to the building trades and keep its members informed of any changes. Vescovo says "each member carries the honor of goodwill ambassador, and the responsibility of public trust."

Court Interpretations Of Aviation Law Limit Land Owner Air Rights

MIAMI, Fla.—Land owners no longer enjoy traditional unlimited air rights above their land, it appears from recent court verdicts involving aviation litigation, reports the City of Miami News Bureau.

This was emphasized in a report to the twentieth annual National Institute of Municipal Law Officers here last Tuesday by a committee on airports of which Sidney Goldstein, general counsel for the New York Port Authority, is chairman.

Goldstein reviewed the so-called Cedarhurst case in which a decision was given last June by the federal district court in New York. Cedarhurst had accused pilots of flying low over the village in violation of an ordinance. The case had been in litigation three years.

Relies On Congress.

"Since this is the first square ruling on a question which is of utmost importance to airport operators," the report said, "it should be emphasized that the basis of the court's decision (against Cedarhurst) was the pressing need for uniformity over the field, or air traffic regulation by one central authority, to prevent multiplicity of regulations, which constitutes a real danger to future development of commercial aviation.

"The court relied heavily on the comprehensive federal legislation dealing with air traffic rules and regulations as evidencing a clear congressional policy of control in the interest of uniformity," the report said.

Goldstein reported that "the judge took the attitude free

St. Louis Range Maker Brings Out An All New Line

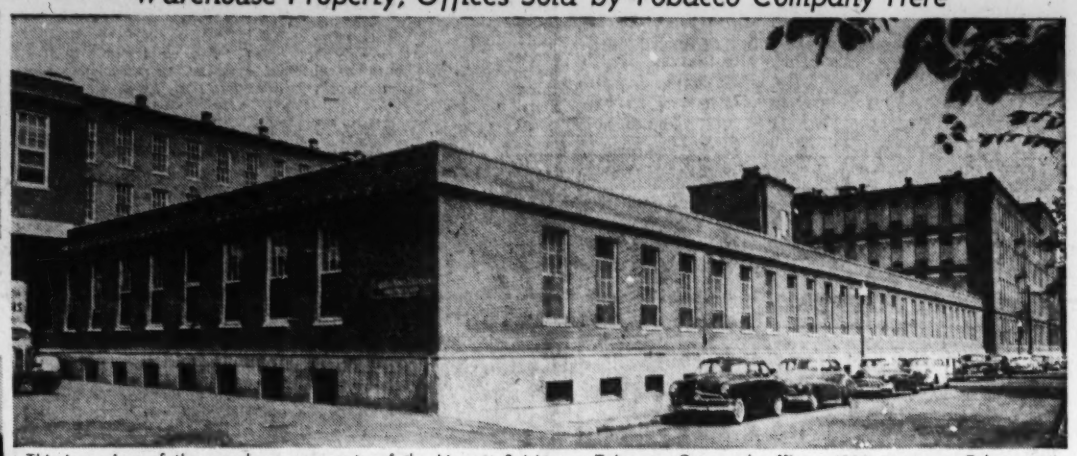
Magic Chef, Inc., of St. Louis, once at the top of the heap of household range makers in the United States, later down the hill somewhat because it stopped civilian production entirely to do a World War II job for the Federal Government, is making a bid in 1956 for its old place in sunny kitchens of the land.

Under the impetus of a new management team headed by Cecil M. Dunn as president, the company has developed an entirely new line of ranges, presented them formally to the trade about a week ago in New York City, and has watched its stock start climbing since.

New Yorkers are reported to have hailed the line as colorful and competitive. It includes, among other things, a system of table-top burners and wall ovens with swing-out broiler units; an automatic pop-out arrangement on other broilers.

Initial reception given the line is indicated to auger favorably for employment at the company's plant here in the coming year.

Warehouse Property, Offices Sold by Tobacco Company Here



This is a view of the warehouse property of the Liggett & Meyers Tobacco Co., and offices 4200 west on Folsom, at Tower Grove, which a St. Louis syndicate purchased last week. The tobacco company has moved its operations to New York City.

Probably few St. Louisans have been aware of this ornate office, which looks like a stock exchange or a big, prosperous bank of the 1890s. This is the main lobby of the offices of the Liggett & Meyers Tobacco Co., 4241 Folsom avenue, which local investors have just purchased. Concessions to the modern in the ornate office room are on accoustically tiled ceiling, air-conditioning. Elaborate decor of an earlier age has been retained in top condition.

Syndicate Buys L&M Property

A St. Louis syndicate headed by Charles and Robert Baskowitz purchased for cash last week the office structure and warehouse properties of the Liggett & Meyers Tobacco Co., 4241 Folsom avenue for an indicated consideration of about $285,000. The properties have more than 100,000 square feet of space and the office is an ornate area with marble floor and decor of the 1890s, in top condition, with concessions to modernism of air-conditioning and accoustical ceiling tile. There also is a modern employes' cafeteria.

The one-story office building has a two-story annex directly behind it, and to the north, extends 200 feet on Folsom, and a depth of 100 feet, with a total space of about 50,000 square feet.

The adjoining warehouse runs 250 feet on Folsom, by 109 feet, and has more than 55,000 square feet of floor area.

Both structures will be taken over for development by the Real Estate Division of Robert Baskowitz Enterprises, a newly formed branch of the Baskowitz organization that is widely known for its activity in the glass container industry.

The Folsom avenue property, together with other St. Louis and East St. Louis warehouse holdings of the firm, total more than 862,000 square feet. Additional unimproved holdings bring the total to well over 1,000,000 square feet.

Sale of the Folsom avenue structures by Liggett & Meyers followed a decision to move much of its administrative and executive personnel housed here to the company's New York offices. New owners will take possession of the office structure next April 1, and of the warehouse building next Jan. 1. Until that time, the tobacco firm will continue distributing from the warehouse its chewing tobacco products and its entire volume of cigarettes received here for distributing in the St. Louis area. The tobacco firm retained other structures adjoining the warehouse.

The office building and annex, each with a basement, are air conditioned and sprinklered.

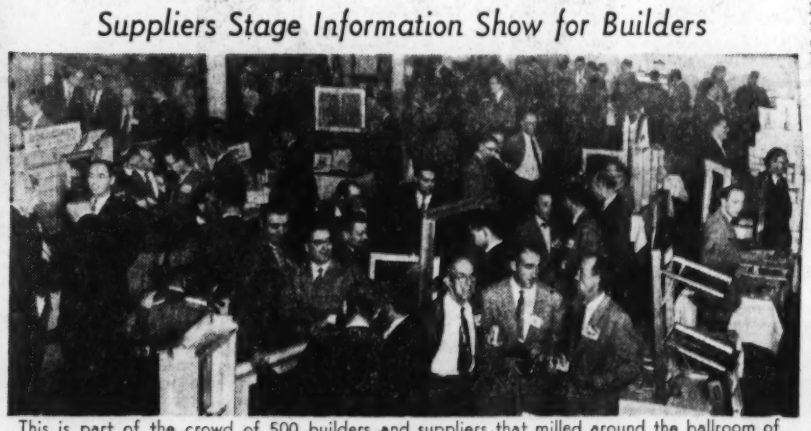
At the warehouse, an elevator serves basement and first floor, and a 250-foot loading platform at the rear has trackage to accommodate a minimum of five freight cars. The spur is served by the Frisco and Missouri-Pacific lines.

The office structure's first floor and the basement are each 12,000 square feet in area. The two-story annex comprises more than 24,000 square feet. The warehouse building with concrete floor is said to have exceptional floor load capacity, in excess of 300 pounds per square foot.

The tobacco company's office structure is known for its ornate decoration, with large central marble floor foyer bordered by numerous partitioned private offices, the latter elaborately paneled, and with acoustic tile ceiling. Many large colored prism leaded glass windows front on Folsom avenue, and on the second floor of the annex is a 2000 square foot cafeteria with modern kitchen having stainless steel equipment.

Adjoining the building on the east, at Tower Grove avenue, the property includes a 15,000 square foot parking area.

Suppliers Stage Information Show for Builders



This is part of the crowd of 500 builders and suppliers that milled around the ballroom of the Kingsway Hotel one night last week examining building items set up in 74 table-top displays by associate (supplies) members of the Home Builders' Association of Greater St. Louis for the benefit of Bildor members. The Producers' Council stages this kind of thing for architects every once in a while. This is the first time it has ever been done for home builders. In charge of the show were Leonard Gray, chairman; Vincent Welsch, Walter Murphy, William Francis and Howard J. Behan.

Space Added In Building In Clayton

Expansion and remodeling of the Clayton Medical Building, west side of Central avenue between Forsyth and Maryland, has been completed by Fruin-Colnon Contracting Co. for the Clayton Medical Building, Inc., a corporation composed of the medical men who have offices in the building.

An additional 80-foot frontage along Central avenue was added and the entire front was worked over to integrate the addition with the original building, which was erected in 1949. The addition has provided 12,000 square feet more of floor space. The lot, fronting 120 feet on Maryland and 187 feet on Central, provides for parking space off-street for doctors and patients.

Sverdrup & Parcel, Inc., did the architectural work and engineering on the currently finished job.

The building is of fireproof construction with Ozark red-face brick exterior in Indiana limestone trim. The spandrels between windows are white rock face Roman brick. Windows are double hung in aluminum with marble sills. The entranceway at 35 North Central avenue is protected by a marquee with white porcelain enamel soffit and facing, bearing the name of the building in raised letters and the Caduceus symbol worked into the design.

Two ground floor shops are a prescription pharmacy and optical and photographic store. The store fronts are faced with Minnesota rainbow granite base and aluminum plate glass settings. The doors are plate glass in aluminum frames. Concrete floors are covered with asphalt tile in office areas, rubber tile in corridors.

Interior lighting is with incandescent and fluorescent fixtures recessed, along with air diffusers, in a modular pattern.

An automatic elevator serves the lower and the two upper floors. The building is air conditioned throughout, with 70 tons of refrigeration capacity.

The expanded building has 19 custom-designed office suites for physicians, surgeons and dentists, which accomodate 45 practitioners.

The patients' parking lot is north of the building at the corner of Maryland and Central avenues, with space for 47 cars. The doctors' parking lot is west of the building, with space for 33 cars.

All suites were leased before completion by the Ralph D'Oench Co., which manages the property. Financing was provided with a loan of $375,000 by the Ohio National Life Insurance Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, through the D'Oench Co., its correspondent.

Missouri Stables Leased for Three Years as Stables

As the result of a lease signed late Friday, the Missouri Stables will continue to be operated for another three years as a riding, boarding and show stables, H. R. Fridley reports.

Fridley leased the property at 5200 Berthold avenue from the Lambert Engineering Co., 918 South Boyle avenue, which purchased it recently from Clyde Sims.

Fridley, retired two years from the Fridley Brothers appliance distributorship, has been associated with the stables for some time in a riding group; once, as a youth, trained horses for the Tyler Estate. He lives at 5117 Creighton drive, St. Louis.

Would Clear Language Fog Of Building

The St. Louis construction industry was described in a talk by one of its leaders as a "gigantic Tower of Babel that may eventually crumble and be covered by the shifting sands" unless the various elements of the industry learn to speak a "common language."

David Sloss, a mason contractor and treasurer of the Unit Masonry Association of Metropolitan St. Louis, so characterized the industry in a speech before a UMA meeting at the Sheraton Hotel.

Approximately 400 members of the unit masonry industry were present, including manufacturers of brick and concrete block, dealers in stone, glass block, and structural glazed tile, mason contractors, union representatives, materials suppliers and equipment dealers.

"The construction industry, perhaps more than any other," he said, "has got a language problem. We all speak English, but, so far, we haven't been able to communicate with each other. The manufacturers can't talk with the contractors,

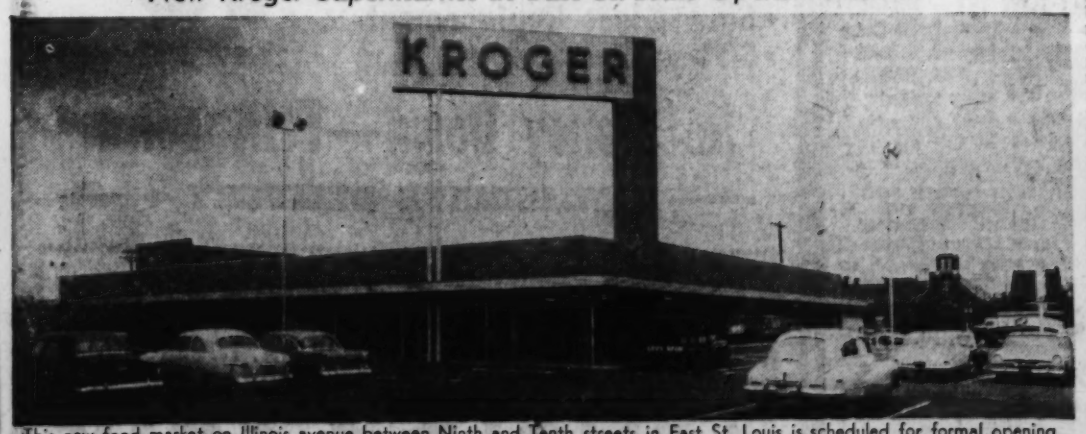
New Kroger Supermarket in East St. Louis Opens Tomorrow



This new food market on Illinois avenue between Ninth and Tenth streets in East St. Louis is scheduled for formal opening at 1 p.m. tomorrow. In a three-acre tract, it is the largest store (19,800 square feet of selling space; 2100 square-foot recreation balcony) in the Kroger Co.'s St. Louis branch and one of the largest in the entire chain. Property was developed by a syndicate composed of Arthur Fischman, Ida Glick, Sadie Schiffer and Louis Steinbaum and leased to Kroger for a long term in a deal negotiated by C. Dean Neel, Kroger's real estate manager here. Ground was obtained in a deal negotiated by the Carl G. Stifel Realty Co. and the Moss Realty Co. of East St. Louis. The Merle-Jun Construction Co. did the building. Parking for 350 cars has been arranged, with entrance from four streets.

St. Louisan Gets Kroger's Realty Division Chair

Appointment of M. W. Mueller, who was associated with the Kroger Co. in St. Louis for 20 years, as real estate manager for the entire company, is reported by Robert Montgomery, director of property. He succeeds Roger B. Conant, who retired recently.

Mr. Mueller

A graduate of the University of Illinois, Mueller also attended Harvard University. He joined Kroger here in 1935, serving in both sales promotion and auditing before entering the branch real estate department in 1937. On military leave from 1944 to 1946, he returned as real estate manager for a nine-branch zone, with headquarters in St. Louis.

In his new position, Mueller will supervise real estate operations for the retail food firm, which operates more than 1600 stores in the South and Middle West.

Ben Franklin Store Opened On South Side

A new Ben Franklin Store was opened last Thursday by Walter H. Boll at 3732 South Grand Avenue, in the building formerly occupied by Kroger on the same block with Sears-Roebuck & Company. Boll is operating under franchise with Butler Brothers.

Boll has had 26 years of variety store experience. He and his family have been residents of South St. Louis many years.

Boll's store is one of more than 2400 Ben Franklin Variety Stores located in every state of the Union, Alaska and Hawaii. Fifty-two of the stores are in Greater St. Louis.

Locally owned and operated, each store benefits from buying power, professional merchandising and promotional programs from Butler Brothers headquarters.

Top feature of this new Ben Franklin Store is self-service, Boll said, in keeping with a growing trend.

James Carl of Butler Brothers' St. Louis office assisted Boll in readying the store for

Ranch Home Sold in Ballas Meadows Subdivision

This is the new home of Eugene F. Kaelin at 12443 Ridgefield Drive in the Ballas Meadows subdivision, a development of the L. John Moresi Realty & Building company. The subdivision is on the west side of Ballas road a short distance north of Manchester road in Des Peres. Considerable building has been done there.

Plumbing Supplies Distributor Will Expand

Pictured are the buildings of Ahrens & McCarron, Inc., 4621 Beck avenue, plumbing, heating, electrical and air-conditioning supplies distributors, together with additional area, part of which the company has just purchased, for expansion. A new 8000-square foot warehouse with added balcony area is to be erected (William Lanting, general contractor) on ground along the railroad (upper central part of photo) to provide for more extensive inventory. House numbered 4556 Tholozan avenue, nearest railroad in upper central part of photo, has just been purchased by Ahrends-McCarron, Inc., from Mrs. Anna Ellis, will be used in connection with the expansion.

Language Fog

the contractors can't understand labor, and labor can't get through to the contractors, the manufacturers or any of the other segments of the industry. Sometimes it looks as though we don't even try to understand each other. Suspicion, selfishness and short-sightedness have left us with twisted tongues.

Chance to Learn.

"Unless we can come together on common ground, recognize that we have common interests, and learn to discuss our problems intelligently and objectively, we may end up like the people who built the Tower of Babel, whose 'language was confounded' and whose work has disappeared from the face of the earth."

Sloss said he felt the Unit Masonry Association, which was formed six months ago, offered an unprecedented opportunity for all of the various segments of the masonry industry to come together to learn to speak the same language and to work together toward common goals.

"We need to work toward better human relations within our own industry and within the construction industry as a whole. We need to work for better understanding between our industry and the public. If we can do this, both our industry and the public will benefit."

Sloss was one of the principal speakers at a meeting planned around the theme, "The Case of the Missing Unit." It was pointed out that the theme referred to the growing competition of substitutes for brick, concrete block, structural glazed tile, glass block, stone, marble and other masonry units.

John Taheny, a Chicago mason contractor who is president of the Mason Contractors Association of America, reported on activities in the masonry industry in various sections of the country. Commenting on the formation in other cities of organizations similar to UMA, he said.

Members of a panel that answered questions from the audience included T. W. Ryan, UMA president, who was moderator; Leo F. Havey, vice president; Elmer Grath, Ted Gast, Robert Craddock, directors, and Walter Kirk and Walter Baker, members.

Dealer Opens New Ben Franklin in Bel Acres Center

Bert Stager Jr. of Glendale has opened a Ben Franklin store in the new Bel Acres Shopping Center at 8935 Natural Bridge road. Stager will be operating under franchise arrangement with Butler Brothers.

Stager has had several years of variety store experience, having formerly owned another Ben Franklin store.

All departments in the store are equipped with newest and most modern self-service fixtures. Counters are stocked with merchandise within easy reach and clearly price-marked, to be taken to a check-out desk by customers.

Air Rights

transit in the air is even more important than the right to operate in navigable waters."

Congress Pre-Empts.

Other supporting cases were cited by the report, including one by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court which "recognized that Congress has pre-empted the field of air traffic regulation in the navigable air space as established by the minimum altitudes of flight prescribed by Federal regulations."

This court, it added, subsequently held that whatever air space is necessary for takeoff or landing is part of the nation's navigable air space. This is referred to as the Gardner case.

"It therefore appears that the Cedarhurst and Gardner cases establish that there is no absolute right of ownership in American law unconnected with the use and enjoyment of the land," the report said.

Courts in Canada have taken the same view, it was reported, where common law prevails.

"It is now evident," the report continued, "that both in common law and civil law jurisdictions throughout the world, the owner of the land is not and cannot be the owner of unlimited air space over his land, but has only a limited right in the air space over his property, a right to be free from unreasonable interference with the use and enjoyment of his land."

CORRECTION!
ALSCO, the world's largest manufacturer of aluminum storm windows and doors, believes it is their obligation and responsibility to you, the home owner, to correct many false impressions that have been created in the storm-screen window business.
Letters and phone calls by the hundreds from all over have been received in our offices from confused home owners wanting to know the answers to several important questions.
Here are ALSCO'S ANSWERS to the questions so important to Home Owners!
QUESTION: Is there really a glass shortage?
ANSWER: Yes. There is an industry-wide glass shortage at present and many orders are being taken which could not possibly be filled. Your solution is to deal with a reputable company with years of experience.
QUESTION: Which company is really the oldest in the aluminum storm-screen industry?
ANSWER: ALSCO. Obviously there are older companies in the home improvement field, but the combination aluminum storm-screen window was developed by Mr. Harry Sugar, president of ALSCO in 1940, and ALSCO was the FIRST in manufacturing these products. ALSCO is also the largest company, with 36 factories throughout the U.S., Canada and Europe.
QUESTION: Are aluminum storm-screen windows really tailor-made?
ANSWER: NOT ALL. Every window made by ALSCO is measured, custom-built, and installed by expert factory-trained technicians.
QUESTION: Are all advertising statements dependable?
ANSWER: We can speak only for ourselves and you are assured ALSCO is violently opposed to misleading advertising.
QUESTION: Does ALSCO sell a storm window or door for less than $10 each?
ANSWER: CERTAINLY NOT. Use your own good judgement and be guided by the following facts:
Here are the FACTS ALSCO believes you should know before buying Storm Windows!
"GOOD HOUSEKEEPING" SAYS: "A single good storm window will cost between $20 and $30 (plus cost of installation), depending on the size of the window." "Beware of come-on advertising. If you're considering buying storm windows, you have probably noticed newspaper and radio advertisements offering such windows at prices much below the figures we've quoted.
"However, firms that use this sales technique are apt to be unreliable in other respects, and we suggest that you have absolutely nothing to do with a transaction as uncertain and frankly shady as this."
"NEW YORK TIMES" REPORTS: "That the matter of deceptive practices is serious can be gleaned from statistics. Most of the complaints concerned faulty installation, delay in delivery, or the refusal of a home owner.
"The two other types of complaints, mostly were the outgrowth of 'bait' advertising. A dealer advertises that he will sell windows for, say, $9.95 each. But when the customer insists on getting them at that price instead of a higher one, delivery is stalled to an unreasonable length of time. Other dealers using bait advertising who find that they cannot make a sale at their own price just refuse to deal with 'uncooperative' customers."
NEW YORK BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU WARNS: "But advertising occurs in the storm window and door business when certain advertisers feature a ridiculously low price for combination storm windows or doors and then do everything possible to discourage or prevent the customer from buying the advertised product while trying to sell him a much higher priced window or door. A company that engages in bait advertising engages in deceptive and unfair business practices. In this field, as in all others, the customer usually gets what he pays for."
NATIONAL GROUP ADVISES: "Here are a few tests you can apply which can indicate a 'bait' advertiser: 1. Is the advertised price ridiculously low? You rarely get 'something for nothing.' When a dealer advertises a combination storm window or door for one-third to one-fourth of the usual selling price, be on your guard. 2. Does the advertiser willingly sell the advertised combination storm window or door—or does the salesman call at your home with a battered sample of obviously poor quality? Does he then 'knock' this combination storm window or door—tell you this cheap window really won't do justice to your lovely home, and then tries to sell you one of higher price?"

United Nations Planting On Carbondale Campus Distinguished and Varied

By ELEANOR B. McCLURE
Post-Dispatch Garden Writer.

Midwestern gardeners may some day be growing superior new flowers, shrubs, evergreens and trees, thanks to William M. Marberry, botanist at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill. As a by-product from extensive trips to the Orient and Europe, he has introduced such exotic plants as hardy bamboo, Chinese hollies, and choice English magnolias and yews.

In addition to quantities of imported seedlings, cuttings and bulbs, Marberry has found unusual plants at American nurseries, and has brought in native shrubs and trees from fields and woodlands. The result, a veritable "United Nations" planting on the Southern Illinois campus, is surely one of the most distinctive and varied in the Midwest.

Moreover, Marberry is such an enthusiastic booster for the Order-of-the-Green-Thumb that Carbondale is winning fame as a gardened community. Exceptional collections of hollies and other broad-leaved evergreens attract many visitors. In the spring there are rare daffodils and irises in infinite variety, while autumn brings brilliant displays of chrysanthemums.

Shows Spring, Fall.

"There's tremendous interest in gardening here," Marberry says. "As a matter of fact the increased enthusiasm for gardening in all parts of the county is perfectly amazing. I keep wondering where it will lead us. Here in Carbondale we have five garden clubs and a federated garden club council of from 150 to 200 members. Each year we have spring and fall flower shows, held in conjunction with the extension department of the University. This fall almost 5000 people attended the flower show."

Marberry, who is superintendent of planting as well as assistant professor of botany at Southern Illinois University, says that his landscape projects on the campus were started in his student days. At that time there were no evergreen plantings, but he began to make boxwood cuttings in 1939, soon after he joined the university faculty.

While serving in the Air Force in World War II, he managed to acquire quantities of seeds and cuttings in China and India. Chinese hollies, grown from seeds collected at St. John's University in Shanghai, show all kinds of interesting variations, not only in leaf form, but in hardiness as well.

On a recent sabbatical leave, he visited and photographed gardens in Spain and France, many of them along the beautiful Riviera. Journeying to the bulb country in early spring, he selected some 8000 bulbs and plants for the university. He reached England in June, at the peak of the spring season—and also, by a singular coincidence, just in time for Queen Elizabeth's coronation! Later in the summer he enjoyed an almost continuous garden tour in the Scandanavian countries.

Rare plants and trees brought back from Marberry's travels serve as laboratory specimens for his advanced botany students, who must be able to identify at least 400 exotic plants. Such oddities as the metasequoia tree are often the subject of feature articles by journalism students. Each year the stately hollies and evergreen magnolias become a part of the Christmas festival, when they burgeon with many-colored lights.

This campus planting also serves as a test garden. During the last three drouth summers a strain of English yews, strangely enough, proved surprisingly resistant to heat and drouth. The color and the texture of this plant are also so superior that Marberry hopes eventually it can be introduced by midwestern nurseries.

Barberry For Hedge.

Although many plants are grown as hedges on the campus, Marberry says that the best by far is evergreen barberry, Berberis julianae. "It's the fool-proof hedge plant," he declares, "and is fine for public places. It will grow equally well in sun or shade. It can stand intense heat or bitter cold and is drouth-tolerant. This plant is disease-resistant, too, and so far has not been attacked by a single pest.

"With us the second-best hedge plant is convexa holly (Ilex crenata convexa). Of course, if there is plenty of room, pyracanthas are wonderful. The hardy orange is a fine hedge plant. It has wonderful twig formations and is good for flower arrangements."

There are many kinds of magnolias on the campus. Marberry likes Magnolia stellata (the starry magnolia) because it blooms so profusely. "Even if the tip blooms are nipped by frost, other buds open along the branches," he explains. "One of the magnolias I brought from England resembles Magnolia soulangeana, but it blooms later, and the flowers are whiter."

Among the interesting deciduous trees is a fine Japanese maple (Acer japonicum). This tree seems to think it is an evergreen, Marberry says, for it blooms and leafs out very early and holds its foliage so long in the fall. The leaves were still lush and green at a time when other maples stood with almost denuded branches.

Leaf Texture Intrigues.

Marberry, who has quite a flair for garden design, is intrigued by the interesting leaf texture of many plants. "The bamboos and yucca fit in well with modern architecture," he says. "We grow a hardy dwarf bamboo that won't get more than three feet tall, and it does well in shade or sun. Then there is the golden bamboo (Arundinaria sulcata). Nandina domestica has a distinctive leaf texture, and we like Cytisus praecox, the Warminster broom."

Marberry has a very full schedule, teaching botany, planning and supervising plantings for the campus, lecturing, and even, on certain gala occasions, making distinctive flower arrangements. Yet he manages to find time for a pleasant hobby—gardening!

At his home in Carbondale there's a spring-to-frost succession of flowers displayed against a background of broad-leafed evergreens. In another plot, at the rear of his mother's residence, rows of small hollies (various kinds of named varieties) are separated by rows of seedling irises—for he is a hybridizer, too!

Then, because no real gardener ever has enough room, there is "the farm," a delightfully wooded spot where many choice plants grow happily in the shade of venerable oaks.

Taking Cutting of Laurel

The man who brought plants to Carbondale from all parts of the world, William M. Marberry, assistant professor of botany at Southern Illinois university, takes a cutting of English laurel from his own garden, where he has grown some outstanding specimens of American and Chinese holly and many other broad-leafed evergreens.

Mobiloil Appoints

Henry J. Muller has been named assistant manager of Socony Mobil Oil Co.'s central region, H. T. Ashton, central region manager, reports. Socony Mobil's central region, with headquarters in Chicago, includes five marketing divisions and covers 16 states, extending from Ohio west to Wyoming, Montana and Colorado; and north from Kansas and Missouri to the Canadian border.

Muller has been manager of central region's White Star Division, with headquarters in Detroit, since 1946. He will be succeeded as White Star division manager by Harry J. Peckheiser, manager of the Pontiac (Mich.) district.

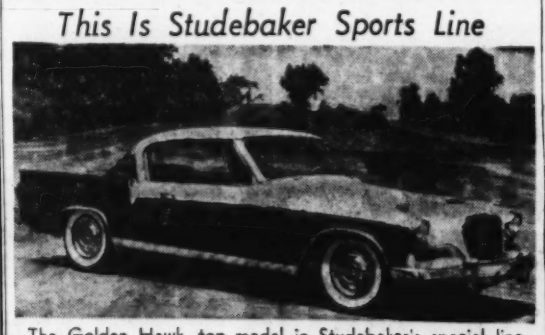
All-New Styling for 1956 Cars

The new President Classic four-door sedan is to be highly popular with women because of its styling and ease of handling despite an increase in size that makes it more than 17 feet long and almost six feet wide. It is offered in a wide choice of two-tone color stylings that, according to the company, are eye-catching for both their flair and good taste. Two-color interiors are available in a broad choice of new fabrics and vinyls, decorator-harmonized with exterior color selections. The Classic is presented by Studebaker as the highest powered car in the volume low-price field, with 210 horsepower. Along with other models in the new Studebaker lines, it has more than 30 major safety features. The new lines include 16 different basic models — 12 in the President V8, Commander V8 and Champion sedans and station wagons, and four in a new sports-type line.

This Is Studebaker Sports Line



The Golden Hawk, top model in Studebaker's special line of sports-type models, is the highest powered car in the low price class for 1956. It has a 275-horsepower 352-cubic inch V8 engine, developing 380 foot pounds of torque at 2800 revolutions per minute. It has four-barrel carburetion and a compression ratio of 9.5-1. The 5-passenger model is 17 feet long, six feet wide, less than five feet high, in sharp contrast with Studebaker's new standard models which have moved to a big design. Three other sports-type cars round out the special line, first full line to be introduced by an American auto manufacturer: the Sky Hawk, with a 210-horsepower V8 engine; Power Hawk with 170-horsepower V8; and the Flight Hawk with a 6-cylinder in-line economy engine of 101 horsepower.

Housewife Wins '56 Car

Mrs. Willis W. Marshall, 2607 Salem road, Brentwood, housewife, won a new automobile in the nationally-televised "Dodge for Life" contest. She appeared in the finals of a safety quiz on the Lawrence Welk show in Hollywood, and narrowly lost the grand prize to another housewife, Mrs. Lloyd Conkling, of Mt. Vernon, O., who will receive a new car every year as long as she lives. Mrs. Marshall is shown with Gus Rizzo, Richmond Heights (Big Bend Motor Sales, Inc.), from whom she will receive a 1956 car as "consolation prize."

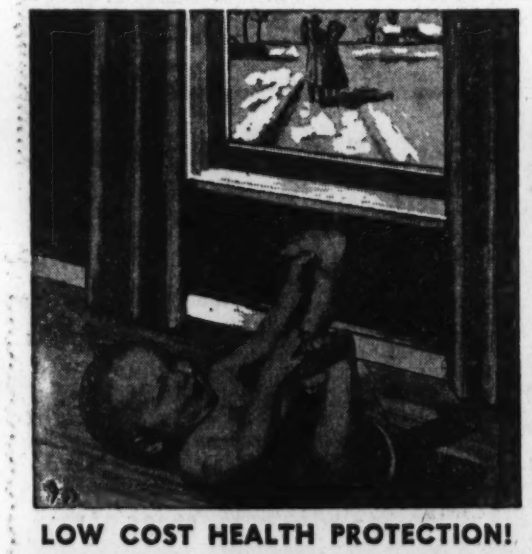
Now you can test the new, improved TRANS-KLEER in your own home without risking one cent! Lots of folks already know about TRANS-KLEER from their neighbors. But if you have never tried them, here's your chance to get them on a FREE HOME TRIAL BASIS. Mail the coupon below and a 36x432-inch kit—108 SQUARE FEET—will be shipped you immediately with the vacuum-suction ADHESO border. Deposit only 2.95 plus postage with your mail man. Then try TWO windows in any room of your home. Test them. See how different TRANS-KLEER is from other plastic storm windows. Note especially how the ADHESO border grips and seals. See for yourself how easy it is to seal out drafts. Now compare the temperature—any 25c thermometer will do—yes, compare the temperature with any other room in your home! See the difference! Feel the difference. Then YOU be the judge. If you're not convinced they're every bit as effective as any GLASS storm window on the market—if you don't agree they are BETTER by far than certain other plastics—if you aren't thrilled with the way the special ADHESO border seals out wind and cold—KEEP the two windows and return the balance of the material for refund of your 2.95 at once! Note: TRANS-KLEER is NOT sold in stores. To get yours you must mail or bring the coupon with you. To be fair to all we are forced to place a limit of 2 kits per coupon.

NOT 49½c BUT ONLY 29½c For This 10.8 Sq. Ft. WINDOW

STRETCHES WITHOUT BREAKING!

NEW and DIFFERENT—the new TRANS-KLEER Storm Window has amazing tensile strength of 2750 pounds per square inch! Push it with your foot—it stretches—then springs back undamaged! Newly developed ADHESO border seals it tight with vacuum-suction action. This is exclusive with TRANS-KLEER. New reduced price 29½c per window. Formerly 49½c.



LOW COST HEALTH PROTECTION!

WINTER COMFORT! You can hardly see the new Trans-Kleer Storm Window—it's so transparent. And it protects you and your loved ones from wintry beats and humidity. Comes with special Adheso Border that grips and seals with vacuum-suction action. A genuine TRANS-KLEER kit is your cheapest winter health insurance because it gives your family COMPLETE protection! It's sold only direct from factory-to-user and costs only 29½c per window!

INSTALL IN JUST 5 MINUTES!

So simple. So easy! The lady of the house can do it in 5 minutes flat! No hooks, nails, tools, screws. Just trim off the required amount to fit the inside of your window, large or small, rectangular or round. It makes no difference! Then press on the new ADHESO border and the storm window is in place for winter-long protection. Over five years of experience and special manufacturing processes went into its development. ADHESO borders are now easier than ever to apply and they give you positive vacuum seal. Yet they lift without peeling of paint or varnish. A big, 90-foot roll of the new ADHESO border is included with each kit.

SAVE OVER $130 ON WINDOWS ALONE

Good Glass storm windows cost you about $14.00 each, depending on size and quality. For ten you'd have to pay $140.00. They're fine if you don't mind the cost and waiting time, but if you want to save and get real winter protection at ONCE, then the sensible buy is TRANS-KLEER. For pennies you enjoy cozy comfort. Besides you save plenty on fuel bills. You also get COMPLETE cold weather protection for your entire family and you need not contend with broken glass, your first cost is your only cost!

Over 2 Million Windows Sold Last Year

For years, now, demand for TRANS-KLEER Storm Windows has been at fever pitch. Demand always outstripped our supply. Returning members of the armed forces told of its amazing qualities. This word of mouth advertising helped us sell over 2,000,000 last year, yet the demand was hardly tapped. We were forced to cut down on advertising. Thousands of home owners were disappointed. We have been able to install new, better machinery and have increased production this year. However, the TRANS-KLEER plants can turn out only so much and no more. We refuse to use hurry-up methods. Consistent quality has built us TRANS-KLEER'S reputation during five successful years. Therefore we have been forced to place a limit of 2 KITS per home. We feel this is fair to all.

This Amazing Test Proves Resistance To Winter Gales

Put a large electric fan only 10 inches from an OPEN window and a candle on the inside as shown. Now put up your TRANS-KLEER leaving the window OPEN. Light the candle and turn on your fan. You'll be surprised to find that the candle won't blow out even if the window is left open as shown. This is proof positive of TRANS-KLEER'S amazing sealing action! Over 5 years experience and know-how go into TRANS-KLEER'S super efficiency. Now . . . the new ADHESO border with vacuum-suction action gives you even better winter protection.

LOW FIRST COST! NO UPKEEP COST!

TRANS-KLEER comes in kits measuring 36 inches by 432 inches. That is enough for 10 to 12 windows measuring 9 to 11 square feet each. Naturally smaller windows cost you less while larger windows use more material. In all you receive 108 SQUARE FEET! for only 2.95, complete with a 90-foot roll of the new vacuum action ADHESO border. For example: a full 10.8 square foot window only costs you 29½ cents. Imagine it—genuine, original TRANS-KLEER guaranteed quality for only pennies more than the cheapest plastic storm windows made at the lowest price in the U.S.

TO AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT ORDER AT ONCE

Over 80,000,000 people are noticing this ad in hundreds of newspapers and magazines. It is being broadcast over radio and TV stations everywhere. Last year thousands of late orders could not be filled. Do not wait until freezing weather strikes! Play safe! Rush the coupon now and get your storm windows at once on FREE HOME TRIAL BASIS. If you wish to save postage costs, send money order, cash or check for 2.95 and it will be shipped at once—postage FREE. Limit—2 kits per coupon. In any case, remember you must be satisfied! Use enough for 2 windows at our risk. If you are not delighted return the balance of material for immediate refund of your 2.95.

WARNING!

READ THIS BEFORE YOU BUY ANY PLASTIC STORM WINDOWS!

Don't confuse the original TRANS-KLEER with cheap materials that have been rushed into the market as a result of TRANS-KLEER'S fabulous success! This is the original TRANS-KLEER!

NEW IMPROVED TRANS-KLEER IS NOW 7 WAYS BETTER!

Years of research by one of the world's greatest industrial firms have gone into the perfection of the new TRANS-KLEER. No other material whether sold by mail or thru stores can offer you all these advantages. We suggest you compare these features BEFORE you buy imitations for pennies less!

1—HIGH CRYSTAL-LIKE VISIBILITY

A fortune was spent in perfection TRANS-KLEER on your windows! Never cloudy, milky or yellowish like inferior materials.

2—MADE WITH QUALITY RESINS

A fortune was spent in perfecting TRANS-KLEER in the laboratory. As a result TRANS-KLEER is guaranteed not to chip, crack or peel for 3 YEARS!

3—SNUFFS OUT FLAME AT ONCE

Test it yourself. TRANS-KLEER snuffs out any flame instantly. Beware of cellophane type material. Of course they're cheaper — but they are definite fire hazards!

4—TRANS-KLEER IS NON-POROUS

You'll never find pin holes in TRANS-KLEER because it is never made from low cost second or rejects. You get far better cold weather protection.

5—NEW IMPROVED TAPE

The new ADHESO tape that comes with your kit has far greater holding strength —result of years of experience. No nails, screws or tools needed. Never mars window frame. Lift tape for easy airing, then just press back into place.

6—HIGH TENSILE STRENGTH

In a recent test, TRANS-KLEER proved to have higher tensile strength than 5 other brands tested. Yet it costs only pennies more than the cheapest sold! It pays you to get the genuine and original TRANS-KLEER. It's backed by years of know-how. TRANS-KLEER offers you positive satisfaction or an immediate refund.

PLAY SAFE! GET THE GENUINE!

Avoid imitations! Don't take chances with your family's comfort and health just to save a dollar or less! Order the one and only original and genuine TRANS-KLEER direct from our factory and enjoy winter-long protection.

OUTSELLS ALL OTHER BRANDS— 20 TO 1— DIRECT TO HOMEOWNERS

Year after year, more genuine TRANS-KLEER Storm Windows have been sold direct to the consumer than all other brands combined. Users of TRANS-KLEERS are our greatest boosters. They have found that TRANS-KLEER'S superior quality features do a better job. They know from experience that the special ADHESO border, exclusive with TRANS-KLEER, really seals out winter cold and saves you dollars in fuel bills. It's easy to apply and never mars the woodwork.

USE YEAR AFTER YEAR:

Never shrinks or discolors!

You can use TRANS-KLEER Storm Windows year after year. Certain plastics become yellow or shrink after being exposed to heat or light. The developers of the new TRANS-KLEER created a FLUID type plastic that resists climate changes. It remains supple and transparent for years. It never gets hard or brittle—never cracks. Easy to clean, too! No soap! A damp wash rag cleans away dust or grime. People who know, prefer TRANS-KLEER over any other brand, because they are so much better. It's no wonder that so many home owners, hospitals, public buildings and churches have adopted the TRANS-KLEER way to fight winter's colds and humidity.

LIMIT: 2 KITS PER COUPON

MILLIONS OF YARDS USED BY U. S. ARMY IN ALASKA AND ICELAND

One of the baffling problems facing American and Allied generals in World War II was how to protect troops and equipment against the ravages of Arctic winters. This type material was chosen because of its many superior qualities. Some millions of yards were moving from defense plants to Canada, Alaska, the Aleutians, Iceland, Greenland and the cold European theatres of war. This material could not be purchased for love or money in those critical days. Every last inch went for defense of our men, guns, ships, planes and weapons. Our boys came first and the public had to wait. Finally it was released to the public and ever since, the demand has been greater than the supply. This year's genuine TRANS-KLEER is better than ever! Greater tensile strength, more transparency and better sealing qualities. NOTE: We do not sell unneeds or army surplus goods. Not sold in Army and Navy or other stores. TRANS-KLEER comes fresh, direct to you from the factory. It is quality-controlled from order to user. Get yours now! Mail coupon today.

Lift Adheso Border for Airing

Anytime you want to ventilate your rooms just lift the special Adheso border. Then press back on and window is sealed as tight as before! The special formula ADHESO border is exclusive with TRANS-KLEER. It was developed as a result of over 5 years' experience and know-how by the world's greatest distributors of plastic windows direct to the public. ADHESO has vacuum-suction action. Seals extra-tight yet never peels off paint or varnish. Not available with any other type plastic storm window on the market.

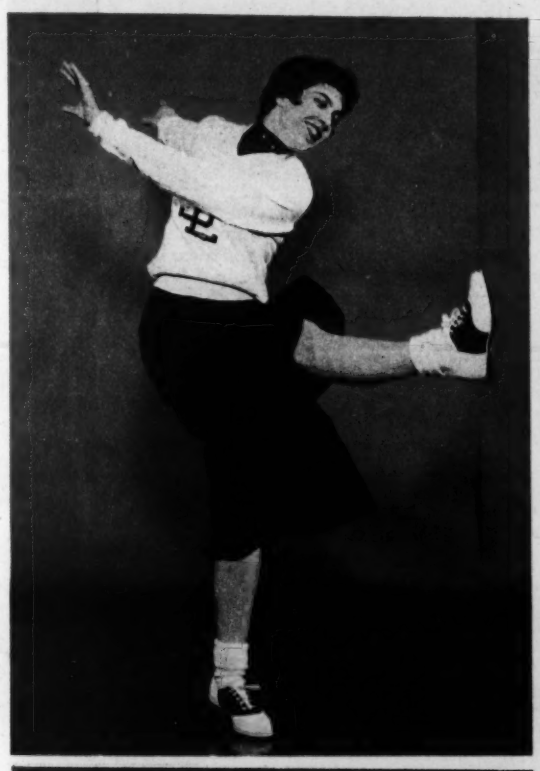
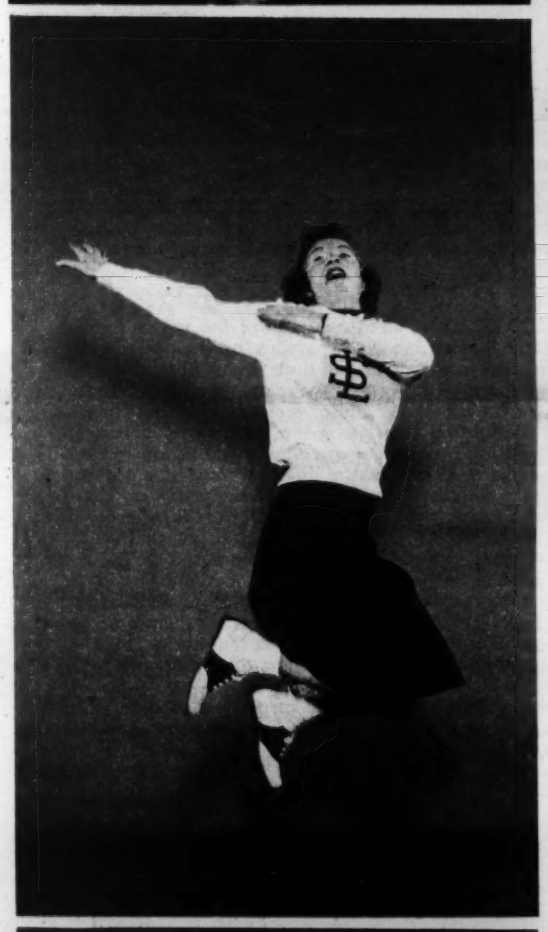
St. Louis U's Cheerleaders



Weeks Before Basketball Team Starts Its Workouts, Cheering Squad Begins Precision Drills



MORE THAN A MONTH BEFORE St. Louis University's basketball team has its first workout each year, another university squad begins drills. Whenever the team takes to the floor in competition, the cheerleaders swing into action from the sidelines. The concerted precision of the cartwheels, handstands, jumps and syncopated handclaps in their pleas for fight and more fight results from practice sessions that began the first week of school.

In the heat of battle, the 12 members of the group sometimes spring into improvised, spontaneous bits of action. They give out with infectious leadership of mass ebullience when the home team is ahead. When things look bad, their calls for heroic action are rallying cries. In victory or defeat, they add color to the game, whet the excitement of spectators, keep up a high pitch of responsiveness between crowd and team.

St. Louis University became co-educational in 1908. It was not until 1948, however, that girls became cheerleaders. This year's captain, Barbara Koob, is the first girl to head the group, which elects its own captain.

These photos show the eight regulars and four alternates at a recent practice session in the university's gym. The eight regular cheerleaders will make their first appearance next Saturday night when the Billikens have their first game of the season against Louisiana Tech at Kiel Auditorium. The four alternates will cheer at three home games this year—along with the regulars—move up to be regulars next year.

THE EVER-PULSATING AIRPORT

With seconds to go before his plane taxis to a runway, a passenger runs through the rain toward boarding ramp. There are more than 215 scheduled airline arrivals and departures daily at Lambert-St. Louis field by planes of six passenger lines.

Taut-faced travelers line up at the ticket counter. This is where tempers frequently flare between weary clerks and impatient customers. With batteries of telephones jingling almost constantly, clerks work much of the time holding a receiver in one hand, scribbling with the other.

Wind and rain are added problems for these passengers, anxiously bent on reaching their plane. Close to a million and a quarter passengers will pass through the airport this year. The biggest jams, occasioned by the holiday season, will occur between now and the end of the year.

Comings and Goings of Passengers and Planes Create the Feel of Adventure

Several ways of waiting it out are represented in photograph above and the two below. Passengers purchase daily at airport more than 500 newspapers, nearly 600 magazines, 175 packs of gum, 850 candy bars and 500 packs of cigarettes.

Passenger fills out insurance policy at one of six insurance-writing machines in lobby. Most insurance policies are filled out during the daytime rush hours at a counter where an attendant is in charge. Insurance business at airport is steady, shows no appreciable increase following a major airplane crash.

LAMBERT-ST. LOUIS FIELD is, of course, one of the nation's chief air terminals. Each day some 7000 persons arrive and depart.

About half that number originate or end their flights here, the other half are through passengers. And most of the latter take advantage of their transient visits for the air equivalent of a seventh-inning stretch.

Despite the fact that flying has become a usual form of travel, there always is the pulsating feeling of adventure around an airport. There are the passengers who are just a little nervous in partaking of a form of movement heretofore reserved exclusively to birds. There are others, quite as concerned, who make a great show of being entirely casual about the business. And there are still others who go about it as matter-of-factly as they board a streetcar.

Core of the airport, as far as the passengers are concerned, is the administration building. Here tickets and baggage are cleared, insurance purchased, goodbys said. Here those who must wait for their planes try to find ways and means to pass the weary minutes —reading, writing on improvised lap-desks, eating, napping. Or simply strolling about watching the goings-on.

And ever and irrepressible is heard the airport's signature song —the crisp, crackling, loudspeaker announcements telling of the comings and the goings of the airport's only purpose in life, its planes.

Photos by SAM CALDWELL of the PICTURES Staff

Family reunions and farewells are common and touching occurrences near passenger gates outside administration building. Sometimes there are tears. Children, in their excitement, often seem to reflect a vicarious thrill at proximity to planes and passengers. The airport has four rush periods daily: 8 to 10 a.m.; 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.; 4:15 to 8 p.m.; 9:10 to 9:30 p.m.

ZOO'S SIMIAN MOTHERS

Solicitous, They Rear Their Young in Contrasting Ways

Jarvis, older half brother of baby Alphonse in pictures at right, feeds himself and is otherwise pretty much on his own. However, he still has close affection for his mother. Jarvis and Alphonse had same father. They are long-tailed macaques, a species found in Southeast Asia and Malaysia.

Although Alphonse already is a gay young man about the monkey house, he feels more secure when close to his mother (as shown in photos above and below). She treats him sternly but lovingly. Alphonse, whose ears and hair style make him easy to recognize, captivates children visitors at the zoo. Baby monkeys do not cry and make little other noise. They get their first bananas when about six or eight months old. Monkeys are born with powerful hands, enabling them to hold firmly to their mothers for trips through the trees.

EVEN MOTHER MONKEYS have differing views on the care and upbringing of their offspring. This has become evident in the raising of baby monkeys born at St. Louis Zoo. Alphonse, a long-tailed macaque born September 28, already is learning manly independence, as is his half brother Jarvis who, at 17 months, is in late childhood. In captivity, mother macaques unrelentingly train their young to be self-reliant. Alphonse, for example, is being taught to climb the bars of his cage.

On the other hand, a white-bellied spider monkey, only three days younger than Alphonse, is being so solicitously sheltered by its mother, who carries it about, that zoo keepers hardly have become acquainted with the little fellow. Because they have so little inkling of its personality, the baby still has no name.

Just what views the fathers hold on psychology of baby monkey care have not been determined. The father macaque lacks the gentle touch and is not kept with Alphonse. Papa spider monkey, proud and mild-mannered, is caged with his family, but does not so much as lift his tail to help in rearing the baby.

Photos by JACK GOULD of the PICTURES Staff

Zoo's first baby white-bellied spider monkey clings to its mother, who grasps bars with her hands, feet and tail. Appearance of animal when its appendages are spread resulted in spider name. This variety comes from Brazil. Spider monkeys can hang by their tails. Macaques use theirs only for balancing.

Inside a prisoner-of-war mess tent, an Egyptian soldier indignantly raises his hands as his photograph is made against his wishes. His cohorts, beside a well-filled table, have turned their backs.

PRISONERS OF WAR

Egyptians in Israeli Camps as Result of Undeclared Conflict

Prisoners in this Israeli compound spend their time aimlessly sitting or standing. In background, sentries stand watch from tower, which is fitted with a searchlight.

FROM THE BEGINNING of organized wars, a by-product in human misery has been the suffering of captives who must while away their time in prisoner-of-war camps.

While the repeated clashes between troops of Israel and Egypt, since the two countries signed an armistice early in 1949, have not been officially declared a war, the intermittent border fighting has resulted in captives being taken by both sides. No exact figures are available on how many men are now in the stockades of either country.

This month, after the heaviest fighting between Israeli and Egyptian forces since 1948 took place in the El Auja-Nizana demilitarized zone, Israel claimed to have captured 40 Egyptians. A spokesman in Cairo said the Egyptians had taken "some" Israeli prisoners in the fighting. These men, along with others taken in previous engagements, now live inside barbed wire inclosures, as the United Nations tries to work out a formula for peace.

A 25-year-old Egyptian lieutenant, left, reviews some of the 80 men he commands inside the camp. He identified himself as Samir, nephew of Abdul Rahman Azzam Pasha, former Secretary General of the Arab League.

Behind a tall fence of coiled barbed wire, a row of prisoners stare at the outside. Tents which house the Egyptians are behind them.

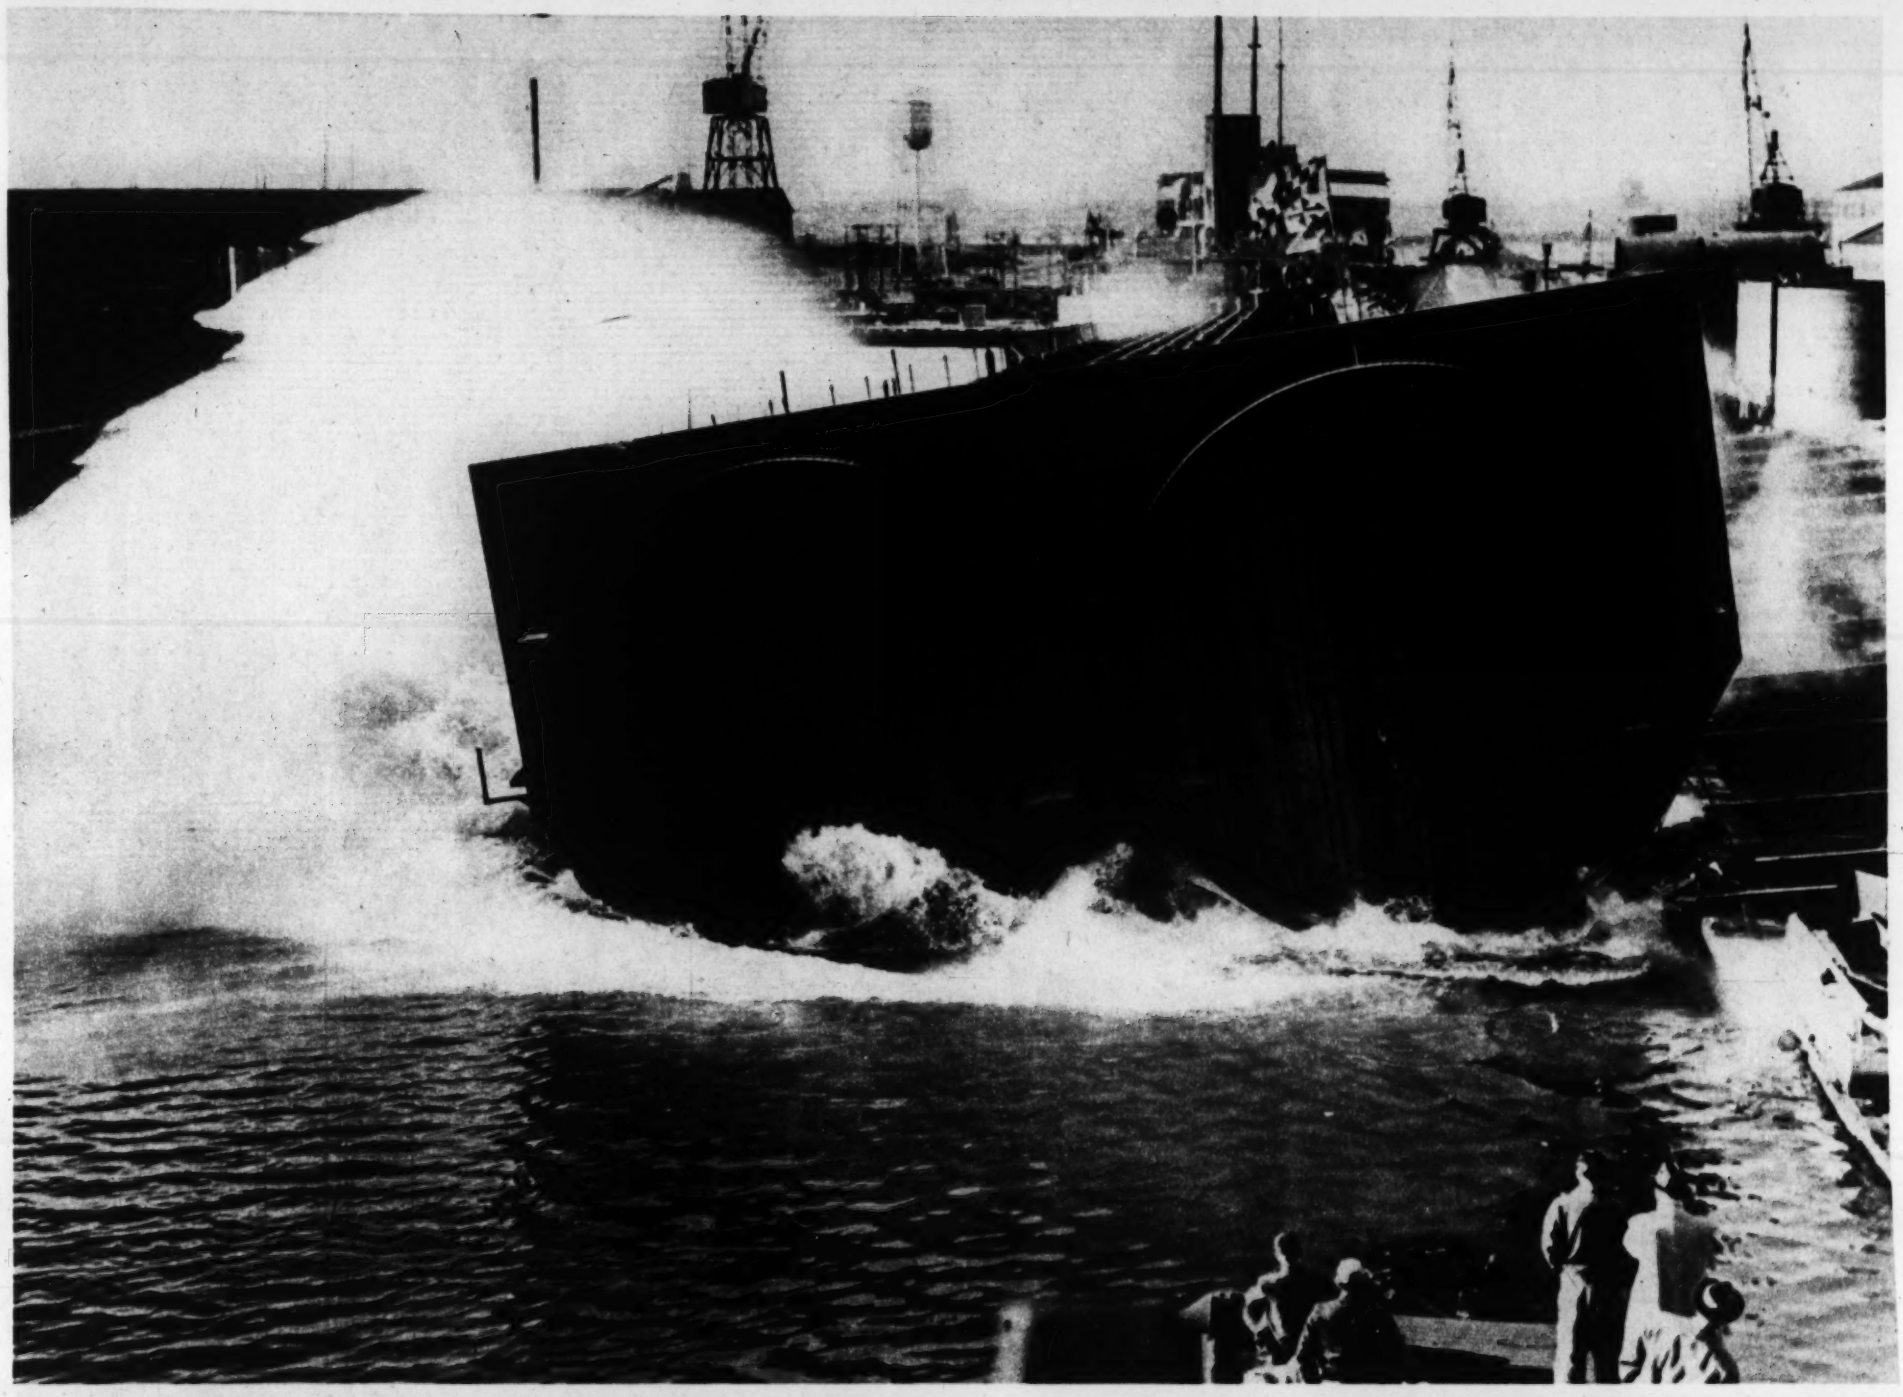
TUNNEL TAKES TO WATER

Section of Vehicular Tube for Baltimore Harbor Is Launched for Towing to Site



Tons of water splash into the air as a twin-tube section of the Baltimore Harbor Tunnel slides sideways into slip at the Maryland Shipbuilding and Drydock Company in Baltimore. This 300-foot-long steel segment will be towed to the tunnel site in southeast Baltimore. There, it will be submerged and joined with 20 other like sections. For reinforcement, the sections will be embedded in concrete. Finally, the bulkheads at ends of each section will be cut away. Each tube in the dual vehicular tunnel will carry two lanes of traffic below the Patapsco River. The tunnel will cross the Baltimore Harbor between Canton and Fairfield communities, just outside Baltimore. When the project is completed in 1960, it will enable north and south traffic to bypass downtown Baltimore and most of the city. The tunnel will cost an estimated $40,000,000. A bond issue has been voted to pay for the construction of the tunnel and several miles of approach roads. The tunnel is expected to pay for itself with tolls.

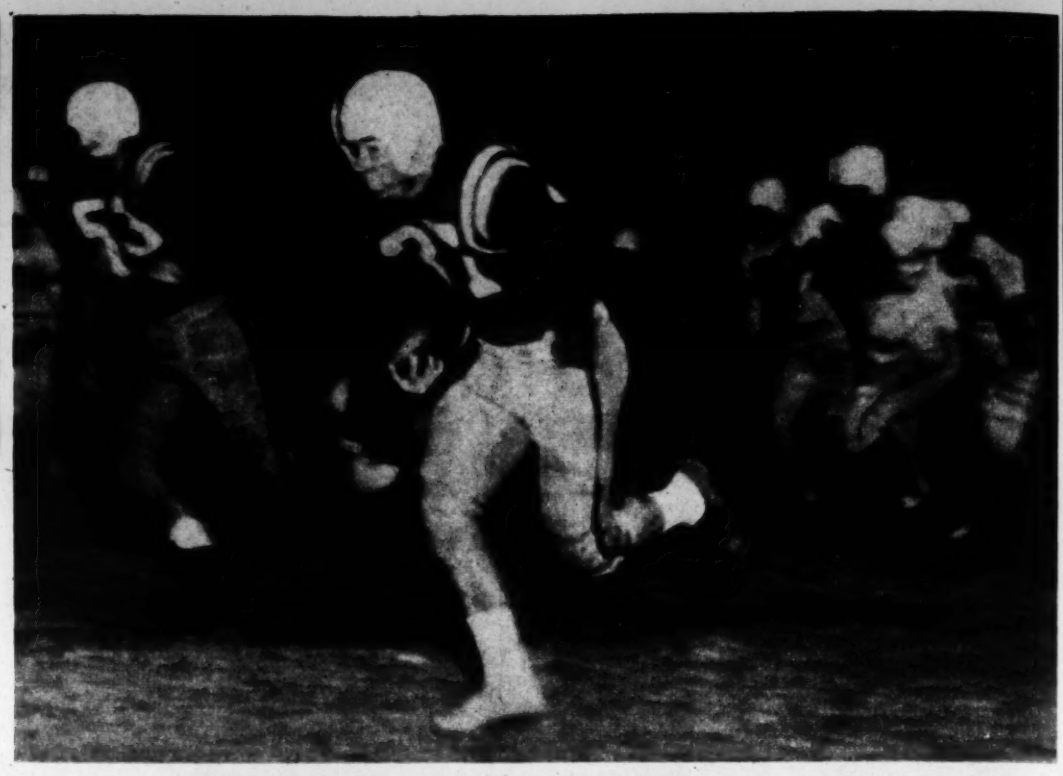
Unusual bits of by-play often are submerged in the violent action of football games. Most would pass unnoticed were they not recorded in photographs—like these examples caught by camera coverage in the 1955 season. At right, Halfback Tobin Rote of the Green Bay Packers seems to be throttling Guard Chuck Noll of the Cleveland Browns as he tries to break Noll's hold on his jersey and get away on a sweeping end run.



Like a certain nursery rhyme character, Halfback John Paul Johnson of Ardmore races down the field on a 45-yard touchdown run in an Oklahoma high school game, heedless of the fact that he has lost a shoe.

Intimate Bits of the Unusual That Often Pass Unnoticed by the Stands

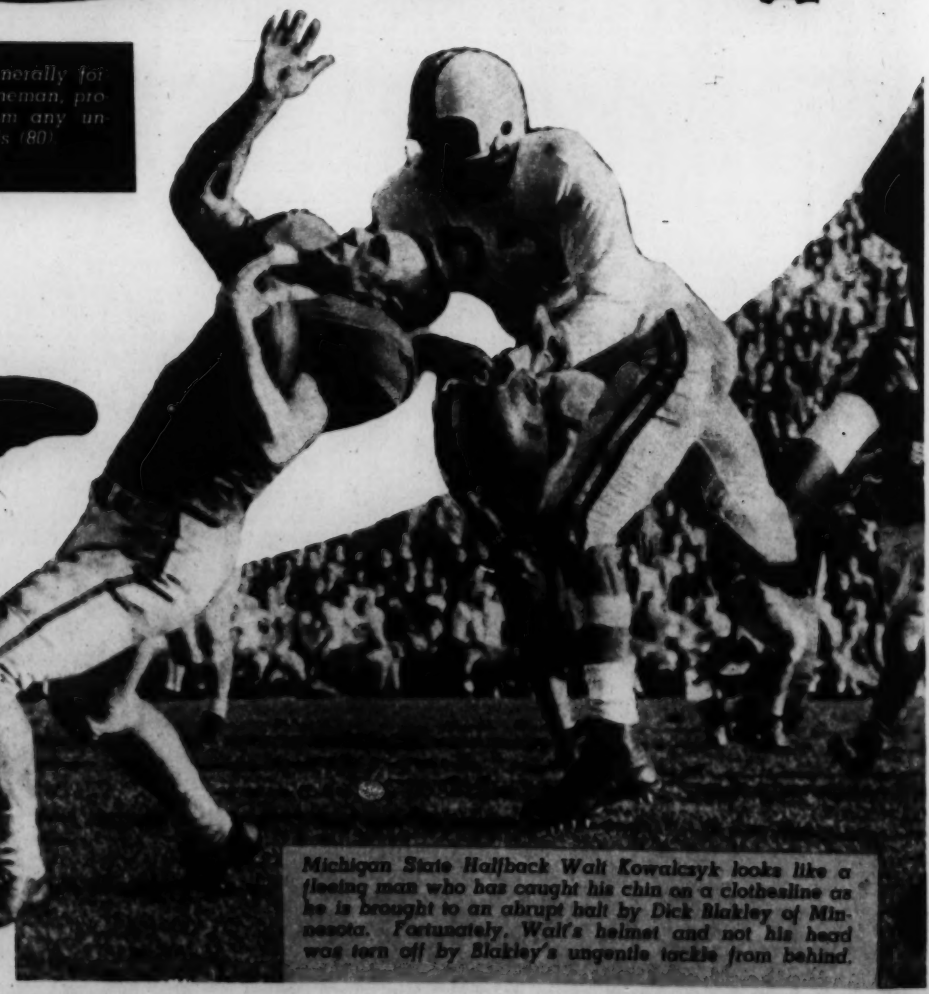
End Leo Brown of Ohio State is not only extremely chagrined but in quite a precarious position as the ball sails through his clutching fingers in what was intended to be a touchdown pass in Stanford game.



Michigan State Halfback Walt Kowalczyk looks like a fleeing man who has caught his chin on a clothesline as he is brought to an abrupt halt by Dick Blakley of Minnesota. Fortunately, Walt's helmet and not his head was torn off by Blakley's ungentle tackle from behind.

VIGIL FOR THE DEAD IN MEXICO

Huddled in shawls and blankets, Tarascan Indian women and children, with lighted candles and covered containers of food, keep a night-long vigil at the graves of relatives on Janitzio Island in Lake Patzcuaro, Mexico. It is the Tarascan way of observing Mexico's "Day of the Dead." There are no tombstones in the island graveyard; each family marks its burial plot by its own arrangement of small stones. Gifts of fruit, bread, fish and other food are later eaten by the mourners. Men are not permitted in the cemetery, except vendors of candles and foodstuffs. Lake Patzcuaro is in the state of Michoacan, to the west of Mexico City.

WINTER'S WARNING

As winds swirl the season's first snow, pedestrians on a Minneapolis street clutch coats and hats at an intersection. The bareheaded woman, at right, tries to prevent her hair from blowing. Children of Minneapolis got busy making their first snowmen. In other parts of Minnesota, roads were made hazardous by a five-inch snowfall.

IN THE CENTRAL TIME ZONE, winter officially begins at 11:12 a.m. on December 22. But the weather, with its usual disregard for the calendar, has already jumped the gun, brought discomfort and hardships to parts of the nation. High winds, snow and ice have made appearances in spots around the country, with indications of rougher weather yet to come.

This month a temperature of 26 degrees below zero was recorded in Montana; on the same day, Texas and Florida had a balmy 72 degrees. Minnesotans and New Yorkers have found use for their snow shovels. High winds have struck numerous communities, felling buildings in Michigan, Indiana, Arkansas.

In St. Louis, where it is not necessary to be an old inhabitant to learn to expect the unexpected, November came through with its usual extremes. One day, residents sweltered in 81-degree heat. The next day, the mercury sank to 24.

Waters of Lake Erie, pushed by high winds, pound away at a road outside Buffalo, New York, and break against building, in background. Debris from lake shore installations litters foreground of the picture. A freezing temperature glazed some Buffalo streets and halted traffic.

From the ice-coated superstructure of the ore carrier S.S. Benjamin Fairless, Captain L. J. Brissette directs docking of the vessel at Gary, Indiana. The ship which brought 17,362 tons of ore from Duluth, Minnesota, was incrusted with an estimated 250 tons of ice. It was forced to buck winds of more than 75 miles an hour on its run down Lake Michigan.

Workers probe among wrecked vehicles, smashed by a 30-foot-high wall that was knocked over by the wind. The wall had been constructed as part of an addition to a warehouse in Detroit. One man was killed by the tumbling cement blocks. Another suffered chest and back injuries.

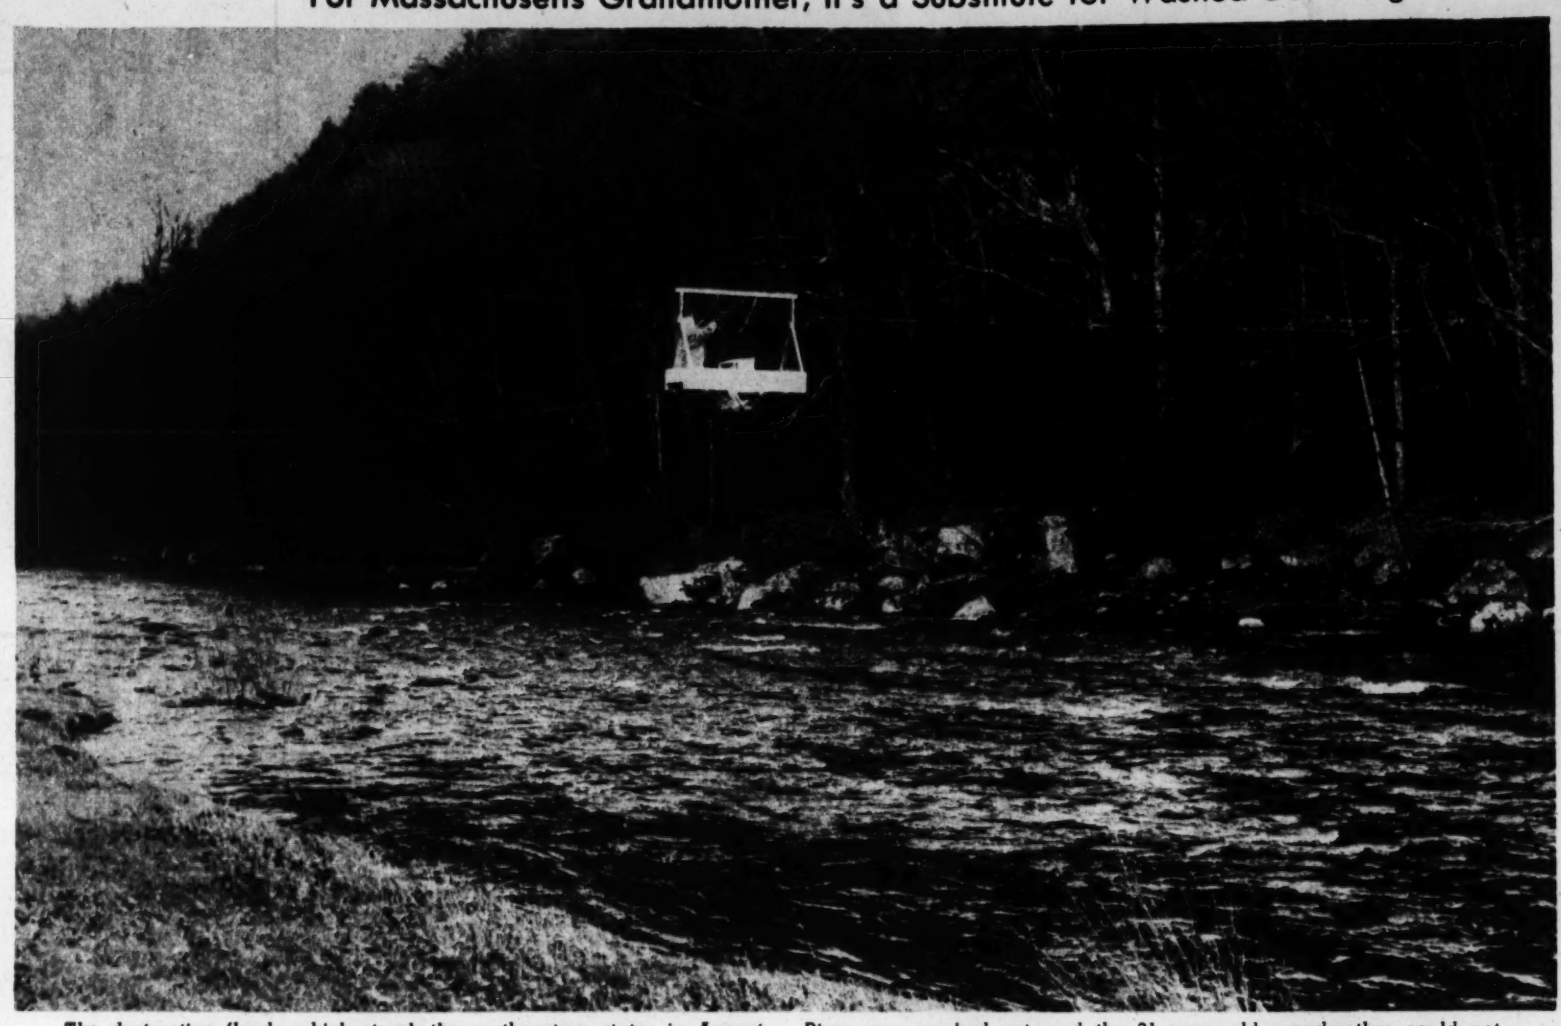
Woman-Powered Aerial Ferry

For Massachusetts Grandmother, It's a Substitute for Washed-Out Bridge



The destructive floods which struck the northeastern states in August left Mrs. Frances Platt high and dry. She couldn't get to her job of rest home nursing and tax collecting. The only bridge between her house, near New Boston, Massachusetts, and the other side of the Farmington River was washed out, and the 61-year-old grandmother could not handle a boat in the swift stream. So a cable car, a relic of a government geological survey, was installed and put at her disposal. Here Mrs. Platt pulls herself, hand over hand, across the 90-foot stretch of water.

Carrying a nurse's satchel and the town tax books, Mrs. Platt climbs the cable car tower preparatory to a ride across the stream. Upon reaching the other side she drives two miles to her nursing job. The Platt house, nestled on a hillside a short distance from the tower, is surrounded by mountains and dense forest that make it inaccessible except from the river side. Mrs. Platt's husband is a 74-year-old retired New York hardware manufacturer.

Forty feet above the river, Mrs. Platt is shown on her high-wire ride. She doesn't mind the aerial ferry. But she is looking forward to a new bridge which the state has promised to build.

YOUNG ROYALTY

From the day their birth is heralded, the few authentically royal children left in the world attract attention in and out of their respective countries. Here, at an Amsterdam airport, former Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands waits with her four granddaughters for the arrival of the girls' parents, Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard. The Princesses are, from left, Marijke, Beatrix, Irene and Margariet. Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard returned home this month from a Latin-American tour.

Vegetarian Entree From India

1. Rao cuts an unpeeled potato into cubes. Eggplant is also cut into cubes, and the other vegetables into smaller pieces.

2. Mustard seed is browned in butter until it pops, then chopped red pepper, dried peas, caraway seed and turmeric are sauteed in same pan.

3. Chopped green hot pepper and nuts are stirred into mixture and are browned lightly.

By MERNA LAZIER

IN INDIA, COOKING is a major accomplishment of both men and women, and much importance is attached to the aesthetic appeal of the completed dish. A. Sathyanarayana Rao of Bangalore, India, a graduate student at Washington University and Missouri Botanical Garden, prepares a vegetarian dish, which is mildly hot, called chou-chou-bath.

Rao cuts up vegetables which may be varied with the season or the individual taste, and then sets them aside while he prepares the sauce, or garnish, as it is referred to in India. This is done by first gently heating the mustard seed in butter. Too much heat will cause the seeds to pop out of the pan. To this is added chopped red peppers, dried yellow peas, caraway seed and turmeric. Ingredients are tossed until well coated with the butter mixture, then chopped green hot pepper and peanuts are added, stirring constantly to prevent burning.

Diced potatoes and string beans are cooked for about 20 minutes in this mixture, and other vegetables are added during this time according to time each needs for cooking. Rice is steamed while vegetables are cooking and is tossed into mixture along with the coconut, lemon juice, spice mixture, and salt to taste just before serving. East Indians never warm foods over, any leftovers being passed on to others or discarded.

The poppads (rice wafers) that accompany this dish may be purchased ready-made at gourmet shops, or may be made at home. To make them, unhusked rice is soaked overnight, then drained and warmed in a pan in small quantities at a time, then pounded with a mallet. The pounded rice is soaked again for a short time, drained again and pounded to a flour. This is moistened with enough water to make a dough and rolled into thin wafers about four inches across. They are fried quickly in a frying pan containing just enough fat to cover the bottom. The wafers keep almost indefinitely and are served crushed over food.

INGREDIENTS: Two green peppers, two small onions, one small eggplant, one-fourth pound string beans and one large baking size potato. For the sauce—two tablespoons butter, one teaspoon mustard seed, two small red peppers (fresh or dried), one tablespoon yellow split peas, one-half teaspoon caraway seed, one-eighth teaspoon powdered turmeric, one fresh green hot pepper, one-fourth cup peanuts or cashews; one-half teaspoon of a mixture made up of a teaspoon each of red pepper and curry, and a dash each of ginger, cinnamon, clove and black pepper. Two tablespoons shredded coconut and juice of half a lemon. Three-fourths cup rice steamed in one and one-half cups water. Amounts will serve about four.

DRAMA BACKSTAGE

Process Server Plays Villain at Chicago Opera

The curtain had just come down on a performance of "Madame Butterfly" at Chicago's Civic Opera House. In the midst of a group of other performers and admirers, the soprano lead, Maria Meneghini-Callas, remained on-stage, still listening to cheers from the audience. At that moment, eight men from the United States marshal's and the Cook County sheriff's offices moved in. Deputy Marshal Stanley Pringle hurried up to Madame Callas to touch her flowing kimono with a court summons. The prima donna's immediate reaction is shown here. The voice, for which she receives some $2000 a performance, is raised in outraged protest. Pringle, left, walks away with a look of painful duty done. Madame Callas is one of two leading sopranos of the famed La Scala Opera in Milan, Italy. She has signed an agreement to open the Metropolitan Opera's 1956-57 season.

Still glaring at Pringle, Madame Callas is led to her dressing room by an assistant stage manager, Ralph Hull. Fellow singers and well-wishers had tried to keep the squad of process servers from reaching her, but the officers claimed to have accomplished legal service by touching her with two subpenas, which she left lying on the floor. The summonses concerned suits brought by E. Richard Bargorzy, a New York attorney. He claims to be the discoverer of the New York-born singer, and to have signed her to a contract guaranteeing him 10 per cent of her earnings.

Sultan Sidi Mohammed ben Youssef addresses his people from a specially built platform at the imperial palace in Rabat on his return to the throne after 27 months of French-imposed exile. France had hoped the banishment would help quell the Moroccan nationalist movement. But, instead, the action further inflamed the Moroccans' desire for independence.

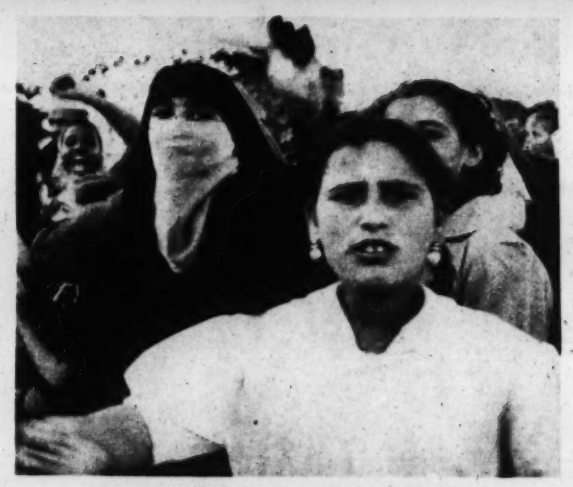
Ben Youssef Is Back on Throne

Sultan Plans for Greater Freedom, But Trouble Persists in Morocco

Ben Youssef occupies throne for first time since August, 1953. Beside him are his oldest son, Moulay Hassan, left, and another son, Moulay Abdalla.



Women join in welcoming the Sultan back. Some who habitually wear veils removed them for the occasion.

United Press Photos except as noted

DESPITE Sultan Sidi Mohammed ben Youssef's return to the throne, tempers remain hot in Morocco. Even after he announced the approaching end of the French protectorate, there were sporadic outbursts of violence.

Ben Youssef's imperial palace itself became the stage for bloodshed. The Caliph of Fez, who in the past had opposed ben Youssef, was stabbed to death and another man was killed in a brawl when the Caliph went to the palace to make peace with the Sultan.

But ben Youssef's pronouncements indicated the Moroccans had made big strides toward their goal of independence. The Sultan promised a representative democratic government, in the form of a constitutional monarchy. It appeared, however, that Morocco would continue to be linked with France, economically and in international relations. Details are yet to be worked out in negotiations with the French.

Troops carefully guard ben Youssef's open car as he proceeds to his palace after visiting a mosque following his arrival in Rabat. He flew from Paris in a four-engined plane. Another plane carried his wives, concubines and household servants. French troops saluted smartly when ben Youssef stepped from his plane.

EXPEDITION TO CALIFORNIA

Film "Seven Cities of Gold" Is Based on Spanish Explorations

1. Father Junipero Serra (Michael Rennie, left), a member of an expedition traveling from Mexico to Alta, California, in search of the fabled Seven Cities of Gold, is threatened with being sent back. The expedition leader, Don Gaspar de Portola (Anthony Quinn, right), is put out with Serra because the padre insists on appeasing Indians with trinkets instead of intimidating them with guns. A listener, as Serra wins his point, is another expedition member, Lieutenant Jose Mendoza (Richard Egan).

2. Serra's main object for being with the expedition is to gain converts for the Catholic Church. But in California, the priest also finds time to teach such arts as pottery-making to the Indians. The expedition runs into troubles. One of the ships which made rendezvous with the land group has to return to Mexico for supplies. Then Indians, after one of their boys is beaten by a Spanish soldier, attack the expedition camp. Matuwir (Jeffrey Hunter, left), grandson of the chief, is seriously wounded and taken prisoner.

3. Serra saves Matuwir's life, nurses him back to health and they become good friends. Matuwir joins other Indians working in the expedition settlement.

4. Upon the death of his grandfather, Matuwir (in ring at right) bests the tribe's strongest man in a wrestling match and thus becomes chief. Serra and Jose are invited by Matuwir to witness the test in which their Indian friend becomes head of the tribe.

5. Jose, meanwhile, strikes up a romance with Matuwir's sister, Ula (Rita Moreno). When Portola, unable to find Monterey Bay and with the supply ship long overdue in returning, decides to return to Mexico, Jose tells Ula he cannot take her with him. She runs away in grief, slips, falls to her death from a cliff.

6. Seeking revenge for Ula's death, the Indians cut the settlement off from water, draw up to massacre the Spaniards. Jose gives himself up to placate the Indians, walks from the stockade towards the Indian camp and sure death. Portola and his expedition head south, but on the first rise sight their ship returning with provisions. The company returns, establishes a mission on the site of what is to be San Diego, plans other missions along the California coast.

Enjoy the thrill of real railroading...with Gilbert

AMERICAN FLYER!

● Only American Flyer gives you the excitement and action of real railroading. It's almost like riding the cab of a big loco when you're at the throttle of your American Flyer train. That's because they're scale models of the real thing—and run on 2-rail track, too. Listen to that built-in whistle...see the red glowing smoke puff out, in time with the big driving wheels! Choose from all new American Flyer sets, from $19.95, including transformer and track. Enjoy real railroading fun this Christmas...with American Flyer!

New for '55! American Flyer Mountaineer. 4-6-2 loco hauls four scale-model freight cars. A masterpiece of realism! Has all the famous American Flyer features. Complete with track, transformer... $29.95* No. 5510T

See new American Flyer trains and accessories in action at your dealer's today! Made by A. C. Gilbert, manufacturers of famous Erector Sets

2-Rail, Flat-Top Track! Just like the kind real trains run on. There's no old-fashioned third rail in the middle to make your layout look like a toy.

Rugged Pull-Mor Power! Watch your locomotive haul over forty cars and climb steep grades. Nothing like it anywhere for real pulling power.

Scale-Model Realism! American flyer trains look right! Never too stubby, never too long. That's because every 3/16" equals one foot of real train.

Real Smoke and Choo-Choo! Locos puff red glowing smoke and have real choo-choo sound effects. Both are timed to the action of the driving wheels.

These Exclusive Features Mean More Railroad Realism! Only American Flyer has 'em!

*Slightly higher Denver and West

Send for this DOUBLE-VALUE OFFER!

192-page book: How to Build and Operate a Model Railroad. Hundreds of illustrations. A wealth of ideas on how to plan and build your own railroad.

Brand new full-color American Flyer catalog. Shows you every train: all accessories, too. 44 pages of action and fun.

Both only 25c—or write today (or catalog, only 10c)

Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAROLD R FOSTER

Our Story: THERE COMES A DAY WHEN PRINCE VALIANT EMERGES FROM THE TENT AND DRAWS A DEEP BREATH, AND FAINTLY ON THE CLEAR MORNING AIR COMES THE UNMISTAKABLE TANG OF THE SEA!

ALREADY THE MOORINGS HAVE BEEN CAST OFF, THE OARS SHIPPED, AND THE BOATS ARE MOVING. VAL FLEXES HIS MUSCLES...

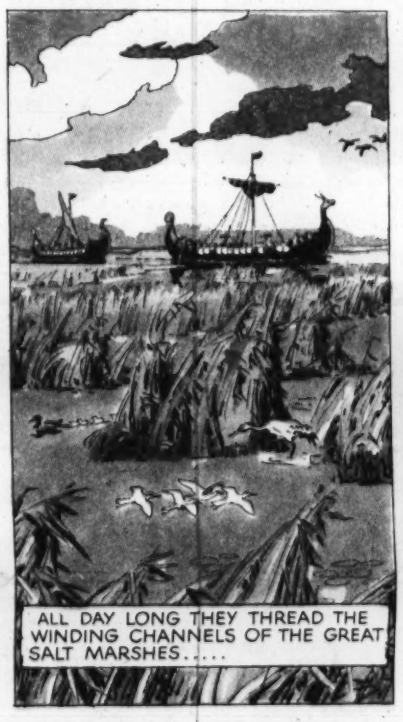
...AND TAKES SOME LIGHT EXERCISE!

ON THIS VOYAGE VAL HAS TWICE BEEN INJURED, AND EACH TIME BECAUSE OF POOR PHYSICAL CONDITION. PRINCE ARN ALSO BEGINS TRAINING FOR HIS FUTURE.

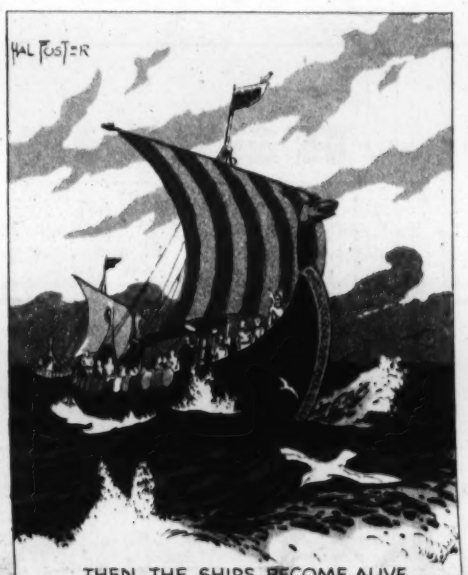
A WARRIOR MUST LEARN TO HANDLE HIS TOOLS WITH SKILL, SO SHARPENED WEAPONS ARE USED IN THE EXERCISES. ARN LEARNS THE HARD AND ONLY WAY.

"OLAV IS SKILLED AT TREATING CUTS, AND IT IS BEST THAT ARN BE AMONG VETERAN WARRIORS WITH HIS FIRST WOUND. HE DARE NOT CRY!"

981 11-27-55



ALL DAY LONG THEY THREAD THE WINDING CHANNELS OF THE GREAT SALT MARSHES.....



HAL FOSTER

.....THEN THE SHIPS BECOME ALIVE... WITH SHOUTS AND SONG THE NORTHMEN SET THE GREAT LEATHERN SAILS, FOR ONCE AGAIN THEY FEEL THE HEAVE OF THE OPEN SEA UNDER THEIR KEELS!

NEXT WEEK—The Rune Stone.

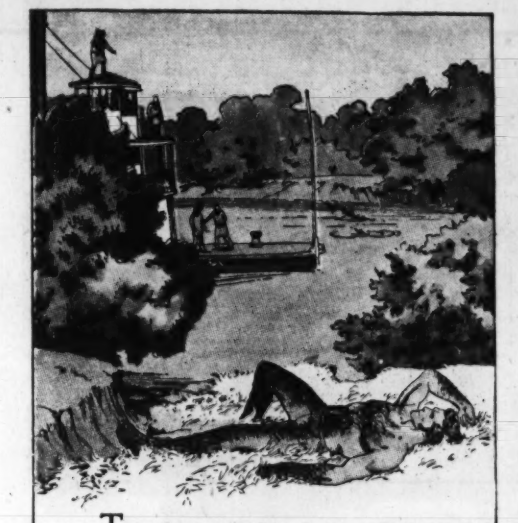
LANCE



Two days ago Big Fallon challenged Lance to a test of endurance—a race for three days and nights!

Now the mountain men can't find Lance's body. They are about to give up hope when a lookout cries: "Hol' up! THAR HE BE!"

Tom Fitzpatrick and Blaze bring him in, exhausted and groggy with sleep.

"C-Couldn't make it," Lance mumbles. "Fallon outran me . . ."

"I don't reckon he did," Tom says.

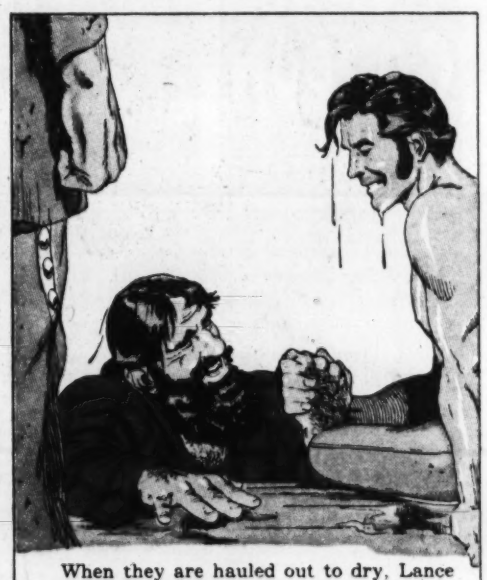
". . . Fallon, he pulled away from ya come dark th' first night, but then he doubled back an' has been sleepin' on th' boat ever since! He run only 30 miles—I reckon you run 150!"

Fallon scoffs. "Hunnert an' fifty ain't nawthin'! I could of did three, four hunnert easy!"

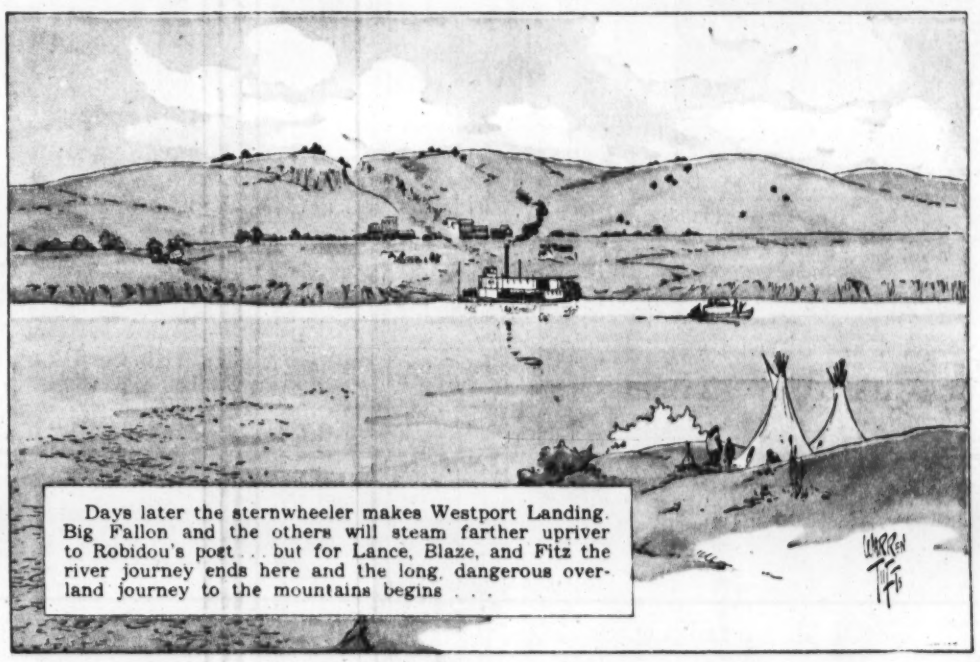
Lance's jaw tightens. He moves forward.

"Wait, now, jist rein up a minnit, boy—don't do nawthin' yew'll be sorry for. Here, have a real Spanish SEE-gar—"

"—rrooOOOLLLP!!" Lance hits him like a ton of bricks . . . Their thrashing bodies churn the water to foam.



When they are hauled out to dry, Lance and Big Fallon decide they can't afford to be enemies. A friendship is made, founded on mutual distrust!



Days later the sternwheeler makes Westport Landing. Big Fallon and the others will steam farther upriver to Robidou's post . . . but for Lance, Blaze, and Fitz the river journey ends here and the long, dangerous overland journey to the mountains begins . . .

SPECIAL ISSUE:

PARADE VISITS RUSSIA

A firsthand report by Jess Gorkin, Editor of PARADE

Photography by David P. Preston

A message from the Publisher

ABOUT THIS ISSUE...

Today's PARADE is unique in our 15-year history. Never before has an entire issue been devoted to a single subject. But the subject of this issue is so important that we are departing from our usual well-rounded editorial fare.

Since World War II, nothing on earth outside America's borders has been more important to America than the other giant power among nations: the Soviet Union. What Russia does—what Russia is—affects every one of us.

This is why PARADE recently sent Editor Jess Gorkin and staff photographer David P. Preston for a close journalistic look at the Soviet Union. They were the first such reporting team to be allowed into Russia. They came out with so many good stories and such a wealth of photos that even this special issue cannot do them justice.

This special issue will give you, the American reader, a chance to see for yourself — and judge for yourself — a cross-section of Soviet life today. It is apparent, I think, from this report that the standard of living in the Soviet Union is still 30 to 40 years behind America. However, it is also apparent that genuine material progress is being made — progress which if directed against us could be dangerous indeed to our way of life. My conclusion is this: Behind the smiles of the leaders and the improving life of the people they dominate still lies a potential threat to America so long as Communism rules them.

I am sure you, too, will find this issue provocative of sober, serious thought.

Sincerely,

Arthur H. Motley

NO. 1 RED Nikita Khrushchev (r.) tenders PARADE's Editor a beaming handshake as another American correspondent performs the introductions.

THE DOOR OPENS—A LITTLE

by JESS GORKIN

Because they are on ball bearings, the five Red Stars atop the Kremlin spires in Moscow. (see front cover) change direction as the wind shifts.

An American correspondent looking out of his National Hotel room, across Red Square from the Kremlin, could read a hidden meaning into those shifting stars. Today's Soviet leaders have shown they, too, know how to change direction. To paraphrase an old Leninism: The new approach in 1955 has been to smile, smile and once again smile. (Those smiles can be deceptive — and to date there are no signs that the basic goals of Communism have changed.)

In order to bring PARADE readers a close-up of the new look in pictures and text, Dave Preston and I toured Russia for a month. We went into the Kremlin — and beyond it. We talked to factory worker Alexei Trokhov, collective farmer Boris Borislovich, athletic coach Vassily Sedorka, school principal Nicholai Yermichken and scores of other Russians. We met top Government leaders and took color photos of them.

In many places we were the first Americans the Russian people had seen and they were genuinely friendly. The anti-American propaganda that has been ground out wholesale for the best part of 35 years apparently had not penetrated very deeply into these individuals.

But an air of secrecy does prevail.

Until six months ago it was considered a serious crime to give statistics to a foreigner. It remains nearly impossible to obtain telephone books or maps of city streets. The last national census was taken in 1939 and there are no accurate figures available on the size of any city in the Soviet Union.

Like other visitors, we were taken in tow by able, educated guides and interpreters supplied by Intourist (the state tourist office). Their function seemed to be exclusively to show off museums, libraries and scenic vistas. Requests for a look at anything else brought out the old Russian proverb: "An uninvited guest is worse than a Tartar."

This attitude also carried over into some of our other dealings. Twice in Moscow we enlisted the help of English-speaking Russians who were not on the Intourist staff. One then departed suddenly on a two-week vacation and the other developed a high fever during the night. Or so we were told.

Fortunately, we discovered early in our visit that an Intourist guide usually respects the person who refuses to take no for an answer and occasionally shouts at him. So we began mixing tact with shouting, and the results decidedly improved.

What You Can—and Can't—Snap

As the door opened, we traveled to a number of leading Russian cities, including Kiev, Odessa, Tiflis, Rostov and Stalingrad. We visited and photographed a textile factory, a collective farm, a People's Court, a maternity hospital, a fashion show, a movie studio, food markets, beer halls, homes of factory workers, primary schools and universities, new housing projects, sports events. We were not permitted to photograph bridges, military installations, railroad tracks, airports, heavy industry or locks on the Don River Canal.

We learned two points of paramount importance from our Russian trip: 1) To appreciate even more our American way of life; 2) That the U. S. must remain strong and alert while exploring the bumpy road to peace and friendship.

Many things to remember . . .

Russia at random: The U.S.S.R. lacks adequate ground transportation, so people in a hurry get around by air. This included us (above). The largest commercial planes, we found, are two-engined jobs similar to our pre-war DC-3. Short hops at low altitudes, dirt landing fields, no seat belts, no meals served — these were standard. . .

The crew consists of a pilot, copilot, radioman, engineer, sometimes a stewardess. Pilots don't warm up their engines before take-off. At least two pilots like chess as much as flying — we found that out when we were grounded because of lightning storms. (The Russian air fleet takes no chances with turbulent weather.) Maintenance? Each time a plane lands, it is checked by at least one mechanic with a screwdriver . . .

Small Russian cars (Pobeda and Moskvich) invariably stall while waiting for traffic lights. Compared to other European capitals, Moscow has very few bicycles . . .

Most men's neckties are drab — and few men wear them. No men wear bowties. Hats are less popular than caps (for men) and kerchiefs (for women) . . . To the U. S. eye, Russian women seem unfeminine. Not many are pretty by our standards. Many do heavy labor. It's hard for an American to look on and allow a woman porter to pick up luggage — but when in Russia, do as the Russians . . .

Movie studios in Russia turn out 45 films a year. Cost per movie is about $600,000 and 85 per cent are in color. Directors earn 3,000 rubles a month ($750) and a 60,000-ruble bonus per film. Practically no Russians have heard of Marilyn Monroe . . .

Big shots' cars have white curtains in the rear windows . . . Many of the men in the Republic of Georgia look like Stalin, who was a Georgian: short, swarthy, with thick black hair and mustaches . . .

Russian beer halls are called pevnoyzals and have individual stand-up tables instead of a bar . . . Most Russians parrot identical answers to political and economic questions. The masses have been led to believe people in the U. S. are starving . . .

War material is closeted from Western view, but several times we heard big guns booming in the distance while waiting for our plane to refuel. Only once did we see a jet plane overhead — on the outskirts of Rostov . . .

Russians frown on tipping . . . A Russian grin often reveals a row of stainless-steel teeth . . . There are very few redheads in Russia . . . Moscow has few cats and dogs . . . There are no adding machines in the U.S.S.R. All businesses, including banks, use the primitive abacus . . . Russian ice cream is thinner than ours . . .

No homes have window screens . . . Russian children receive no spending money . . . There is no golf or baseball in the Soviet Union . . . Eighty per cent of doctors are women . . . Few Russians smoke pipes or cigars. Their cigarettes, roughly Turkish in origin, require half a dozen matches apiece to keep lighted . . .

A bulletin in the courtyard of an apartment house in Stalingrad had this pertinent information: "Study circle begins first of month, prepare yourself. All neighbors in flats should live in peace and not quarrel. Trees and bushes planted here are not to be destroyed, people should take better care. Save lights" — and then the crowning blow, a list of people who hadn't paid their rent on time . . .

The most commonly used words in the Russian language are: spaseba (thank you), nyet (no), pozhaluista (please) and khorosho (good) . . .

Russia's "classless" society now consists of five classes: Communist party members; top military; bureaucrats and intellectuals; police and enlisted men (all services); factory workers and peasants. Draw your own conclusions. ■

SOVIET SYMBOLS

Dead hands still guide the nation

Mausoleum. Building being repainted (l.) is St. Basil's Cathedral, now a museum.

Something no visitor to Moscow ever forgets is the patient lineup waiting to enter the Lenin-Stalin Mausoleum in Red Square. Open 15 hours a week, the flat-topped granite building draws queues up to a mile long. Men, women and children shuffle along, snaillike, in all weathers, climaxing perhaps hours of waiting with a few seconds inside. There, in a "crystal bubble" bathed in pink light, lie the heavily guarded bodies of Lenin and Stalin (allegedly embalmed, but looking suspiciously like wax effigies). The people stop, peer, then move on.

Lenin died in 1924, Stalin in 1953. Living, they strove ruthlessly to make Communist Russia world-dominant. Dead, their influence still pervades the nation. The lineup outside the Mausoleum is one symbol of this. There are others throughout the U.S.S.R.

"Sorry—you'll have to wait—today is the day of the week I put Drāno in all the drains."

A sink's best friend is Drāno—when it comes to getting rid of dangerous sewer germs that lurk in every drain. Those germs breed in muck that liquid disinfectants can't budge. But Drāno's churning, boiling action dissolves the muck, keeps drains germ-free and free-running.

Make one day a week Drāno day. Put Drāno in every drain for about a penny a drain. Won't harm septic tanks. Makes 'em work even better. Get Drāno now at any grocery, drug or hardware store, here or in Canada.

There's nothing like Drāno . . . to keep drains free-running and sanitary.

'Long live the Soviet Union, created by the will of the people.'

Looking like a group of Christmas carolers on a Currier & Ives card, orange-scarved Young Pioneers raise their voices in the Hymn of the Soviet Union. The occasion is a patriotic assembly in their Pioneer Youth Palace in Rostov-on-Don, in the Ukraine.

Behind these fresh-faced children loom the profiles of the Russian deities Lenin and Stalin, ever-present reminders of the ever-present state. A single school may be sprinkled with as many as 50 such "inspirational" pictures, posters and statues.

SURROUNDED BY SLOGANS, pigtailed youngsters are spoon-fed Marxist line at this Pioneer Youth assembly. Slogan on right pylon exhorts, "Fearlessly develop self-criticism and criticism of others." Such assemblies, with uniform programs, are a regular feature at Soviet schools and youth palaces.

YOUNG, DEDICATED – and RED

School, youth programs and indoctrination keep Russian children busy. Here is a close-up of the generation that holds the key to world peace

BEHIND THE borders of Russia, millions of children — even the Russians do not know the exact number — are growing to adulthood. They hold the key to the world's future: they could develop into a new crop of die-hard militarists, or they might ask nothing but to live in peace. Today, the seeds are being sown in a way alien to most Americans. In some ways, Russian children — rosy-cheeked, warm-hearted, many of them — resemble nothing so much as American kids in ill-fitting uniforms. But there are differences — strong differences — in them, and in their way of life, that stand out in sharp relief.

Even before a Russian child is born, he feels the impact of the state. His mother receives free pre-natal care and listens to a steady drumfire on the glories of motherhood. Her child will never escape this mother-hen benevolence, this hammering indoctrination.

When he is two months old, he will be placed in a state day nursery, while his mother returns to work. At 4, he enters kindergarten; at 7, school; at 9, membership in the Young Pioneers youth movement; at 14, possibly, membership in the Young Communist League. Among them, they will provide his education, his recreation, his religion, even his very dreams, thoughts and ambitions. Youth is the hope of the Soviet Union, and every resource converges on him to see that he never forgets that destiny.

Does the child resent it? PARADE talked to dozens of Russian youngsters in the schools of Moscow and Tiflis, the "Youth Palace" of Rostov-on-Don; to older students in Kiev. A single word sums them up: dedicated. One girl of 16 was asked to describe her hopes for the future. "I hope," she answered a little stiffly, "to be allowed to go to Siberia and help to build a new country." So it is hardly surprising when apple-cheeked youngsters like those at left show no symptoms of restlessness, but instead pitch fervently into the Young Pioneers anthem. A youth leader translated their hymn for PARADE like this:

The Pioneer Youth Anthem

"Whose smiles are these? Whose eyes are sparkling?

"It is those who will become Young Communist League members and who are now Young Pioneers.

"Pioneers don't waste a moment.

"Never, never be idle or sad.

"Every morning greet with the Pioneer salute.

"We are going to build our country, with the Pioneers marching joyously forward.

"We are going to help the adults to build a happy life in our country."

The anthem's "keep busy" theme cornerstones the whole youth-training program. Russia has little juvenile delinquency, although newspapers recently have been shrilling about "hooliganism," and one reason is that children simply have no time to misbehave.

A typical 13-year-old seventh-grader staggers under a six-day, 30-hour school load, spends a minimum of two hours a day twice weekly at the Pioneer Youth Palace and is assigned at least three hours' homework a night. His summer vacation lasts only from July 1 to September 1, though augmented by a week in winter and a week in spring.

His curriculum is stiff as well as busy. In Sokolnichesky District School No. 1 in Moscow, which PARADE visited, a seventh-grader studies history, constitutional U.S.S.R., mathematics, physics, biology, chemistry, Russian grammar, music, gymnastics. The school is one of a few offering a course in English; usually the second language, which begins in fifth grade, is French or German.

From third grade on, studies are heavily larded with Marxist doctrine. History emphasizes the class struggle and the Revolution, distorting the past to conform to the Soviet gospel. Biology teaches that there is no God. Constitutional U.S.S.R. gives the ABCs of Marxism. Each day at the school PARADE visited begins with childish voices quavering, "Long live the Soviet Union, created by the will of the people." From nearly every wall and every niche, busts and pictures of Lenin and Stalin stare down. Regularly, students crowd into the assembly hall to hear "pep talks" on Marxist dogma.

Even by American standards, educational facilities are good. While Muscovites huddle together because of the chronic housing shortage, schools are tagged for priority construction, and both city and country are studded with spacious new schools. While the con-

G-E Automatic Skillet with thermostat makes cooking easier, tastier

Only G.E. offers a choice of beautiful turquoise or polished cast aluminum. $19.95*

High-domed lid, $3.00 extra

Manufacturer's recommended retail or fair trade price.*

Here's a new idea in cooking—now you set the temperature when you fry and cook just as you do when you bake! Like a modern oven, the General Electric Automatic Skillet has a thermostat. You dial the heat, put the food in when the light signals, and after that the temperature never varies.

The secret to digestible fried foods: it is only when fat gets too hot—begins to smoke—that it becomes indigestible. The G-E Skillet prevents this.

Food tastes better, too! For now we know that—like cakes and roasts—every food has a "just-right" temperature. And the skillet not only fries, but makes stews, pot roasts, upside-down cakes, casseroles. (Use a standard 12" cover, or get G. E.'s.)

So convenient—cook at the table, keep food warm between servings. Just put the skillet on the table-cloth. General Electric Company, Small Appliance Division, Bridgeport 2, Conn.

Saves constant watching, because you can dial the correct temperature. Much easier than cooking on a stove burner where heat builds up and up unless you keep adjusting.

A cinch to wash—immerse it in water to the end of the temperature chart. Special finish keeps food from sticking, round shape makes it easier to clean. Visit your G-E dealer soon.

MARCHING MEN wheel through column-left in back yard of Moscow school. These boys, 10th-graders in "physical education" class, will enter military service at 18 unless qualified for a university or institute. School principal told PARADE, "Please tell Americans that we wish to continue in peace."

ENGLISH CLASS, under display of posters in English, listens to instructor read story. Class is equipped with records, microphones. Russian schools have fine technical equipment, particularly in chemistry and physics labs.

WILDLIFE EXHIBIT includes specimens raised by boys in their classes. Boys wear blue-black wool school uniform, which costs 300 rubles ($75). Girl students are required to wear dark wool skirts, wool stockings, heavy blouses.

Young Russia's recreation: study

HOPEFUL BALLERINAS whirl through practice session at Moscow's Bolshoi Theater School. Ballet, pride of Russia, requires nine years' intensive study, two-thirds of time spent on ballet. In final year, students are paid 200 rubles ($50) a month, but must attend ballet classes from 9 to 6 six days a week.

sumer market is short-changed on gadgets, school laboratories bristle with the latest in technical equipment. What American educators would call "teacher-pupil ratio" is good: Sokolnichesky School No. 1 has 617 pupils, 47 teachers and a principal.

Hard as he works in school, the Russian child gets only more of the same in his "recreation." At the Pioneer Youth Palace which PARADE visited at Rostov-on-Don, in the Ukraine, 12-year-olds spend their spare time studying physics, mathematics and Russian history in 15-student groups called sokols. The Rostov palace — formerly a four-story bank building — contains 36 rooms, supervises 2,500 members from 9 to 14 with a staff of 70 teachers and a million-ruble ($250,000) budget, and offers 112 sokols. Some are doggedly serious and others are laced with fun; members can choose sokols in dancing, model-airplane building or football (soccer) as well as heavier subjects.

In the "culture parks" and woodlands around Russian cities, you often come across Young Pioneers on picnics, feasting on the traditional roast potatoes and sausages, playing games and bouncing through folk dances. Pioneer Youth places strong emphasis on outdoor life and fitness. Many children spend one of their two vacation months at summer camps financed by the state.

PICNICKING PIONEERS sit down to meal of traditional roast potatoes, melons, in Rostov park. Supervisor is Young Communist League member, training for future leadership. Most pioneer leaders are women, work a three-hour day, draw a salary of 700 rubles ($175) a month.

With Mama and Papa both working, Pioneer Youth is a foster-parent

TOTS AND TEENS dance at Pioneer picnic. Some youngsters like American jazz, but recently state cracked down on jam session at Moscow University.

Although the minimum program at the Rostov palace is only four hours, many youngsters spend much more time there. (Pioneer Youth is not compulsory — "but a child would be a social outcast if he didn't belong," a leader told PARADE.) The palace, open six days a week, is crowded each night until 7 o'clock — closing time. Partly this is because mothers as well as fathers are working (in one school PARADE talked to dozens of boys, found only one whose mother held no job), and there's no reason to go home after school; but largely it is simply more evidence of Russian youth's deep dedication to knowledge. PARADE asked one girl why she spent her spare hours poring over lessons after a busy day at school. "Because Lenin said, 'Study, study, and once more study,'" she answered gravely.

You run into that same deep vein of seriousness in children of all ages. PARADE asked one boy how he felt about coeducational classes, an innovation in 1954. "Of course, I like it better with girls in the class," he said, without cracking a smile. School Principal Nicholai Ignashi Yermichken told PARADE his school has no disciplinary problems and no corporal punishment. "There isn't much mischief, and when there is, we just have a talk with the student and that's enough," he said. A visitor entering the classroom spurs the whole class to attention, and they remain standing, rigid, until greeted with the standard "Drasvootye" (Good day).

With the heavy role played by the child's foster-parent, the state, the family relationship is somewhat soft-pedaled. The family usually spends Sunday together; a typical amusement is a day in a "culture park," which is the Western city park under another name. Often the parents will take their children to a state agricultural exhibit or to one of the stadiums to watch a football game or a sports rally. Sports-minded Russia turns out in droves to watch calisthenics displays as well as football, and you can easily promote an argument by denying that the U.S.S.R. will win the 1956 Olympics.

The Soviet leaders would consider an Olympic victory the crowning jewel in their campaign for international glory, and a vast program to train athletes already is underway. Similarly, youngsters with ballet talent may be enrolled in a rugged nine-year training program aimed at maintaining Russia's acknowledged superiority in that field. In the 16 republics 11 ballet schools turn out about 30 or 40 dancers a year. The famous Bolshoi Theater School in Moscow, founded in 1773, has an enrollment of 309 students, roughly half girls and half boys; the applicants each year are many times that number. A student who is admitted must live in a youth hostel and study ballet six days a week.

What makes Ivan run at this hectic pace? Oddly, the keystone of preparation for the "classless society" is competition. The youth is goaded on by a merit system and the promise of medals for outstanding attainment. (So difficult are Pioneer Youth medals to win, for instance, that, in the history of the Rostov palace, only two have been awarded.)

But more than mere baubles are involved. When a child reaches 14, he is eligible for the Young Communist League; before he can be admitted, he must face a stiff weeding-out process. If he is not tapped for the League, he can still enter a university, a trade school, or, at age 18, military service (the Government, of course, chooses for him, when he is in eighth grade); but the top jobs are closed to him. And even League membership is no guarantee of the future. At 26, he becomes eligible for the Communist Party itself, but the party, whose membership is an exclusive 3 per cent of the population, wants only the very cream.

Youth and the Future

Nothing so simple as competition can explain the intricate complex that keeps Young Russia's eye on the ball. The wholé atmosphere — school, recreation, family, the ever-present slogans and statues, the very pace of life — reeks with the determination that Russia and the Communist system will be pre-eminent in the world. Perhaps, as many experts believe, Russians will eventually tire of their wearying load and "go stale"; but right now you come away convinced that the old order of revolutionary peasants has passed, to be replaced by dedicated servants of a streamlined police state. ■

MOSCOW AT NIGHT

The capital now has a night club—its first

Despite the glowing photos on these pages, Moscow at night is probably the quietest major capital on earth. It has no "Gay White Way," no brightly lighted entertainment area such as you find in every U. S. city. The average Ivan and his wife can't afford to go out on the town.

The city's only night club, the Novui Yar (opened just last month), charges $15 for dinner with one drink. Result: It is patronized only by high military and government officials — and their teen-age children.

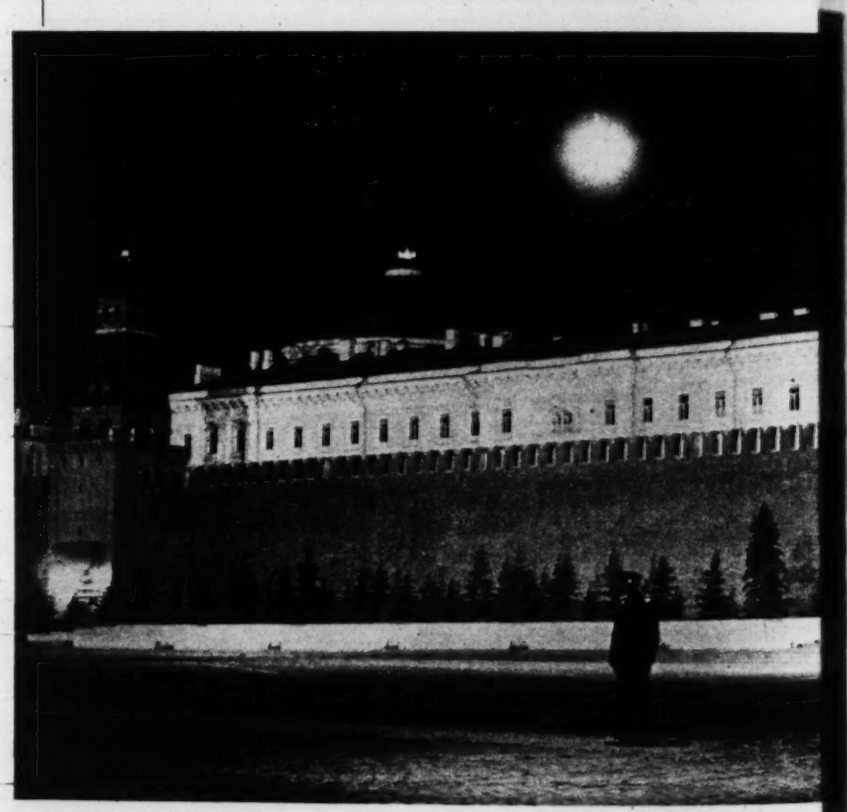
In a good restaurant (there are precious few), dinner runs about $12. Tickets to the Bolshoi theater and the opera are expensive, scarce and peddled by scalpers.

Sports events are restricted to the daylight hours.

That leaves only the movies (well-attended at $1 per ticket), walking in the streets and window-shopping (a favorite pastime), standing in a beer hall (there are no seats) or participating in an "intellectual study group" at someone's apartment. This last is dedicated to preaching the Communist party line.

By contrast, country people on collective farms are organized into social clubs. They see Russian movies two or three times a week, hold dances, stage amateur plays.

But throughout the Soviet, playing chess or checkers still represents a "big night" for most citizens. ■



Most dramatic night view in town is the huge, fortress-like Kremlin. Lighted by red stars, main building is white, yellow concrete.

WINDOW SHOPPING at the big GUM department store (see p. 30) finds average Muscovites admiring things they can't afford. These are looking longingly at a display of shoes.

27-PIECE BAND plays Gershwin, Ellington and "Russian jazz" in the Novui Yar. There also is an inferior floor show. PARADE "sneaked" this shot after the bandsmen voted not to allow photos.

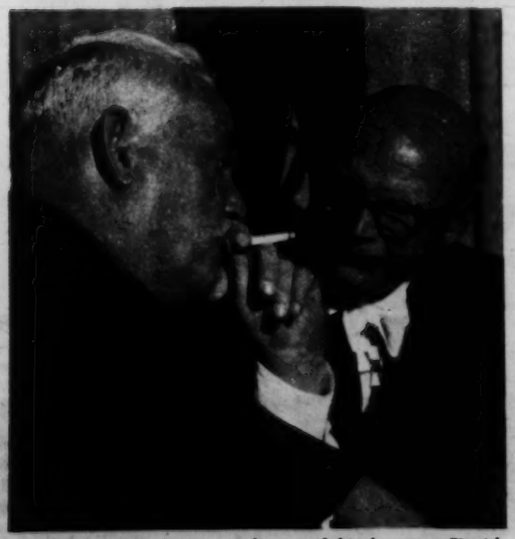
PREMIER Bulganin trades quips with correspondents. He is very camera-conscious, tries to present best profile.

CRONIES: Bulganin talks intimately with Marshal Zhukov, resplendent in a green uniform blossoming with medals.



IN CORNER, Bulganin and one of his hosts, a Finnish official, discuss recently signed Russo-Finnish treaty.

Six Soviet VIPs, moving as one, are snapped at Moscow's Central Airport by PARADE'S telephoto

PARADE'S COLOR CAMERA IS THERE

WHEN THE LEADERS LOOSEN UP

On these pages are probably the most revealing color photos yet taken of Russia's top men. The lineup above, awaiting the arrival of the President of East Germany, includes six members of the supreme Soviet governmental body, the Presidium — l. to r., Foreign Minister Molotov, Suslov, Kaganovich, ex-Premier Malenkov, Saburov, Communist Party head Khrushchev. The other pictures catch some of these leaders, plus Premier Bulganin and war hero Marshal Zhukov, relaxing at a reception given by the Finnish Embassy in Moscow.

All the photos portray the official unbending which, since last spring, has set the tone for Russia's foreign relations. When Khrushchev, in his cups in Yugoslavia, welcomed foreign correspondents to Moscow; when he and Bulganin went home from the Geneva "summit" meeting talking about an end to the cold war, the world listened and marveled. Could it be true? Had a new, friendly Soviet sprung from the ashes of dictator Stalin's funeral pyre?

The answer is yet to come. But in recent months Moscow probably has played host to more delegations — from heads of state down to trade, cultural and a wide range of other missions — than in the previous 20 years. And the prevailing mood has been cordial, even effusive.

STORY: Khrushchev tries one out on Zhukov. Dour at first (top), Zhukov grins (center), then roars — with Khrushchev.

With "Open Door" policy in full swing, Russians expect to greet 40,000 visitors by end of 1955

The reception PARADE attended, though proffered by the Finns, was dominated by the two top Reds: Khrushchev and Bulganin. The Premier joshed correspondents about their waistlines and joked about his own widely headlined "ill health."

One correspondent asked about extending his visa, due to expire that evening. When someone pointed out that this would make the correspondent a criminal, Bulganin patted the latter on the cheek and cooed: "Yes, he does have a suspicious face."

Khrushchev, though drinking less than on some other occasions, also made jokes, chatted and gave every evidence of enjoying himself. His attitude further implied, "Come on, everybody — have a good time."

This invitation runs like a Red thread through the pattern of current Soviet dealings. No one in Moscow has forgotten the visit of India's Prime Minister Nehru, last June, when the glitter of official red carpet was outshone only by the massed colors of the flowers held by Muscovites lining the route of Nehru's party.

Later VIP visitors came from both sides of the Iron Curtain. From inside: Red Indochina's Ho Chi Minh, East Germany's Premier Grotewohl. From outside: West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer, Finland's President and Premier, U. S. Supreme Court Justice Douglas and a clutch of Congressmen, Canada's Foreign Minister Pearson, Burma's Premier U Nu, Norway's Premier Gerhardsen. Official representatives of foreign governments usually left with at least a gesture of Soviet good will (for example, the promise to return a long-held Finnish fortress).

Currently the missions to Moscow are continuing. Expected soon are Egypt's Premier Nasser, Saudi Arabia's King Saud, Sweden's Prime Minister Erlander, Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito and others.

Add to this stream of top-level callers a flood of lower-bracket delegations — farmers, journalists, trade unionists, scientists, cultural experts, sports teams and others. (In many cases, Russian hospitality extends to picking up the tab for a whole party's entire guided tour.) Add also the individual visitors like Sonja Henie, who recently tried to arrange an ice show in Moscow. The total is more than 40,000 foreigners expected by the end of this year.

Meanwhile, Soviet groups have been traveling the other way (though in smaller numbers). Besides an Asiatic junket for Khrushchev and Bulganin, the latter has said he will visit both London and Cairo. Other top Reds may turn up elsewhere. The "Open Door" is at least ajar.

At the moment, the extended Red hand does not seem to hold a dagger. Russia genuinely needs outside help to overcome its weaknesses in agriculture, industry, housing, trapsportation — and it needs time to strengthen the base of Communism at home and in the satellites.

Today's good-humored Red leaders have lulled the mistrust and suspicion Stalin created. They are winning Russia time — and, in some areas, friends. ■

BOUQUETS in hand, Russian trade-unionists greet a British trade-union delegation at Tiflis, Georgia, airport. Britons visited two weeks, with all expenses paid by Soviets.

EDITORS of Krokodil, headed by Acting Editor Ivan Kostjukov (r.), judge cartoons. Sculptured crocodile, magazine's symbol, is famed character in Slavic children's books.

Jokes with a Purpose

Soviet cartoon humor is largely social satire

In a socialistic society, even humor serves the state. Most of what the Russians consider funny is so closely bound up with Communist life and doctrine that it seems a good deal less than side-splitting to an outsider.

For years, poking fun at the social system was strictly prohibited. Later it was decided that a certain amount of it might provide a good safety valve. Today, as a result, digs are constantly being given the various ministries, the school system, the farm and industrial programs, neglectful building superintendents, lazy and inefficient farmers and anonymous minor party officials. About the only "sacred cows," safe from the lampooners' barbs, are the top Government leaders.

The leading exponent of wit and whimsey in the Soviet Union is the 34-year-old comic magazine Krokodil. Published monthly by a staff of 30 at the Moscow headquarters of Tass (the Russian news agency), Krokodil is a handsomely printed, 16-page publication containing numerous four-color cartoons and humorous essays. It sells for the equivalent of 30c, has a current circulation of about 600,000.

Until last summer, Krokodil continually lambasted the West and its leaders. Since the Geneva Conference, it has been hewing closely to the new party line of international conciliation. On this and the facing page are cartoons from recent issues, to give you an idea of the sort of thing that makes Russians laugh. ■

GIBING at backward students, cartoon shows overgrown dullard alibiing to his teacher, "Excuse me, but you're much too young to teach me."

FARM profiteering is lampooned in drawing of fat farmer "weighing" skinny farrow. Caption: "Here's how some farmers fatten up their pigs."

INDICATIVE of Krokodil's new slant since the Geneva Conference, road roller labeled "International Cooperation" crushes "Cold War," "Sanctions" and "Mutual Mistrust" on the road to "Peaceful Coexistence of Nations."

SATIRIZING failure of Ministry of Fisheries to meet quotas set for catches (note graph on wall, left), crocodile is shown being entertained at the bureau. His embarrassed host apologetically explains, "Begging your pardon, Comrade Krokodil, we can offer you everything but fish."

A FINE PRODUCT OF GENERAL FOODS

At home with a Mother-Heroine:

THE GORUSHKINS pose in their living room for a PARADE portrait. Two of the children — both boys — were missing; they had to attend college classes. The medals on Mrs. Gorushkin's chest are for her prolific production of babies; her husband got his, the Red Star Order, for wartime factory efficiency.

COOKING her husband's supper, Mrs. Gorushkin works at a four-jet gas burner in her 9'-x-9' kitchen. Most Russian foods, PARADE found, are fried, tend to be very greasy.

HOW RUSSIA LIVES

Everything still costs a lot and is hard to get

SHOPPERS survey food on sale at the Kiev central food market. Collective farmers bring their produce here, get top prices in a supply-and-demand market. It's the only free-enterprise market in the U.S.S.R.

THE SOMBER, keen-eyed women pictured below are shopping in the Russian version of a supermarket. What they buy, they pay for in cash, for there's no buying on the cuff in the Soviet Union.

The official reason for the clamp on credit is to check inflation. More likely, though, the Russians couldn't whip out enough TV sets, washing machines and refrigerators to meet the demand if installment buying were allowed (since their factories have long been geared to turn out heavy machinery and war goods).

Right now all luxury items still are far beyond the reach of the average Russian pocketbook. The average factory worker earns between 700 and 800 rubles a month (the ruble is four to a dollar officially, but actually worth much less). To buy luxury goods, here are typical prices he'd have to pay and the amount of time he'd have to work to earn the money:

- 800 rubles (one month) for a table radio.
- 2,240 rubles (three months) for a washing machine.
- 9,000 rubles (13 months) for a four-passenger car.

Even the necessities of life — food and clothing — carry sky-high price tags. The average Russian has to work three months to pay for a woman's cloth coat, a day and a half for a white shirt, two days for a pair of pajamas, almost a week for a dress and one to two months for a man's suit. Food is even higher. Most Russians spend six of every 10 rubles they earn on food. A pound of beef, for example, costs the equivalent of $3.50, a pound of butter $3, a quart of milk 70 cents.

And the Russian shopper must stand in line to pay those prices. Everywhere PARADE went there were long queues of waiting people. "You've got to queue up for nearly everything you buy," people admitted. As a result, women spend two to three hours a day — every day — shopping.

For some women, though, life in the U.S.S.R. can be beautiful. There is Anastasia Gorushkin (above), for instance, a Moscow matron of 48 who has achieved fame, some glory and a great many rubles by giving birth to 10 children. To a baby-booming government, Anastasia is a "Mother-Heroine." With the title she has received a string of medals, a "big" four-room apartment for her brood and her husband, plus cash rewards that so far total 42,000 rubles.

PARADE spent an evening with Ivan and Mrs. Gorushkin and their 10 children, who range in age from 7 to 29. Their apartment had been painted just a few days before — probably no coincidence, since the Government had arranged the visit. Nevertheless, the rooms were dull and uninteresting, with tasteless wallpaper, cheap linoleum, rickety furniture, bare electric bulbs. Sleeping arrangements taxed every room (including hallways) except the tiny kitchen and bath (which the Gorushkins, unlike most Moscow apartment dwellers, do not have to share with their neighbors).

EATING the meal — fried onions, potatoes, sausages, pancakes, salad, jam, honey, brown and white bread — Ivan digs in, at first self-consciously, later with relish. In bottle is a watery beer.

The Gorushkins' life is far more pleasant than that of most Russians. As a skilled machinist, Ivan, 56, earns 1,900 rubles a month (after about three weeks' pay a year has been deducted for Government bonds that won't be redeemable for 20 years). His oldest son (a student in the evening) contributes 1,000 rubles a month. Out of this 2,900-ruble kitty, Mrs. Gorushkin spends about 2,700 to feed her large family, uses the remainder—plus her cash awards — for clothes and rent (which is only 50 rubles a month).

That leaves little money for entertaining themselves, but the Government provides for Mother-Heroine Gorushkin. Each year she receives a three-week vacation, with all expenses paid by the Government. Her husband gets a four-week vacation with pay from his job, but they must take separate vacations because of the children.

It would seem that the life of the Gorushkins — plush by Soviet standards — would inspire other families to produce more children. The average city couple, however, has only two children; those in the country only three. Probable reason: They can't afford any more. Continued on page 28

TWO RUSSIAN DISHES ANY U. S. HOUSEWIFE CAN MAKE

PARADE liked these dishes in Russia, brought back the recipes. Both have been prepared — and enjoyed — in PARADE'S test kitchen.

Caucasian Shashlik

2 lbs. boned lamb shoulder
2 lemons, juice
½ cup finely chopped parsley
1 teaspoon dried dill
1 garlic clove, slashed
Salt and pepper

Cut lamb in 1½-inch cubes; put in deep bowl. Combine remaining ingredients; pour over lamb. Chill several hours. Drain lamb. Run skewers through the lamb cubes and cook over charcoal or under broiler, turning often to cook evenly, about 20 minutes, or to desired degree of "doneness." Makes four servings.

Russian Kasha

1 cup coarse brown buckwheat groats (Kasha)
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 cup chopped onion
3 tablespoons fat or oil
3 cups boiling water

Combine first three ingredients; let stand at room temperature. Cook onion in fat or salad oil until golden brown. Add buckwheat mixture; mix well. Stir in boiling water; cover tightly. Cook over moderate heat 15 minutes or until all moisture is absorbed. Makes four servings.

RENTS ARE LOW, BUT APARTMENTS SCARCE

In cities the overcrowding is dreadful. But in rural areas there's something new: home owners

If you're a Russian citizen lucky enough to live in the rare apartment house with an elevator, you ride up. But, to save electricity, you walk down.

More likely, though, there is no elevator. You and your family are squeezed together in the single room of a walk-up apartment house, sharing a dingy kitchen and bathroom with four, five or even more families. Some of these houses are fairly new. Others, in slum areas, are so old they've been condemned, but the tenants must stay: there's no place to go.

In the suburbs and rural areas, the picture is brighter. Some families live in their own homes, which they rent from the state. Nearly all are one-story, stucco affairs with two or three rooms. They're usually heated by a pot-bellied stove, have the toilet outside the house and lack running water.

A few families in Russia today own their homes — but a string is attached. For example, there are bungalow-size houses in the country called dachas, which can be purchased for the U. S. equivalent of $5,000 to $7,000. And in Rostov, PARADE found a small community whose residents had bought their small houses for $1,250 to $2,000 — depending on whether they built the houses themselves or bought them ready-made.

But here's the string: the state owns the land on which the houses are built. The owners pay rent on the land — which can be taken from them at any time.

Currently, lack of housing in the major cities is one of the Government's biggest headaches. Families, after being assigned to apartments by the city Housing Trust or the factory where they work, can't move without permission. Nearly every apartment is bulging with people. Families are often ordered to take in complete strangers; as many as four or five may eat and sleep in one room.

There's a happy note, though. The rent is low — usually 5 per cent of a worker's income. As a result, most tenants of three-room flats pay only 40 or 45 rubles a month (about $10); those with five-room apartments pay as little as 70 rubles (about $17). Rent for homes is just as low.

The scarcity of apartments traces to the '20s and '30s. It was made infinitely worse by World War II, which flattened from 75 to 95 per cent of the buildings in Kiev, Stalingrad, Rostov and scores of other cities and eliminated many villages entirely. At war's end a steel-willed Stalin ruled that Russia's factories must be rebuilt first; so machines moved into new plants while people doubled up.

Today the Soviets are grinding out new apartment houses at a furious rate to make up for those lost years. In their haste, some of the houses have been sloppily built. Recently a Russian delegation came to the U. S. to learn U. S. mass-construction methods.

Big Shots Do Better

Some city families, however, have no housing problem. They're the privileged few in Russia's "classless" society: party bigwigs, top writers and actors, skilled workers who regularly top their production quotas. One such worker is Alexei Trokhov (right), a 30-year-old repair worker at the Sherbokoo silk factory in east Moscow. Quota-topping Alexei lives in a comfortable three-room apartment which he shares with only his wife, son and sister.

Alexei's factory owns the lease to his building and assigns its workers to apartments. So long as he continues to beat his quota — it's always being pushed up — Alexei keeps the three rooms for himself. He works eight hours a day, six days a week, averages 1,900 rubles a month ($475). Out of this he pays 50 rubles ($12.50) for rent, phone and electricity.

Like all Russians, Alexei is a piece worker; his pay is based on the number of machines he repairs. When he's sick, he gets his average pay. He can't quit; he can be fired. In that case he easily could get another job—but he'd lose his choice apartment. And in today's Russia that would be a catastrophe. ■

MORE GOODS —AT A PRICE

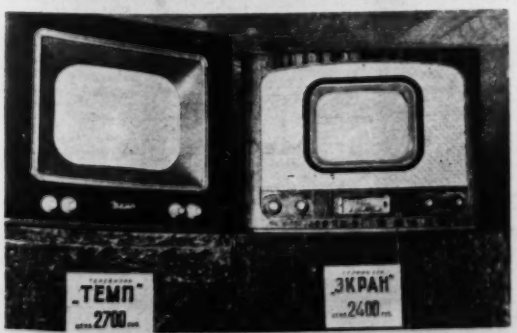
This is Russia today: Food and clothing are sky-high, there's not enough housing in the cities, "luxuries" are as scarce as hen's teeth. Yet, for the man in the street, life in 1955 is a little better than it used to be.

Today he has enough food, though his wife must scurry frantically from store to store to get a day's supply. He can buy overcoats, suits and shoes (almost nonexistent a few years ago), though he usually must wait in line and pay exorbitantly for them. And he can go to the stores — all owned by the state — to gape at "luxuries."

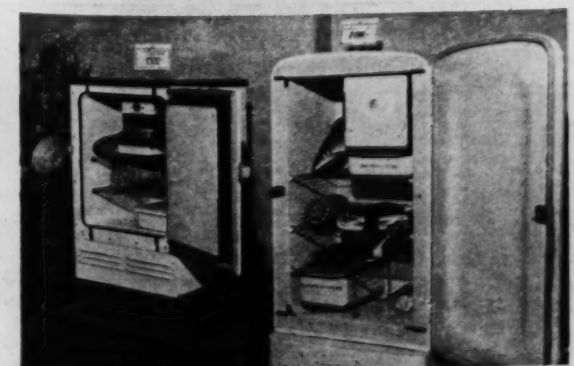
But service in bakeries, drugstores, clothing shops, food markets and so on still is exasperating. (Lacking competition, employes don't care whether you buy or not.) Stocks, moreover, are none too varied. Big exception: Moscow's GUM (state universal store) which sells nearly every consumer item made in the U.S.S.R. Open six days a week, GUM (where the pictures on these pages were taken) gets up to 150,000 visitors a day.

GUM, and the state department stores in other large cities, now have more to sell because the Kremlin has recently stepped up the production of consumer goods. Nevertheless, PARADE found that no one in Russia today — except for the top few — lives as well as the average American skilled workman. ■

FASHION-SHOW audience avidly eyes a model's skirt and blouse. The store prefers to sell just the pattern for an outfit — letting the customer have it made by a dressmaker. GUM takes clothes orders, but delivery requires a month.



TV SCREENS run no larger than 17" model at left; it's the most popular. Signs give prices in rubles ($675 and $600). Only three cities — Moscow, Kiev, Kharkov — have TV, mostly showing newsreels and movies (but some are new ones).



REFRIGERATORS are small, expensive by U.S. standards. Small one above costs $375, larger one $500. Inside are food dummies for display purposes. Most kitchen equipment, PARADE found, compares to ours of the late '30s, early '40s.

AT ALTAR of 11th-century Greek Orthodox Church near Tiflis, priest holds 250-year-old illuminated Bible in Georgian script. A peasant, he taught himself at home for priesthood.

As a closeup shows, most of Baptist congregation are old people. Baptists claim

PACKED in auditorium, some 2,000 worshipers listen to Pastor Yakob Gitkov's sermon in Moscow's Baptist Church. Congregation is 75 per cent women. Few children attend church services.

The churches are open, but...

There is a new policy on religion in Russia: to let it 'die on the vine'

After four decades of trying to stamp out organized religion (with a World War II respite when churchgoers were encouraged to pray for victory), Russia's Red rulers have evolved a new strategy. In place of the classic advice — "If you can't lick 'em, join 'em" — they now are following the cynical line, "Isolate 'em."

This means that some churches currently are open in the Soviet Union. Priests, ministers and rabbis are allowed to preach the word of God. The faithful are free to come, listen and believe. But all this goes on in a virtual vacuum — for the state is effectively strangling the churches' lifeblood: the young people.

Religious instruction for the young is banned. Instead, boys and girls are fed the atheistic doctrines of Marx and Lenin via every available channel. The obvious assumption is that, within another generation, no one in the U.S.S.R. will believe in God or need religion. So let today's older generation enjoy its faith while it lives. After that, who will care?

Some recent observers have left Russia with other conclusions. Church-state relations are improving, they say. A "religious revival" is going on. Such views, PARADE believes, stem from a misinterpretation of the visible evidence.

In Moscow, for example, there now are 55 Greek Orthodox churches open (this is the "official" Russian church), plus one Catholic, one Protestant and three synagogues. All are well attended and membership is large (about 2,000 in the Catholic church, St. Louis; about 4,000 in the Baptist, which serves all the capital's Protestants; about 4,000 for the synagogues).

But these figures do not take into account the fact that Moscow's 60 churches serve a city of 7,000,000-plus — compared to 400 churches back when the population was only 2 million. Many of the missing 340 have been converted into museums glorifying the Soviet "faith." A few have become living quarters. Some are simply in ruins.

Further, the make-up of today's sparse congregations reveals the true nature of the Government's policy. As shown on these pages, it is almost entirely older people, and those mostly women. Those who attend Moscow's Baptist church, as Pastor Yakob Gitkov himself admits, are largely intellectuals, civil servants and pensioners (men and women of 55 and up).

True, some children appear in Soviet churches. Almost invariably they come with grandparents, left in charge of them while LEANING on cane, a parishioner descends the steps of Moscow's only Catholic church after Mass. In her bowed pose the visitor can read the planned doom of religion in Russia.

Church still hopes to save religion parents work. This also explains the recent comment on the number of child baptisms—"surprisingly large"—and the report that more than half the children in the Orthodox Church are believed to be baptized. Parents who accept the state's antireligious line (through conviction or fear) need not be concerned over what the grandparents do: they know that the children soon enough will be swallowed up by organized Soviet materialism.

If the nature of their congregations is striking, so is that of the churches themselves. Few have had more than the most nominal repairs in many years (though the Government, for nationalistic reasons, has had certain historic cathedrals touched up from time to time). The state rations paper and printing for church literature, including Bibles. The Protestants do manage to get out a small magazine six times a year. It is not widely read.

Within his pulpit, the pastor still is master. So long as he confines himself to spiritual topics, he is let alone. But that is about as far as it goes.

Religion, Lenin once announced, is the opiate of the people. Communist boss Khrushchev recently added: "We remain atheist and we do everything we can to liberate a certain part of the people from the opium attraction of religion which still exists."

Against this official vow of enmity, the churches of Russia can offer little but the hope Pastor Gitkov voices. "God," he says, "will send us more new members." ■

This view of Moscow's Baptist Church shows crowded balcony and part of the choir (foreground). Singers 18 to 30 make up choir of 120 voices.

During Yom Kippur services at Moscow's largest synagogue, crowd overflowed into the street as shown here. An estimated 2,500 people attended.

Contrast on WHEELS

The photo above, taken just off 8-to-12-lane Gorky Boulevard in Moscow, shows that drivers there obey the sign "STOP" (English word, Russian characters). It does not show the pace of Moscow traffic, where every driver blows his own horn and pedestrians are fair game. But it points up the contrast between the capital's mechanized transport (including buses, taxis, trucks, subways) and the simpler kind (right) still prevalent in most of the Soviet Union.

Even in Moscow, cars are comparatively few. They cost too much (a worker's annual pay for the low-priced Moskvich), gas is $1 a gallon and there's really no place to drive (Russia has 50,000 miles of surfaced roads; the U. S., more than 2,000,000). So most autos are state-owned and assigned to officials, who prefer the expensive, prewar-Packard-type Zis. The few American cars, owned by foreign embassies, attract curious crowds almost everywhere. So do bright socks, a Polaroid camera or a stick of chewing gum. ■

Stop sign lines up low-priced Moskvich (top); medium Pobeda (center); disabled vet's boxed-in motorcycle. Main Moscow streets include "express lane" for big shots in a hurry.

BELOW: CARTS NEAR ODESSA

Rural traffic retains horse-and-buggy flavor. One collective farm has four cars, six motorcycles for 1,618 people; for farm work, six tractors, two combines — and 192 horses.

TYPICAL LETTER (l.) shows these pupils are grasping unfamiliar English script as well as vocabulary. Above is the writer, George Kosmiady, struggling with composition.

Soviet Pen Pals?

Pupils write letters, hope for U. S. answers

"Please write me a few words on how you live. What do you study? What books do you read? What games do you play? What films have you seen? Please, answer me . . ."

These simple phrases, written in labored English, occur and recur in 21 letters PARADE brought back from Moscow's Sokolnichesky School No. 1 (see p. 10). The idea of writing them sprang from the obvious interest of the pupils — 19 boys and two girls, aged 12 and 13 — in everything American, particularly Americans their own age.

The next step is up to U. S. youngsters (and their parents). If you would like to answer a Soviet child, here's how.

Pick a name from this list (the first two are the girls): Irin Tarasenko, Tanya Tsvetaeva; Igor Agabecov, Valery Frolov, Vladimir Gureev, Yra Gusev, Nick Ivanov, Vitaley Ivanov, Alec Kopijilov, Nickoly Korchagin, George Kosmiady, Ury Kusmich, Alexander Lookashev, Vladimir Malcov, Leva Nickolaev, Nick Oscolkov, Alexander Ponomarev, Dima Pankratov, Oleg Punkrutov, Oleg Skramtaiev, Belza Svyatoslav.

The address is: Class 7-A, School No. 1, 4th Sokolnichesky Street, Moscow B-14, U.S.S.R.

Postage, regular mail: 8c first ounce, 4c each extra ounce (takes about three weeks); airmail: 15c each half-ounce (takes about three days).

PARADE hopes to hear from readers who try this novel experiment.

BLONDE Tanya Tsvetaeva asks two questions of any youngster who may answer: "Do you like books?" and "What marks [grades] have you?"

DARK-HAIRED Oleg Skramtaiev inquires: "Where do you live?" "How many pupils are in your class?" and "What books do you like to read?"

OUR AMBASSADOR FAVORS GREATER CONTACT

Charles E. Bohlen, U. S. Ambassador to the U.S.S.R. (see cover), is one of America's ablest diplomats. Harvard-educated, he began studying Russian (and Soviet affairs) 25 years ago, later served as interpreter at top-level U. S.-Soviet meetings and since April, 1953, has occupied famous Spaso House in Moscow with his wife and son. (Photo, r., shows him in the living room.) With a staff of 65, he keeps Washington as fully informed as possible on Soviet progress and policies.

Bohlen does not talk for publication, but he is known to favor greater contact, at all levels, between Americans and Russians carefully chosen for the purpose. At 50, he himself currently is the No. 1 such contact —and, observers feel, outstanding at his tricky, arduous job. ■

"Window test" proves blue Cheer washes so white you can see the difference!

because only Cheer has the Blue-Magic whitener!

Cheer's Blue-Magic whitener is not just a bluing . . . it's more than a bluing . . . it's a new, better whitener for all your wash.

One look tells you . . . blue Cheer brings a new whiteness to your wash. And this simple yet dramatic "window test" proves it.

Just take some Cheer-washed clothes to your window. In that revealing light (or even on a gray day), you'll see a startling new whiteness in all your wash. And on hardest-to-whiten things like nylon, you'll see a real difference in whiteness never possible before Cheer.

What's more, blue Cheer washes dirtiest work and play clothes crisply clean, adds new brightness to colored washables, too. And you really know Cheer's in a class by itself when you see the difference in whiteness Cheer gives you.

TRY CHEER in your automatic washer. Remember that blue Cheer has the active, hard-working kind of suds recommended by leading makers of automatics and preferred by 8 out of 10 women who own agitator automatics.
